THE WHITE TOWERS OF BLOOMSBURG

I saw the towers of Bloomsburg as I was passing by,
The white towers of Bloomsburg against the autumn sky.
The river flowed beneath them across the purple hills,
The town lies just below them with all its stores and mills.
The towers shine white at Bloomsburg above the mountains grand,
Looking at the clock there, no matter where you stand.
There's a tower on old Carver and on sprawling Waller, too,
This first one is the larger that shines against the blue.
Those who come to Bloomsburg and see September's haze
Are reminded always of their happy college days.
Up the street to Carver with its ever-welcoming door,
They've climbed with eager footsteps for four-score years or more.
So we set up our signposts for those who follow here,
That they may see the towers that we have tried to rear.
Our towers may not point upward like fingers to the sky,
But looking always at them we cannot fail to try
To serve our Alma Mater and to it e'er be true,
For the years look down upon us and others that we knew.

MID-YEAR COMMENCEMENT

"American democracy is in grave peril today—not from the threat of military force from another country, but from moral, spiritual, economic, and political disintegration from within," the Rev. Dr. Peter K. Emmons, pastor, Westminster Presbyterian Church, Scranton, told members of the mid-January graduating class at the Teachers College Tuesday, January 19. Speaking on the subject, "Self-Discipline for Democracy," Dr. Emmons, one of the country's outstanding clergymen, said that moral and spiritual degeneracy will lead to the loss of our liberty.

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Education was awarded to sixteen persons, including Mrs. Marjorie S. Kline, of Orangeville, the first graduate in the field of Nursing Education.

President Harvey A. Andruss conferred degrees on the following graduates: Robert J. Castle, Kingston; Fred B. Del Monte, Shamokin; Russel Dinger, Bloomsburg (formerly of Shamokin); Harry G. Gray, Bloomsburg; Joan M. Harvard, Mahanoy City; Joseph D. Iles, Hazleton; Mrs. Veronica D. Kane, Sunbury; Mrs. Marjorie S. Kline, Orangeville; Alfred C. Knecht, R. D. 1, Northumberland; Howard J. Marr, Shamokin; Kenneth McAnall, Bloomsburg; Jevita McCauley, Shenandoah; Donald Peterson, Berwick; Keith A. Smith, Pittston; Thomas Stefanik, Freeland and Kenneth D. Wagner, of Bloomsburg.

President Andruss presented a service key, given by the College in recognition of outstanding contributions in the field of extra-curricular activities, to Keith D. Smith. Certificate in recognition of election to membership in the "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities" was given to Fred B. Del Monte. Earl A. Gehrig, advisor to the class, presented the seniors to be honored.

Candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education were presented by Dr. Thomas P. North, Dean of Instruction, and Dr. Andruss conferred the degrees.

Music was provided by Howard F. Fenstermaker at the console. Nelson A. Miller was director of music.

In his remarks, Dr. Emmons pointed out that the term "American democracy" has been used so glibly that it has become a cliché. He defined it as "a way of life—a condition of life" or the "aims, objectives, hopes and ideals for which our founding fathers lived and died." In it, he said, could be found liberty, equality of rights, and collective security under law.

Dr. Emmons pointed out that increasing restraints from without the individual relieve one of exercising restraints from within. In other words, responsibilities of the individual for self-control decrease with the imposition of restraints and regulations from without.

Three areas in which the individual must learn to discipline himself are: mental capacities—said Dr. Emmons. "You've got to learn to think for yourself, or you'll be

AUDIO VISUAL AID CONFERENCE COMING ON APRIL 2 AND 3

The Pennsylvania Audio-Visual Association of Teachers of Education will hold its conference at B.S.T.C. on April 2 and 3. This group meets twice a year and consists of about forty men from thirty Pennsylvania Colleges and Universities. The President of the organization is Dr. Blair E. Daniels, Director of Audio-Visual Education for Temple University. The Secretary is V. A. Champa, Director of the Film Library of Millersville State Teachers College.

There will be a session on Friday at 3:00 p.m., a dinner meeting and an evening session. On Saturday morning there will be a session, closing with a luncheon at 1:00 p.m., in the college dining room. All other meetings will be held in the Audio-Visual Aids room.

The meetings will be held in the nature of a round table discussion on the techniques of teaching, testing methods, new materials and equipment. Committee reports will be given and also reports by graduate students of the University of Pittsburgh, University of Pennsylvania, Temple University and Penn State University.

On Wednesday evening, January 27, 1954, Carver Auditorium was the scene of a production of Shakespeare's "Two Gentlemen of Verona," presented by the Barter Theatre of Virginia, a repertory company on national tour, with headquarters in Abington, Virginia.

Good characterization and interpretation, effective backgrounds and well-turned dialogue all worked together to make a fine performance.

PRESENT DAY TEACHING TREND

A recent issue of American Business Education, a joint publication of the Eastern Business Teachers Association and the National Business Teachers Association contains an article by President Harvey A. Andruss of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College on "Present Day Trends in Teaching Bookkeeping and Accounting."

This magazine is published four times a year and is distributed to the United States, where probably teachers in over half the States of three-fourths of the total enrollment of students in Business Education are located.

Doctor Andruss calls upon thirty years of experience in teaching and supervision of Bookkeeping and Accounting instruction in high schools, business colleges, teachers colleges, and colleges of business administration, and universities in both America and England, to determine whether bookkeeping instruction is in a period of stagnation or change that is so slow to be hardly distinguishable.

The amount of time given to bookkeeping instruction in high schools has decreased from three to two years and to one year in most high schools. Textbook materials have always been rich in script illustrations, therefore, bookkeeping has led the other fields of instruction in the matter of visual aids. Personal record keeping progress has been made in developing a dictionary of accounting terms and the formulation of tests which employers may give to prospective bookkeeping employees before final decisions are made as to hiring new personnel.

This article was originally a paper which was the basis of an address given by Dr. Andruss to the Eastern Business Teachers Association, Statler Hotel, New York City, in April, 1953.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Papania, of Bloomsburg, are parents of a daughter born recently at Bloomsburg Hospital.

PLACEMENT BROCHURE FOR 1954 SENT TO SCHOOL OFFICIALS

Approximately 900 copies of the 1954 Placement Brochure have been sent to school officials in Pennsylvania and neighboring states. The sixth such publication of its kind, the brochure contains about twenty-five pages featuring pictures and qualifications of all graduating seniors. It also contains a message on past placement records by President Andruss and a summary and explanation of the Brochure by Director of Placement Dr. Ernest H. Englehardt.

The book has an attractive green cover containing the title "Teachers from Bloomsburg . . . Our Graduates today . . . Your Teachers Tomorrow." It is printed in a new photo offset process, enabling a double page picture to be used for a cover background, and allowing senior pictures to be angled with identifying names beneath.

The greater portion of the brochure is lifted from the senior section of the 1954 Obiter, and is prepared by the Yearbook staff under the editorship of Al Chiscon. The book is prepared before completion of the first semester in order to better place January graduates.

Ruth Hutton Ancker, Berkeley Heights, N. J., formerly of Bloomsburg, received honorable mention for her sculpture, "Portrait of Cur-nace," at the annual New Jersey State Exhibition at the Montclair Art Museum. Mrs. Ancker's entry was chosen with 173 other oils and sculptures from 443 entries to be displayed in the exhibition.

THE FACULTY

COLLEGE WELCOMES NEW MATH TEACHER

Faculty changes took place at the beginning of the second semester with one professor being added and one instructor resigning.

Miss Ranson, dean of the day women and assistant professor of college mathematics resigned her duties at the close of the January session. Miss Waldron was appointed to the position of dean of day women to fill that vacancy.

Dr. Joseph A. McCurdy was employed to take over the mathematic classes at B.S.T.C. He is now teaching College Algebra, Analytic Geometry and Teaching of Secondary Mathematics.

Professor McCurdy did his undergraduate work at Lafayette College and received his Masters Degree at Pennsylvania State College. He obtained his Doctors Degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

After completing his education at these institutions, Mr. McCurdy traveled to Aix-en-Provence, in France, where he taught Physics and English. He has also instructed at Mt. Mercy College in Washington and Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh. Aside from his teaching career Dr. McCurdy has worked in electronics for the Westinghouse Corporation.

Clayton H. Hinkel, of the business education faculty, was awarded a fellowship in the College-Business Exchange Program sponsored by the Foundation for Economic Education, Inc.

The objective of this program is to give college teachers a comprehensive picture of the operation of a large business firm.

Beginning July 20, Mr. Hinkel spent three weeks at the Chicago headquarters of Sears, Roebuck. This was followed by three weeks with the same firm in Philadelphia.

Ralph Fisher Smith, teacher of music at B.S.T.C. from 1951-1953, is teaching this year at the Tilton School, Tilton, New Hampshire.

At the time of the retirement of Dr. Marguerite W. Kehr last spring, a resolution commending Dr. Kehr's service at B.S.T.C. was adopted by the Board of Trustees. The following is an extract of the minutes:

Upon motion made by Mr. Fernsler, seconded by Judge Kreischer, and unanimously carried, it was

RESOLVED that in view of the long and faithful service of Dr. Marguerite W. Kehr as Dean of Women at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, where she has made many contributions far beyond the call of duty, including unusual interest in student affairs, which has been successful in no small measure as Senior Faculty Adviser of the College Council, as well as her remarkable ability to make the field of Philosophy, particularly Ethics, both practical and pointed in every day living, the Board of Trustees have

RESOLVED that a testimonial of appreciation of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College be spread upon its Minutes, and further RESOLVED that the President of the College shall transmit a copy of these Resolutions to Doctor Kehr and make them available to the Editor of the Alumni Quarterly so that all may read of this acknowledgement of service so that the example of a great educator and friend of youth may become a mark of achievement to be emulated by students and faculty alike.

Dr. Ernest E. Englehardt, Director of Secondary Education at B.S.T.C., has been named northeastern district director for the 1953-54 program of the University of Pittsburgh Pennsylvania Forensic and Music League. He will help conduct the speech and music activities which the league carries on in the Pennsylvania high schools.

Miss Dorothy Stolp, former member of the faculty, in the Department of Speech, is serving this year as a member of the staff of the Oregon State College of Education, Oregon.

MISS RANSON RETIRES AT CLOSE OF 32-YEAR SERVICE

The retirement of Miss Ethel A. Ranson, assistant dean of women, from the faculty of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, after approximately thirty-two years of service, effective at the end of the first semester of the present college year, was announced by President Harvy A. Audruss of the State Teachers College.

Miss Ranson was for six years a critic teacher, and for the remaining period was assistant professor of mathematics and assistant dean of women. She holds the Degree of Bachelor of Arts from the University of Illinois, and was granted the Master of Arts Degree in 1922 from Columbia University, where she also received a special certificate as a Supervisor of Secondary School Mathematics.

Her public school experience of eight years prior to coming to Bloomsburg was as teacher and principal in three high schools in the State of Illinois. In 1950 she was President of the College PSEA unit.

In her almost a third of a century at the local institution she became one of the most popular and efficient of the teaching staff. She also made a number of close contacts in the community which has become her home.

Edwin M. Barton, of the College faculty, attended the three-day joint meeting of the National Council of Social Studies and the National Council of Geography Teachers at Hotel Statler, Buffalo, N. Y. He participated in discussions on subjects dealing with preparing young Americans for military service and academic freedom.

Prof. W. S. Rygiel of the B.S.T.C. faculty is co-author with Dr. Charles G. Reigner, president of the H. M. Rowe Co. of a typewriting textbook, "Rowe Typing," third edition, which is published by the Rowe Co. The book was copyrighted in January.

COLLEGE OPERATES

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS LIBRARY

One of the most outstanding features of the college is its Audio-Visual Aids Library. Located in the rear of Room K, Noetling Hall, the library has been operating a number of years under the capable direction of Mr. Charles Henrie. Because of the great demand for audio-visual education, B.S.T.C. has bought a supply of films which may be used on campus and by student teachers off campus.

The library is actually divided into two sections—A State-Owned Section and a College Section.

Beginning in November, 1950, the state placed a large number of vocational education films and film strips on loan in this library. Certain projectors and other equipment were also loaned to the college, which are then sent from this region to other Visual Education Libraries. In other words, the various State Teachers Colleges, together with several Pennsylvania colleges and universities, are serving as distributing centers. Public schools of Pennsylvania may secure this equipment from the regional library which serves the area. A small service fee is charged to the school district for the use of these films along with the necessary postage. The charge of a motion picture for use is one dollar per week which pays for inspection, labor, and other incidental expenses.

Films listed in the state catalogue are vocational, agricultural, homemaking, trade and industrial management, and vocational guidance. The clerks working in the library keep the records, prepare the films for shipment each week, take the films to the post office, receive the films from last week's shipment, inspect incoming films, and make necessary repairs to these films. The state-loaned equipment and films may be used on campus without charge, but student teachers off campus would have to pay the usual service fee for the use of these films. There are 337 state-owned films and 779 film strips.

Each year the college purchases films which are, of course, college-owned and are not on loan from the state. These are films which the faculty members request and feel they will use over a period of years. These films are available without charge to the faculty members and student teachers on or off campus.

This list includes films which deal with subject material taught at the college in the elementary, secondary, and business fields. Students enrolled in the Audio-Visual Course operate the projectors. After passing a prescribed test, these students are registered with the state and are then allowed to project in the classrooms around the college, and receive extra credit in the course for this extra service.

Room K has been outfitted as a projection room, but many times during the day it is necessary to have more than one room available; therefore, room J in Noetling Hall, and rooms 8 and 22 in Science Hall have been equipped with dark blinds, making them useable for projection purposes. The college-owned section of the library consists of 184 films and 134 film strips, plus numerous slides and records.

During a typical month, over 150 films will be shown on this campus. This year six new college films have been received, and fourteen more will be available next month. This is part of the program to increase the number of films the college owns and uses in the classrooms on campus.

COLLEGE PARTICIPATES IN TEST PROGRAM

The Bloomsburg State Teachers is cooperating with the University of Chicago in the validation of two new forms of college level tests of General Educational Development for use in the armed forces education program. As one of the steps in the program, sixty Science majors at Bloomsburg recently completed a battery of tests in the interpretation of reading material in the Natural Sciences under the direction of Dr. E. Paul Wagner, Professor of Psychology.

The construction of the tests is a service rendered in the interest of expanding educational opportunities for both men in the service and veterans. The tests are being tried out and standardized on students in cooperating institutions all over the country from February 1 until March 15, 1954.

In order to complete the test given to sixty Bloomsburg Science majors, six testing sessions of two hours each were required. When the results of the local tests are compared with the national norms, a steady educational and intellectual growth in the Natural Sciences is indicated from the Freshman year to the Senior year. Bloomsburg sophomores rank above the national average.

Dr. Wagner said that the College next plans to give tests in the field of English, testing primarily the correctness and effectiveness of expression.

Miss Doris Marie Iverson, of Bloomsburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Iverson, Sagatuck, Conn., became the bride of Raymond E. Hendershot, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hendershot, of Bloomsburg, in a recent ceremony at the Church of Christ, Bloomsburg. The Rev. Kenneth Gould, pastor, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The bride and groom both graduated from Bloomsburg High School. Mr. Hendershot attended B.S.T.C. and is now serving with the U. S. Army. Mrs. Hendershot is an operator for the local Bell Telephone Co.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

Scholarships and grants totalling nearly $1500 were awarded to students at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College in special exercises held December 10 in Carver Auditorium. Twenty-seven students received the awards which were made possible by funds provided by the College retail book store, General Alumni Association, recent graduating classes and the Bloomsburg chapter of the American Association of University Women.

The Bruce Albert Memorial Scholarship of $120 was presented to Doris Kryzwicki, daughter of Mrs. Irene J. Kryzwicki, East Main street, Plymouth. Dr. E. H. Nelson, president of the General Alumni Association, made the award as well as three Alumni Association grants to Stanley Kurtz, South Williamsport; Helen Rutkoski, Wilkes-Barre and Edward O'Brien, Ashland.

President Harvey A. Andruss made the awards, provided by the classes of 1950, 1951 and 1952, to Marilyn Ritter, Forty Fort; Margaret Yohn, Selinsgrove and Sally Stallone, Reading. Dr. Andruss also presented the President's Scholarship to June Reese, Millville.

College Community Grants, made possible through an allocation of a portion of the profits of the retail book store, went to the following: Judith Bolling, Scranton; Marilyn Schrader, Nanticoke; Terry Zachowski, Reading; Jacqueline Albert, Lebanon; Richard Bitner, Williamsport; Robert Evans, Coal Township; Louis Ann Geary, Cresona; Cora Gill, Wilkes-Barre; Ella Johnson, Athens; Kermit McMeans, Johnstown; Constance Ozalas, Palmerton; Charlotte Rummage, Milton; Mary Jane Trefsgar, Watontown; Janice Truscott, Scranton; Enola VanAuken, Mill City; Allen Walburn, Coal Township and Keith Weiser, Kane.

Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, chairman of the faculty committee on scholarships and grants made the presentation of the college community grants.

Two scholarships, made annually by the Bloomsburg chapter of the American Association of University Women, were presented by Mrs. Leon Maneval to Glenna Gebhard, Hazleton and Beverly Hough, Berwick.

President Harvey A. Andruss presided over the assembly and the brief devotional exercises preceding the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Krum of Bloomsburg R. D. 5, announced the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Ann to Yeoman second class William E. Thomas, son of Mrs. James Richeldifler, Bloomsburg R. D. 5. The double ring ceremony was performed January 18, at the home of the Rev. D. L. Bomboy. The bride wore a white afternoon dress, with black accessories. Her corsage was red roses. Mrs. Thomas graduated from Scott Township High School in 1951, and is now a student at B.S.T.C. The groom graduated from Scott Township High School in 1950, and is now serving in the U. S. Navy, aboard the submarine Sablefish, at New London, Conn.

MEMORIAL FOR EUGENE RYGIEL

An annual award in memory of Eugene A. Rygiel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rygiel of town, whose death occurred during the holidays, has been established for the University of Pennsylvania's "outstanding coach of the year."

The award was established by the undergraduate managers of the university in memory of the local man who was associate manager of the 1954 Red and Blue crew and active in numerous other campus activities. The award was made by the undergraduate Athletic Managerial Board on February 8 at a dinner in the Mask and Wig Club. The basis for the award was the coach's record, the improvement of his team over the record of the previous year and the inspirational quality of the man.

College Celebrates Anniversary; Dedicates Beacon

Bloomsburg State Teachers College Friday evening, February 19, dedicated a memorial beacon on Carver Hall to the students of the institution — twenty-seven in number — who made the Supreme Sacrifice in World War II.

Reg. S. Hemingway, president of the Board of Trustees, in the presentation expressed the hope that "this perpetual memorial may be a constant reminder that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty and of the incomputable price we have paid for freedom."

In his acceptance, Dr. E. H. Nelson, president of the alumni, told the large assemblage in Carver Hall auditorium, "you and I live safely tonight because these young people gave their lives. They gave up what they held dear and did it courageously. The alumni accept this memorial as a symbol of loyalty and service. May God grant us the grace to honor their memory."

Dr. Francis B. Haas, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and former president of Bloomsburg, in speaking upon the eighty-fifth anniversary of the granting of the institution a charter to train teachers, declared that "basically and fundamentally an educational institution is the teacher."

He said that the observance, particularly with regard to dedication of the memorial beacon, came appropriately between the birthday anniversaries of Washington and Lincoln. He deplored the fact that in some communities the Honor Rolls of those who served in time of crisis have become faded. "All of these should be in permanent form and I am hopeful that this may soon become a state-wide project.

"The Teachers College is related to the perpetuation of the nation in our form of government.

"Our political philosophy is dedicated to the belief that all of our citizens have a developmental opportunity. This institution has a definite place in the achievement of that aim. A great institution is a community organized for learning. This we call the spirit that is Bloomsburg."

Dean Emeritus William Boyd Sutliff, beloved member of the "Old Guard" of the institution, told interestingly of the early development of the institution.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, presided and extended greetings. He said those to whom tribute was being paid at the ceremonies had served and sacrificed in the same spirit as those who founded the institution.

Musical features included a vocal solo, "Bless This House," by Miss Diann Jones and a quartet selection, "Where'er You Walk," Handel, by a quartet composed of Richard Williams, Robert Ebner, William Phillips and Samuel Hall.

Following the invocation by Fred W. Diehl of Danville, vice president of the board of trustees, the salute to the flag was led by Paul R. Selecky, Glen Lyon, commander of the American Legion, Department for Pennsylvania.

After the presentation of the memorial beacon the honor roll was read and "Taps" sounded. Those on the honor roll are: Kenneth Morse Allen, 1944; John Lee Atkinson, 1943; Lamar K. Blass, 1937; Leonard M. Bowers, 1941; John R. Carr, 1934; Robert W. Cresswell, 1945; Joseph J. Evancho, 1937; John Hancock, 1940; James Harman, 1942; Earl J. Harris, 1942; Leo J. You and I live safely tonight because these fine boys and that fine girl have died.

Families, loved ones, teachers and classmates remember them with a feeling of pride and reverence.

With the keenness of youth they enjoyed life, but gave up everything that life holds dear that we might carry on in traditional American living.

Their courage and spirit live on forever to challenge and inspire.

When faced with the stark realities of death in closing life's game it is my belief that not one flinched, but rather prayed. "If the hurt of it sweeps my life away, I still thank God that he let me play." They were that kind of college citizens.

No finer student than Earl Harris ever walked in these halls.

The gracious courtesy of Woodrow Hummel in business life was reflected in his quick rise in military circles.

Outstanding as an all-around athlete Lamar Blass still holds some of the school's track and field records.

Mary Freas Schuyler typifies the true American girl in responding to the call of duty.

The force of their memory sharply points to one choice — CARRY ON. Their lives purchased for us that privilege.

As this dome is lighted, when darkness falls, as an after glow of their living, may we be worthy of their sacrifice.

Living alumni of Bloomsburg everywhere accept this symbol as a challenge to loyalty and service.

God grant us grace to honor their sacrifice.

COED OF THE YEAR

Miss Joan Christie, popular B.S. T.C. business student from Shenandoah, was named "Coed of the Year" at the annual Freshman Hop held in Centennial Gym.

She was crowned by Mrs. Judith Fry McCarthy, Bloomsburg, who was last year's winning "coed." She received an engraved loving cup from the college yearbook, "The Obiter," and a bracelet from Logan's Jewelry store. A full page picture of her will appear in the 1954 "Obiter."

The contest was sponsored by the college yearbook which is edited by Alfred Chiscon. Thomas Higgins was in charge of the contest.

Miss Christie is well-known for her appearances in the annual Spring Fashion Show and as a member of the College Council. She is also a class officer and feature editor of the school paper, "The Maroon and Gold." Earlier in the year, Miss Christie was named by the Varsity Club as Queen for their November dance.

The winning coed was chosen by vote of the entire student body. Eight contestants, two representing each class, were entered in the competition. They were Bobbi Roadside, Frankford; Sally Stallone, Reading; Judy Stephens, Lower Merion; Joanne McCormick, Sunbury; Hope Horne, Numidia; Olive Jean Fedrigon, Nuremberg; Louise Schullery, Delano.

Lec Vincent's orchestra provided music for the dance. The gym was transformed into an undersea wonderland for the event which was a special feature of the eighty-fifth anniversary celebration of the college.

The Lutheran Student Association honored alumni members at a supper at St. Matthew Lutheran Church, on Alumni Day. Those honored were Mrs. Ruth Trimpey Whitenight, class of 1949; Mrs. Pat Kistler Diserod and Miss Eleanor Johnson, Class of 1952; Eugene Hummel, Class of 1953 (January); and Donald Diserod and Robert Logan, who attended Bloomsburg.

OVER 95 PERCENT COLLEGE CLASS '53 EMPLOYED

Over ninety-five per cent of the 1953 graduates of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, who are available for employment, are now employed. Fifty of the total number of 188 graduates are in the armed forces and five are in graduate school, leaving 133 persons actually available for employment.

Of the 122 men in the 1953 class, forty-one per cent were called into the armed forces. This is about twice the number of men called in the service the preceding year of 1952. Thus the armed services are reducing the number of teachers available for Pennsylvania Schools.

Of the 133 graduates actually available for employment, eighty-four per cent are teaching and over twelve per cent are employed in other occupations. Of this number three are married women.

President Harvey A. Andruss announces that a decreasing number of teachers graduating from the Bloomsburg State Teachers College are going outside the state of Pennsylvania to teach.

An over-all study of about 2,000 persons graduating between the years 1941 and 1952, inclusive, is being made by the questionnaire method. Previous questionnaires have shown that the number of Bloomsburg graduates actually teaching is growing. The first study reported in 1941 showed seventy-seven per cent teaching. Later studies have showed eighty and eighty-three respectively. This survey of graduates is intended not only to find out the employment status of alumni, but also to find out the number who have pursued graduate work and those who have received graduate degrees, and offers them an opportunity to make suggestions for improvement in the teacher education curriculum of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

SALES RALLY

One of the top sales training personalities in the United States brought twenty years of selling experience to the eighth annual sales rally at the State Teachers College Thursday evening, March 4, when Les Gilbin, of Ridgewood, N. J., addressed a large crowd in Carver Auditorium. Gilbin, author of "Clerk Craft," is the originator and conductor of the famous Les Gilbin Clinic, one of the really good methods of teaching Sales Know-How.

The sales rally annually attracts hundreds of business men, store managers, clerks, salesmen and teachers of high school sales classes, but this year's event, which featured Gilbin and Jennings Randolph, assistant to the president of Capital Airlines, was one of the finest in the series.

Gilbin, who has received acclaim in every city where he has spoken, has the ability to pass knowledge and know-how to other people. In addition to his work with the sales clinic, Gilbin has served as general sales manager of a large textile company, as field representative for the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company, and as a training officer for the U. S. Air Force. The sales rally began at eight o'clock, while at 6:30 o'clock area Rotary Clubs and invited guests were entertained at dinner in the College dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. John Scrimgeour, West Pittston, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Virginia, to Stanley Aagaard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Aagaard, Raubsville, at a buffet supper at their home. Both are students at Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Baer, of Shickshinny R. D. 2 announced the engagement of their daughter, Betsy, to Thomas Schukis, son of Mrs. Anna Schukis, Mahanoy City. Both are graduates of B. S. T. C. and are teaching in the public schools of Clayton, N. J.

NAMED MANAGER

Peter G. DeRose has been named manager of the Williamsport office of The Gas Company, it was announced by C. I. Carlson, manager of the Susquehanna gas division of Scranton-Spring Brook Water Service Company. Mr. DeRose, after attending State Teachers College, enrolled in the University of Scranton from where he graduated in 1947 with a bachelor of science degree in philosophy and business administration. He entered the employ of The Gas Company as manager of the Bloomsburg office of the Gas Company in 1952.

Before his transfer to Williamsport, Mr. DeRose was manager of the firm's Sunbury office. Between 1936 and 1941 he was employed by the Magee Carpet Company in Bloomsburg, which he left to enter the United States Army Air Force, being attached for the duration to the Air Force headquarters in its administration, personnel and payroll departments.

A native of Peckville, Lackawanna County, Mr. DeRose graduated from the Blakely Borough grammar and high schools. He is a member of the Sunbury Post of the American Legion and the Bloomsburg Lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Mrs. DeRose is the former Clara Cicilioni of Peckville. They have one son, David Peter.

Mrs. Ruth Sponseller, a former resident of Mainville and wife of Dr. A. Nevin Sponseller, science teacher in Hatboro High School, was trapped beneath plaster, broken lath and the kitchen refrigerator Wednesday, December 23, wrecked and two other homes when a two-story brick house was damaged by an explosion. She was trapped for about fifteen minutes but not seriously injured.

Dr. and Mrs. Sponseller were residents of this county for some years and for much of that time Mr. Sponseller was supervising principal of the Main schools. He is a graduate of Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

The blast—two days before

Christmas—blew out the front, rear and side walls of the Sponseller home, a twin dwelling.

Bricks, plaster, household furniture and other debris littered the area after the explosion.

The other half of the building was badly damaged. A neighboring home also was damaged.

Mrs. Sponseller was treated for shock, cuts and bruises at Abington Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kline, Benton R. D. 1, announced the engagement of their daughter, Patty to John Silby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Silby, Benton R. D. 2. Miss Kline is a senior at Benton High School and works part time as secretary at Sutliff Chevrolet, Benton. Mr. Silby graduated from Benton High School with the class of 1951 and is now a junior at B. S.T.C. He is also employed part time in the maintenance accounting department of the Magee Carpet Co., Bloomsburg.

SPORTS

AWARDS PRESENTED TO HUSKY GRIDDERS IN RECENT ASSEMBLY

The Bloomsburg State Teachers College football team was honored in assembly on February 2 when many of its members were presented with various awards.

In lieu of the fourth varsity letter, gold "B" keys were awarded to Joseph Glosek, Merlyn Jones, Bernard Mont, John Nemetz, Floyd Williams, and Barney Osavala.

Gold footballs in lieu of a third varsity letter were presented to John Angus, Ed Connolley, John Paniehello, Charles Pope and Donald Thomas.

The varsity sweater, an award given in place of a second letter, was given to James Browning, Robert Cumens, Michael Lashendoek, Thomas Persing, Robert Groover, Arnie Garinger, and Thomas Higgins.

Fifteen men were awarded their varsity "B's" for the first time: Sam Belle, Harry Hughes, Charles Casper, Robert Dipipi, Charles Kwiatkoski, Robert Stroup, Les Shuda, John McCarthy, Richard Strine, Stanley Kurtz, Joseph Albano, Joseph Kwak, Frank Kaminiski, Harvey Boughner and John Koeh. Joseph "Bells" Colone was presented with a varsity sweater in recognition of his services as a student coach in both football and basketball.

The ranks of schoolboy coaches in Pennsylvania and neighboring states have been increased in recent years by a number of former athletes who won the plaudits of area fans while wearing the Maroon and Gold of Bloomsburg State Teachers College athletic teams. Although the list of Bloomsburg alumni, who are now coaching, is by no means complete, there is an indication that the College is making a substantial contribution to the coaching profession.

A number of former Husky grid stars are now teaching football fundamentals to high school squads in Pennsylvania. Included in the list are Paul Slobozien, Garfield Junior High School, Johnstown; Wayne Von Stetten and George Johns, Coatesville; James Reedy, Highspire; Billy Dugan, Montgomery; Thomas Donan, Columbia; Rodney Morgan, South Williamsport; George Peek, Perkiomen Prep; John Babb, Hughesville; David Evans, Sinking Springs; Daniel Parrell and Larry Mussoline, Hazleton; Mario Berlanda, Upper Moreland Twp.; Charles Kazmeroviez, West Pottsgrove Twp.; John Czerniakowski, Doylestown; Frank Luehnick, Palmerton; Joseph Apichella, Mt. Carmel Catholic H. S.; and Ardell Zigenfuse, Huntington.

Several one-time Bloomsburg gridders are coaching in other states: Thomas Shukis, Clayton, N. J.; Angelo Albano, Burlington, N. J.; Louis Gabriel, Woodbridge, N. J.; Willis Swales, Hillside, N. J.; George Paternoster, Pittman, N. J.; Matthew Maley, Pleasantville, N. J.; Joseph Zahora, Cape May, N. J. and George Menariak, Kinard, Fla.

Former Husky basketball standouts are teaching shooting, dribbling and other cage techniques to eager pupils in Pennsylvania high schools. The list includes Robert Andrews, Bedford; Elmer Kreiser, Columbia; Michael Evans, Stroudsburg; Billy Dugan, Montgomery; William Byham, Downingtown; John Mineemoyer, Hughesville; Joseph Chesney, Nether-Province and Thomas Reed, Kingston.

High School baseball coaches, who played the diamond sport at Bloomsburg, are Henry Brunn, Heilwood; William Byham, Downingtown; Richard Hummel, Selinsgrove and John Mineemoyer, of Hughesville.

An outstanding record has been written by intercollegiate athletic teams at Bloomsburg State Teachers College during the past seven years, according to statistics compiled by President Harvey A. Andruss. Since a comprehensive sports program was resumed following World War II, Husky teams in football, basketball, and baseball have won 72 percent of their contests. The actual log shows 147 wins, 59 losses, and 2 ties.

Football leads the way with 49 victories, nine defeats, and one tie. The powerful Huskies turned in their first undefeated season in history in 1946 when they steamrolled nine rivals and tied California Teachers for the unofficial championship of the State Teachers Colleges of Pennsylvania. In 1951, another Husky grid machine rolled eight straight victories and won the first official grid title of the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Conference.

Other Maroon and Gold football teams were runners-up for the mythical conference crown in 1947 and 1950, while the 1953 eleven ranked third in the state-wide tutor loop.

Varsity basketball, which showed a record of 25 wins in 52 games during the seasons of 1947, 1948, and 1949, has improved its record during the past four seasons, Husky cage combinations winning 44 of 68 tilts. The 1952-53 Husky dribblers won the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Conference championship with a 10-2 slate in circuit competition.

Husky baseball teams have also had considerable success, winning 54 of 79 games during the past seven seasons. An unusual record was achieved in 1949 when the Maroon and Gold diamond crew turned in twelve straight victories for the first undefeated season since the 1939 campaign.

Seven years of achievement in intercollegiate athletics is the result of the policies developed by the Faculty Committee on Athletics, of which John A. Hoeh is the chairman. Sound coaching, good material, and support from alumni and friends of the College have also been instrumental in aiding the Huskies write one of the State's outstanding records in the field of intercollegiate athletics.

The Twenty-Seventh Annual High School Invitation Basketball Tournament was held at Bloomsburg State Teachers College during the first three weeks in March. Qualifying round games for Class C schools were played Friday and Saturday, March 5 and 6, while preliminary round tilts for Classes A, B, and C were played March 9, 10, 12, and 13.

Mr. Hoch stated that it is altogether likely that Class A preliminaries would not be scheduled until March 12 and 13 in order that teams that have been eliminated from P.I.A.A. district playoffs may enter the tournament if they so desire. Semifinal games were scheduled March 17 and 18, while the "Night of Champions" was Saturday, March 20.

Last year's tourney was one of the most successful ever held at the College, and thirty-one teams vied for championship awards. Weatherly High School is the defending champion in Class A, while Minersville won the Class B crown. Scott Township's amazing Blue Jays upset highly-favored Roek Glen to cop the Class C championship.

Mr. Hoch also said that the cheerleading squads, adjudged best in their respective class, would be awarded large trophies. This competition proved to be one of the most popular innovations in tourney history. Awards were also made to the All-Tourney team and the Outstanding Player of the meet.

Inasmuch as The Quarterly went to press while the tournament was in progress, the final results will appear in the next issue.

The '53 - '54 Basketball Season

B.S.T.C. 65 WILKES 55

Bloomsburg Teachers College put its 1953-54 basketball combination on display in Centennial gymnasium Saturday evening, December 5 and it was an entirely successful inauguration. A starting combination that included only one first stringer from last year—Fred Betz, a junior from Allentown—and a whole host of replacements took the measure of the Wilkes Colonels, 65-55, before a fairly good opening night throng.

BSTC 65 MILLERSVILLE 77

It may have been lost to most of the spectators in the gloom of disappointment which enveloped Centennial gymnasium Saturday, December 12 as the Huskies were turned back, 77-65 by Millersville, but the visiting Marauders in that achievement may have established a modern scoring feat. The visitors, who did an exceptionally accurate job from the court and caged 32 of 83 shots during the night, apparently had the game by the early minutes of the fourth period and then moved away.

In snaring their seventh victory in eight starts, they became the first Husky cage team to go over the 100-mark in the point column. The former record was established only last year when the local collegians hammered West Chester, 99-96.

West Chester Teachers staked a claim for state honors in the professors' conference and at the same time dimmed Bloomsburg's honors for retaining the crown as they won, 80-72, in Centennial gym Saturday, February 6. The Golden Rams, who presented a club that had speed and resourcefulness, led continually after the Huskies deadlocked the score at nine in the first period and won more decisively than the score indicates.

The Bloomsburg Huskies ran out of power in the second half as they bowed to Lycoming College, 84 to 67, on the winner's floor Wednesday, February 10. The local collegians gave Lycoming a tough battle the first half which ended with the teams tied at 49.

The third quarter was a different story. With Lycoming pressing a little tighter, the Shellymen could pick up only a dozen points while the hosts were adding 27 to their tally. Lycoming grabbed the lead early in the session and was never headed from then on.

The Bloomsburg Huskies got off to a poor start and went on to take a 97-60 licking at the hands of league-leading Millersville on the Maurauder floor Saturday, February 20.

Trailing 27-9 at the end of one period of play, Harold Shelly's charges came back strong in the second quarter and narrowed the spread to eight points with the freshman-sophomore group leading the way. But the fast-moving Marauders seized the initiative late in the session and widened the gap to 13 points.

Going into the last period, the Huskies were on the losing end of a 61-64 margin as they headed toward their fifth defeat in 12 games.

Tribute was paid Dr. H. V. Hower on that well known Berwick physician's 90th birthday anniversary as Berwick medical doctors and dentists held a dinner in his honor. The enjoyed affair was held Wednesday, October 28, in Hotel Berwick.

A three tier cake that had 90 lighted candles was one of the features of the unusually attractive decorations for the dinner.

Dr. Hower, following his introduction by Dr. E. A. Glenn, who presided as master of ceremonies, compared this stage of his long and active life to Autumn. He said that a "country doctor" of the old days always like Autumn better than any other time of the year for in the Spring there were muddy roads, in the Summer there was the heat and in the Winter the cold. But, he commented, Autumn was the finest time of the year for the country doctor and it is the finest time of life for him.

The Berwickian impressed his listeners with his recitation of one of his favorite poems, "When the Frost is on the Pumpkin," and of other poems.

Dr. Henry J. Warman, associate professor of geography at Clark University, Worcester, Mass., has been granted sabbatical leave of absence.

A native of Scranton, Pa., Dr. Warman holds the degrees of bachelor of science in education from Bloomsburg State Teachers College, master of science in education from Temple University and doctor of philosophy from Clark. He joined the Clark faculty in 1943.

During his leave Dr. Warman will complete his research on Latin America begun last Summer with a field trip to the Caribbean. His work is supported, in part, by the Wallace W. Atwood Research Fund left to the university by the late Dr. Atwood, former Clark president, for the promotion of field studies in geography by any member of the Graduate School of Geography staff or any one of the alumni holding a graduate degree in geography. Dr. Warman will visit Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador, Guatemala and Cuba. His research will cover the physical factors of the Latin American countries, particularly climate, and regional economies.

Lt. (j.g.) Robert R. Williams, of Bloomsburg, recently received the Naval Reserve medal for ten years of faithful service. Lt. Williams is a member on the staff of the Organized Surface Division 4-59 which trains at the Williamsport center every Thursday night. During World War II, Lt. Williams served at the naval station at Sampson, N. Y., and three years aboard the U.S.S. West Point, a navy transport. He was senior watch and division officer on the West Point. Lt. Williams is married and the father of a two-year-old daughter. He is a member of the faculty of the Bloomsburg High School and is also manager of Radio Station WHLM.

The January issue of "The College," published monthly for all full-time employees of the Pennsylvania State University, had the following feature story about a member of the class of 1940:

Although he is an accomplished pianist and, although he does teach, Frank T. Kocher long ago decided that combining the two was not meant for him.

Instructor in mathematics and supervisor of mathematics in the General Extension Division of the University, Mr. Kocher observes:

"Piano teaching can be so painful! If a student makes a mistake in mathematics, I can laugh it off. Not so in music."

Frank's most recent recitals were given at the Erie Behrend and Altoona Centers, where he played the works of Mozart, Schumann, Brahms, Chopin, and Debussy for appreciative audiences of students and the public. He was also pianist for the State College Bach Choral Society presentation in December.

Mr. Kocher first joined the staff of the University at the DuBois Center and while there (1946-50) he made many public appearances as pianist and organist. There he gave his first recital with the encouragement of Merle Campbell, now administrative head at the Hazleton Center. He also appeared as member of a trio (piano, violin and cello) in company with Lowell Boorse, now assistant professor of music at Ogontz Center, and James Canning, retired businessman from Brookville.

Perhaps Frank's greatest musical thrill was the spur-of-the-moment invitation to play a number on the great Wanamaker organ in Philadelphia during a daily noon recital by the regular organist there.

No stranger to Philadelphia area, he was accompanist and soloist for the Valley Forge Song Men of Norristown on many occasions during the war.

Audiences do take the trouble to compliment recital artists, and Frank has had his share of kind words. But he is a little perplexed by the oft-repeated statement, "I just love to hear a man play the piano—there's something different about it!"

"The fact is," Frank laughed, "all I know about the piano I learned from three women."

Two of these were teachers at Bloomsburg (Mrs. William B. Sutliff and Mrs. J. K. Miller—Editor) where Mr. Kocher was graduated from the State Teachers College. One, whom he considers the most able teacher he ever met, was in her seventies. His most recent teacher was Irene Osborne Grant, who taught at Penn State when Frank was working for his master's degree in the early forties.

There's little in Frank's ancestry, as far as he has learned, to suggest the musical talent he has developed. Genealogy is his hobby, and his searching has uncovered ancestry thirteen generations back, but no famous pianists.

"My traveling around the State for the University has been helpful in the hobby. Most of my early ancestors were Pennsylvanians or people who came here from Connecticut. Libraries in various parts of the State have been quite productive."

In common with others who have taken up genealogy, Frank finds that some branches of the family are easily traced, while others are so obscure that it appears unlikely that he will find them all. To date, he estimates, over 250 ancestors have been unearthed.

If there are no musically inclined ancestors, there are enough in his own family to compensate. His wife, Sara, is an accomplished musician, but limited in time by a growing family.

Six-year-old Annette, however, may prove the exception to daddy's rule about not wanting to teach piano. Without formal instruction she has already learned several exercises on her own and delights in playing a duet with her father.

"When I was practicing for my recent recital, it was understood that I had first call on the piano," Frank related. "But Annette would hurry in after dinner to wash her hands and be first to play while I was still getting ready."

"I think I will be able to bear up under Annette's mistakes when she starts to take formal lessons."

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Keenan, Jr., of Reinerton, Pa., announce the arrival of a son, John III, on Saturday, January 9, 1954, at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Pottsville. Mrs. Keenan is the former Peggy Ann Lewis, of Phoenixville, Pa.

1950

Miss Jane Louise Kenvin, daughter of Mrs. John Kenvin, Hazleton, and the late Mr. Kenvin, became the bride of George Edward Widger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce D. Widger, Catawissa, on Saturday, February 20, in a ceremony at the home of the bride in Hazleton.

The Rev. Frederick B. Crane, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Hazleton, performed the double-ring ceremony before members of the immediate families.

The bride graduated from Hazleton High School in 1946 and from B. S. T. C. in 1950. She is teacher of the fifth grade at the Catawissa Borough School.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Catawissa High School in 1946, received his degree from B.S.T.C. in 1950. He is a laboratory chemist at the U. S. Radium Corporation, Almedia.

The marriage of Miss June Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Smith, Berwick, to Ben Duke, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Duke, Berwick, was solemnized Saturday, January 9 in the Bethany E. U. B. Church by the Rev. H. H. Jacobs. The bride graduated from Berwick High School in 1949 and from B.S.T.C. She is employed at Smith's Grocery Store. Her husband, a graduate of Berwick High School in 1949, received his degree from B.S.T.C. and is now serving with the U. S. Army. A reception was held in the church social hall after which the couple left on a wedding trip to New York City.

Miss Nancy Lou Rhoads, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Rhoads, Catawissa, is teaching in Southampton, Pa. A graduate last Spring of B.S.T.C. in elementary education and speech correction, Miss Rhoads was an active member of the Maroon and Gold Band and Sigma Alpha Eta. She is a graduate of Catawissa High School.

In a pretty candlelight service recently in Bower Memorial E.U.B. Church, Berwick, Miss Beverly Naugle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sitler, Berwick, became the bride of James E. Doty, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Doty, Sr., Bloomsburg.

The bride graduated from Berwick High School in 1950. Her husband graduated from Bloomsburg High School in 1949 and from B.S.T.C. in 1953. He has just completed basic training at Aberdeen Proving Grounds and has been assigned to Fort Dix, N. J.

Sally Harlem '29

Miss Sally Harlem, of Columbia, Pennsylvania, passed away Friday, September 4, 1953, at the Columbia Hospital.

Fred W. Fowler '33

Fred W. Fowler, forty-three, Mill street, Danville, died Sunday, January 3, 1954, when his car smashed through a section of guard railing and plunged down a steep embankment after skidding on a road slicked by ice.

The accident occurred on the Danville-Washingtonville highway, three and one-half miles north of Danville.

Fowler, a supervisor at the Merck & Company plant, Riverside, died of multiple fractures of the skull, according to John G. Smith, acting coroner for Montour County. Smith ruled that the death was accidental.

The six were returning from the Turbotville Veterans of Foreign Wars home where they had spent the evening. Rounding a curve on a downgrade, Fowler lost control of the car after hitting a patch of ice. It was raining at the time.

Milton State Police said the car slid across the highway and plowed into the guard rails, knocking down five posts. It is then that Fowler is believed to have met his death.

A veteran of World War II, Fowler served as a radar operator with the U. S. Air Force in the China-India-Burma Theater and had a number of missions to his credit. He was overseas eighteen months and reached the rank of staff sergeant.

A native of Espy, Fowler resided there until moving to Danville about two years ago. He was a graduate of Scott Township High School and the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, class of 1933.

He was a member of the Bloomsburg posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Espy Fire Company, the Liberty Fire Company, Bloomsburg; the Danville Elks, Bloomsburg Moose, the Espy Lutheran Church, the Pennsylvania Society of Engineers and Firemen's Relief Association.

Surviving are his wife, the former Frances Zeilsdorff, of Danville; his mother, Mrs. Emma Fowler, Espy; two sisters, Mrs. George Benshoff, Espy, and Verissa Fowler, at home; two brothers, Herman, Mechanicsburg, and Mark, Middletown.

Mrs. Annie S. Mausteller

Mrs. Annie S. Mausteller, eighty-seven, East Street, one of Bloomsburg's most beloved residents, died at four thirty-five Thursday morning, February 11, 1954, at the Bloomsburg Hospital, where she was admitted Saturday, January 30.

A retired elementary school teacher, Mrs. Mausteller had been ill for some time and was a patient at the hospital for six weeks in 1953.

She was born in Bloomsburg, living in the same home most of her life. She was a daughter of the late John and Mary Snyder and a widow of Elmer Mausteller. Mrs. Mausteller was a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church.

Surviving are a brother, W. C. Snyder, Bloomsburg, and a nephew, R. F. Snyder, Allentown.

Elizabeth Dreibelbis Orner

Mrs. Lawrence T. Orner, sixty-six, the former Elizabeth Dreibelbis, East Third Street, Bloomsburg, died Saturday, January 30, at her home. She had been a bed patient since December 6.

She was a graduate of B.S.T.C. and taught in this county for nine years. She was a member of the Bloomsburg Methodist Church.

Surviving are her husband, two daughters, Anna, of York; Miriam, at home; one son, William, Pottsville; three sisters, Mrs. Clark Artman, Sr., Center township and Florida; Misses Esther and Ruth Dreibelbis, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; two brothers, Arthur Dreibelbis, Greenwood township; one grandson, William David Orner, Pottsville; several nieces and nephews.

William E. Zecher

William E. Zecher, husband of Ethel Titus '06, retired secretary-treasurer of the Lebanon County Trust Company and long associated with community projects, died recently in the Good Samaritan Hospital, Lebanon.

Death was attributed to complications in an illness of several months.

Zecher, who was prominent in his active years in the work of the Chamber of Commerce, Boy Scouts and Community Concert Association, retired in 1949 after a long association with the Lebanon County Trust Company.

Mr. Zecher retired October 26, 1949, on his 65th birthday. He had been with the local bank for twenty-three years and was honored by associates in the profession at a special gathering on the occasion of his retirement.

A native of Lancaster, he entered the banking field in 1098 with the Franklin National Bank, Philadelphia. He was cashier of the Marcus Hook National Bank from 1919 to 1923, when he was named secretary-treasurer of the Bethlehem Trust Company, Bethlehem, Pa.

He became treasurer and trust officer of the Lebanon County Trust Company in 1926, succeeding Charles F. Zimmerman in those posts. In 1945, the position of secretary was added to his duties with the death of E. W. Miller. He relinquished the position of trust officer a year before his retirement.

Throughout his career in banking, he was held in high esteem by members of his profession.

Then in 1930 he was elected president of the Chamber and served in that office for one year.

He was also intensely interested in the youth of the community and served as treasurer of the Lebanon County Council of Boy Scouts for a number of years.

He was also treasurer for the community library from 1927 to 1938, a period of eleven years.

He was treasurer until his death of the Community Concert Association since its inception in 1934, and continued a lifelong interest in music.

Zecher was also affiliated with the local Mt. Lebanon Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, and during his career in Lebanon was a member of the Lebanon Rotary Club, having served as treasurer.

Mrs. Harold H. Bulla

Mrs. Harold H. Bulla, the former Helen E. Lord, fifty-six, Berwick Road, Bloomsburg, died in a violent two-car crash on Route 11 eleven miles south of Selinsgrove, at ten-thirty Sunday morning, January 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Bulla, who maintained homes in both Bloomsburg and Washington, D. C., were on their way to the nation's capitol where Bulla is employed as a printer in the Government Printing Office.

The tragedy ended many months of anxious planning towards the day when Bulla would retire and the couple would return permanently to Bloomsburg. Bulla, who had been a prisoner of the Germans during the First World War, was scheduled to complete his service with the Government within a year.

A graduate of the Bloomsburg High School and the Bloomsburg Normal School, Mrs. Bulla taught school in Mifflinville, Centre township and Snyderstown for many years. She would have observed her fifty-seventh birthday January 18. She was a member of the American Legion Auxiliary, the Eastern Star and the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Norman Foust

Mrs. Norman Foust, fifty-five, Milton R. D. 2, died in November at the Geisinger Memorial Hospital, Danville. She had been a patient there for twenty days.

She was a resident of Tirobot Township, Northumberland for several years. Daughter of the late Theodore and Ann Mouser Cromley, she was born August 17, 1898, in Liberty township, Montour county. She was a school teacher for several years in Montour county, teaching at Kaseville and Brees schools. She was a member of the Washingtonville Lutheran Church.

Evan Thomas

The death of Evan Thomas, a graduate of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College and a resident of Hanover Township, occurred Tuesday morning, October 6 at the Veterans Hospital, Wilkes-Barre. He had been in ill health the past year and underwent an operation at the Robert Packer Hospital in Sayre.

Eugene A. Rygiel

One of Bloomsburg's most promising and brilliant young scholars died Sunday, January 3 at Geisinger Hospital.

Eugene Albert Rygiel, twenty-one, son of Prof. Walter S. Rygiel, business education department faculty member of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, and Mrs. Florence L. Rygiel, of 519 East Third Street, died in the Danville institution from complications of a streptococcal throat infection.

He had become ill while studying at the University of Pennsylvania and was admitted to that institution's dispensary. With the approach of the holidays, he was returned home and then to the Geisinger where he was hospitalized for about two weeks.

The youth, a native of Wilkes-Barre, had spent most of his life in Bloomsburg where an outstanding high school career was followed by an equally distinguished college record.

He had been selected at a representative of his university as a candidate for the Rhodes Scholarship and also was a nominee for the Rotary Foundation Fellowship from this district, being proposed by the local service club. His further studies at English or Scotch Universities was virtually assured.

In Bloomsburg High School, he had distinguished himself by twice winning the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce "I Speak for Democracy" contest in 1948 and 1949, going on to win the state contest in the latter year. Salutatorian of his class in 1950, he was awarded State Senatorial Scholarship.

During his high school career his activities included membership in the National Thespians and the advisory board, the National Quill and Scroll, the National Honor Society, student commencement speaker, editor of the high school paper, Red and White, editor of the Student Handbook, associate editor of the high school yearbook, president of the Town Meeting League, class historian, master of ceremonies at the annual gym circus and recipient of Scouting's "God and Country" award. He organized the high school student council, and was active in the Dramatic Club for three years, participating in many workshop plays and taking lead roles in the presentations of "The Man Who Came To Dinner" and "Mother Was a Freshman."

In college, where he majored in history with view of entering a legal career, he was a member of the Junior Varsity Debate panel, the Varsity Debate Council, staff member of the campus radio station, Freshman Mask and Wig cast, the Dean's Advisory Council, editor-in-chief of the College Yearbook which was cited as one of the top three annuals in the nation, Delta Sigma Rho national forensic honor society, the Franklin Society for meritorious work in journalism and the Sphinx Senior Honor Society.

He was also vice president of Phi Kappa Sigma, assistant crew manager and member of the Varsity Boat Club and the All University Managerial Board. He served as the Campus Chest Drive chairman, Junior Chapel chairman, and Freshman dormitory advisor.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by one brother, Walter Vincent Rygiel, chief bacteriologist for the Winthrop-Stearns pharmaceutical company at Myerstown, Pa.

Spring paves the way for commencements and reunions. One group building up for a dignified departure; another group returning to revive the highlights of student days more, however, from a social than an academic standpoint. It's more fun to recall how you outwitted the night watchman than to remind your classmates that you were an "A" student!! As the years pile up the more meaningful those memories become. Fellowship is of the spirit — a union of hearts and not necessarily a meeting of minds. If all we carried from our Alma Mater were academic ratings, then a reunion would be a useless gesture. We need to feel with Solomon that wisdom is the principal thing but that understanding merits careful consideration.

Who can define understanding? Maybe understanding was the thought in Professor Wilbur's mind when he said goodbye to his classes at the term's end. Dr. Waller fostered this ideal in his assembly talks. Dr. Haas and Mr. Fenstemaker gave impetus to understanding when they collaborated to produce "OLD BLOOMSBURG" and "MAROON AND GOLD." In the early days of electric lights, Professor Dennis placed 8 bulbs around the cupola on Noetling Hall and then remarked with pride when the current was switched on in the dark of the night, "Normal wears her Crown tonight." General Idwal Edwards made leadership a part of understanding. A Bakeless father and son have given new horizons to thinking in terms of "ideas and objects." Countless graduates through good teaching and good community living have reflected "wisdom with understanding" at home and abroad. Just last week a letter came from a girl in England who is teaching within ten miles of famous Oxford. It is possible that her influence may transcend some highly publicized political conferences.

For a closing paragraph may I cite a pearl of real understanding. It is found in the heart of a girl who was graduated in 1944 and since that time has given to a first grade in her community a service that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Her understanding has been transferred to the hearts of the youngsters and their parents. The records of her achievements do not appear in print but live on forever in the lives of those who have been fortunate enough to feel the influence of her personality. "There's a Spirit that sends a Call."

Some fews weeks ago President Andruss stated he was mailing a follow up letter to the "Will You Help Bloomsburg?" (questionnaire). We asked and received permission to include the following statement as a part of the communication:

"If your Alumni Association is to continue as an active, aggressive force in the life of the College Community, it must have a lift in the way of financial assistance. Publication costs are up; scholarships are needed. Won't you send a contribution in the enclosed envelope by return mail? You and you and you have given the prestige to Bloomsburg that it enjoys today. With your help the coming year will be the best ever."

So far response to that appeal has been received from the following persons. We are most grateful.

Margaret L. Burdette
Ray Haring
Stephen Holtz
David M. Jones
Irene Diehl Kannand
Winton Laubach
Frances Linskill
Robert E. Martini
Mrs. Lorraine Moyer

Without help of this kind your association could not function as a worthwhile organization in the life of the college.

Alumni Day brought with it the following contributions from classes in reunion:

1954	500.00

This money will be used in the Scholarship and Loan Fund as indicated by the donors, and again your officers extend sincere thanks. We wish the contributors might experience first hand the appreciation expressed by the recipients of this help. Oft times it spells the difference between staying in college or dropping out to earn money for possible continuance in school at a later date.

Following the General Alumni meeting Saturday, May 22, we passed out envelopes with this statement printed thereon in an appeal for funds:

"They opened paths for us and our posterity . . ." This quotation reminds us again both of our debt to the great Bloomsburg leaders and teachers of the past and our duty to the young scholars of today. Our secular world bids high for the services of college youth, but the world of scholarship depends on them no less than it always did. More scholarships than those presently available are urgently needed for worthy Bloomsburg students. We hope contributions will continue to come in freely from this statement of need. Contributors will be named in the next "Quarterly."

This page has been devoted largely to a statement of need and frank requests for contributions. When such procedure ceases, then your Association ceases to function also. Singing the Alma Mater isn't enough in the way of loyalty and devotion to be "true to Bloomsburg still." Maybe this paragraph will be enough to make you angry enough to arouse sentiment enough to decide you have had enough of the writer of this article as President of the Association. Why not then elect a new President, raise a few thousand dollars for him to work with and watch yours truly grin from the side lines.

COMMENCEMENT

"The greatness of people who follow the challenge in the crisis of the moment cannot touch those who have the courage to follow the commonplace," Dr. Paul Weaver, president of Lake Erie College told the 148 members of the class of 1954 at the eighty-eighth commencement of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

Speaking on "Our Age and the Commonplace" before the first overflow attendance at a graduation exercise here in eight years, the educator said people generally manage the dramatic moments of their lives well but there is a challenge to meet the need in the common, everyday things of life.

Dr. Weaver told the graduates, "How far you will go in life is pretty well known but where you are going is locked up in the mysteries of life.

"Crises command a person's best performance. You will take in stride great moments, danger, tension and crises. If circumstances command your capacity you'll give it. But this is not the kind of life you are commencing. The kind of things you will find difficulty with is the commonplace, the haunting little stuff that occupies us during our lives; the quiet living unnoticed reality, day after day, locked in the commonplace.

The educator suggested two techniques by which people may find this challenge. One is to "constantly seek significant detail in those situations you think you know perfectly" and the other is to "act the way you would act if you felt the way you don't feel" in many trying situations of life.

"Here is where one finds the courage that matches the need of the commonplace," he said.

The degrees were conferred by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the college, after the candidates were presented by Dr. Thomas P. North, dean of instruction. The Rev. Elmer A. Keiser, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, gave the invocation. Howard F. Fenstemaker was at the console for the processional. Nelson A. Miller directed the music. The program closed with the Alma Mater.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICES

"There are three secrets of success and security—the way, the truth and the life," the Rev. James M. Singer, pastor of St. Matthew Lutheran Church, told members of the class of 1954 of the State Teachers College at baccalaureate services held in Carver Hall auditorium.

"Is the way the way of a lifting love or of subjection?" he asked the class. "Is the truth the power of force or of faith? Is the life the life of comfort and pleasure or the way of sacrifice and service? Your life shall be blessed, your life shall succeed as you hand down day by day your personal judgment of these everlasting questions.

In his introduction the minister observed, "Like a spring that is unsprung, like a runner ready to dash into the race at the sound of the starting gun, you young people are poised here today ready to lean into life to discover what this graduation has done for you."

He spoke from the text, "Jesus saith unto him, 'I am the way, the truth and the life,'" John 14:6, and on the theme, "Three Secrets."

"There is no smooth super high-

ALUMNI MEETING

Bernard J. Kelley, Philadelphia attorney and civic leader and a member of the class of 1913, and Jesse Y. Shambach, educator, were honored by fellow graduates of the Teachers College when they were presented with the Distinguished Service Awards of the graduate body. The presentations were the highlight of the general meeting.

Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, a classmate of Mr. Kelley at Bloomsburg and a member of the college faculty, made the presentation to him. Fred W. Diehl, superintendent of Montour county schools, a trustee at the College and a director of the Alumni Association, made the presentation to Mr. Shambach.

Both of the recipients in their response told of what inspiration they had gained from their attendance at "Old Normal."

A new dining hall, probably to be located on the site of the tennis courts immediately back of Waller Hall, and with the present dining room space to be used for the library are regarded as probable improvements in the near future, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the Teachers College, told graduates at the general meeting.

Also on the program is a men's dormitory, he said, and some day there will probably be a first floor auditorium. This latter project has been recommended in reports for many years.

It is highly unlikely, however, that Carver Hall will ever be razed for so much of the history of the institution is associated with this building.

The College president said he would be opposed to demolishing this building and is quite sure if any such project is ever contemplated the alumni will rise en masse and voice opposition.

Bloomsburg Teachers College is getting good students but needs more. The educator said that the important problem today is to obtain good students. He spoke of the majority of the students coming from the immediate service area of the college, but of many other sections being represented.

A plea for more finances so that the alumni can be increasingly active was voiced by Dr. E. H. Nelson, president of the graduates, and Edward F. Schuyler.

Reelected to the board of directors for three year terms were Fred W. Diehl of Danville and Mrs. C. C. Housenick and Edward Schuyler, of Bloomsburg.

Members of the class of 1904, the honored class of the reunion, were seated on the stage for the two-hour program. Class reports were a feature. Lindley H. Dennis, who returned from the Middle East to be in reunion with the class of 1899, made the report of the nominating committee.

Miss Dorothy L. Schmidt, a missionary in Japan and a prisoner of the Japanese government through much of World War II, was back for a reunion of the class of 1929. She returns to the United States once in six years.

She has been stationed but three miles from the Russian border, but is being transferred to Tokyo. Miss Schmidt spoke of her work recently at the First Presbyterian church in Bloomsburg.

FOUR SUMMER SESSIONS AT B.S.T.C.

A rearrangement of the summer session calendar of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College will result in four three-weeks sessions being offered.

In former years, a pre-session of three weeks was followed by a regular session of six weeks, and a post session of three weeks in length will conclude the summer program.

The first three-weeks session began Monday, June seventh; the second three weeks on Monday, June 28; the third—Monday, July 19, and the final three weeks on Monday, August 9. A wide variety of courses will be offered during the sessions.

way stretching out before you on which you may speed to success by throwing your life into high gear and racing on into the future. There is no pathway leading out into life on which there are strewn countless opportunities so that all you need is step out into life and pick them up.

"But there is a life out there for each of you—a wonderful life, filled with blessings, privileges and opportunities for you who have the heart and soul and spiritual insight to know the secrets which shall win for you success and everlasting security."

The Rev. Mr. Singer said there are those who cry "Succeed by subjecting men to make them slaves of the great empires." He continued, "their cries ring down the long, hollow hallways of history and we listen as if they were truth.

"Quietly but strongly speaks Jesus: this is the way. Follow me! I am the way of lifting men and loving them. To the words of Jesus there is added the chorus of the Schweitzers, the Livingstones and the Lincolns—of the Clara Bartons and the Florence Nightingales who cry 'Life and love, this is the way.'

"What is truth—is it force or is it faith? Are the crowds right or is Christ? The life! The world says 'Live it up. Get out of it all you can get,' is a modern slogan. But Jesus says, 'I am the life.' Live quietly, happily. Be helpful. Give us much as you can give, sacrifice and serve and you shall have a wonderful life."

The College quartet composed of Joyce Lundy, Bloomsburg; Beverly Bryan, Montoursville; Russell Bubbenmoyer, Hamburg and Robert Ebner, Muncy, with Mary Jo Williams, Trucksville, accompanist, sang "A Hope Carol." President Harvey A. Andruss read the Scripture.

Steve F. Kriss, of Berwick, has been promoted to the rank of Captain in the Marine Corps. He is stationed at the Marine Corps School at Quantico, Virginia.

HONORED BY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Bernard J. Kelley

Mr. Kelley, a native of Exeter borough, graduated from the Normal School in 1913. He taught in the grammar grades of Exeter until his appointment as midshipman to the U. S. Naval Academy as the result of a competitive examination. He graduated from the academy on June 6, 1919, being commissioned as ensign in the U. S. Navy and assigned to duty to the U. S. S. New Mexico, flagship of the Pacific fleet.

Two years later, when the Commander of the Fleet transferred his flag to the newly commissioned U. S. S. California, Mr. Kelley, then a lieutenant, junior grade, was assigned to that ship where he remained for more than two years and then resigned to enter the law school of the University of Pennsylvania. While with the Pacific fleet, he was singled out by the Secretary of the Navy for excellence in engineering efficiency for which he received a letter of commendation.

He graduated from the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania in 1926 with the degree of Bachelor of Laws and served as president of his class. He has been a member of the Philadelphia Bar since that time and has offices in Philadelphia.

For five years he served as a Special Deputy Attorney General of Pennsylvania and for over ten years was a member of the Board of Law Examiners of Philadelphia County by appointment of the Board of Judges.

During World War II, he was personnel officer, then industrial relations officer, with rank of captain, United States Naval Reserve, at the Philadelphia Naval Ship Yard where he was charged with the responsibility of handling the civilian personnel, there being more than 42,000 employees of the yard at that time.

For meritorious service during World War II, he received a citation from the Secretary of the Navy and was authorized to wear the Commendation Ribbon.

After the war, the government prevailed upon him to become the manager of the Philadelphia agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, serving most of Pennsylvania and New Jersey and all of Delaware, and there he served for five years during which time the President of the United States called him to Washington and offered him the post of Director of the R.F.C., which Mr. Kelley humbly declined.

On January 1, 1952, a new mayor took office in Philadelphia and a new city charter which had been passed by the voters the preceding year became effective. The charter called for a managing director under the new city management form of government and Mr. Kelley became the first deputy managing director of the City of Philadelphia. At about the same time, the City Council of Philadelphia elected him as one of the city representatives on the Board of the Philadelphia Transportation Co.

In November, 1953, he became for the first time in his career, a candidate for office, that of judge of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia and while, as a Democratic candidate he polled more than 285,000 votes, he failed of election by less than two per cent of the total vote.

As a captain in the U. S. Naval Reserve he is the commanding officer of the Industrial Relations Unit of the Fourth Naval District. He is a member of numerous business and social organizations, and in the Philadelphia Bar Association is active as a member of the Committee on Municipal Administration. He is a former vice-president of the Philadelphia Federal Bar Association. He is married and has five children.

J. Y. Shambach

Mr. Shambach was graduated with honors from the State Normal School, Bloomsburg and the University of Michigan (Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi). He also studied at the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia University.

Before going to Harrisburg he served as teacher in a rural school, a grade school, and a high school, principal of a high school, supervising principal, and superintendent of schools.

Since accepting the invitation of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to become a staff member in the department he has served as bureau director, division chief, and secretary of the Public School Employees' Retirement Board. Some of his activities since entering the department follow:

DR. NORTH SERVES FOR QUARTER-CENTURY

Dr. Thomas P. North, popular Dean of Instruction at Bloomsburg State Teachers College, this year celebrated his twenty-fifth year at Bloomsburg.

Born in 1893 in Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, Dr. North received his bachelor's degree from Pennsylvania State University in 1917, and his master's degree from the same institution in 1927. During this intervening period, Dr. North began his teaching career as a science teacher and was one of the commonwealth's first teachers of vocational agriculture under the provision of the Smith-Hughes Act. In 1919 he became the supervising principal of a consolidated school in Jefferson County.

In his desire for further education, he wasted no time in obtaining his Doctor of Philosophy degree from Cornell University in 1929. Immediately after his graduation, he replaced Prof. Oscar Hugh Bakeless on the B.S.T.C. faculty and is celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of his arrival at the "friendly college" this year.

Until 1941, Dr. North's skills were utilized in the teaching field, particularly in the course in Introduction to Education, now designated as Professional Orientation on the 1954 schedule cards.

Since 1941 Dr. North has devoted his time and efforts to improving the standards and ideals of B.S.T.C. as its Dean of Instruction.

In Dr. North's twenty-five enjoyable and profitable years on the B.S.T.C. faculty, he places high on his list of "greats" his small part in the development of students' responsibility and their more mature mental outlook. This increased interest is apparent not only in the Community Government Association, but also in the student participation in various committees and organizations on campus.

Another of the most notable improvements on our campus during the past quarter century, to Dean North, has been the progressively higher quality of students who both enter and graduate from Bloomsburg State Teachers College. In his own words, "This higher standard is especially gratifying to the administration."

With the centralization of the administration offices on the first floor of Carver Hall, Dr. North believes we will be able to increase our service to the students and alumni of B.S.T.C.

Matters pertaining to instruction and accreditation are expedited through progressive methods of organization in Dean North's new offices.

Dr. North has devoted himself to the cause of teacher education and teaching as a profession. He has been an indefatigable worker in both the Pennsylvania State Education Association and the National Education Association, has held membership on the following committees of the Pennsylvania State Education Association: Vice President and President of Higher Education, member of Executive Council, first chairman of the Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards. At present he is member of the advisory committee to the State Council of Education and acts in all advisory capacity to the National Commission on Teacher Education. Dr. North has served as a consultant on teacher education on the national level from U. of New Hampshire to Stanford U. and had the honor to represent Pennsylvania at the Clinic on education for the State of Michigan.

EDUCATION IN BETTER LIFE

"The goal of national betterment can only be attained through a sound educational system," Edmund Longo, Kelayres, a member of the 1954 graduating class of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, declared Wednesday, May 19 in an Ivy Day oration. Speaking on the subject, "The Challenge of Preparing Youth to Live in the World of Tomorrow," Longo said, "It is our responsibility to see to it that our system of education continues to provide the fertile and rich soil which a free and democratic society needs for sustenance."

Ivy Day exercises, one of the oldest traditions at Bloomsburg, were held in the Waller Court immediately following the Honor Assembly. William Jacobs, Manchester, president of the class, presided over the ceremonies. Mr. Jacobs also planted the ivy and presented the spade to Arnold Garinger, Harvey's Lake, president of the Class of 1955.

During the program, Myra Albertson, Watontown, and Mary Jo Williams, Trucksville, presented a piano duet, "Dance Ukraine," by Kirchner. The class sang, "Halls of Ivy" and the Alma Mater. Mr. Nelson A. Miller was the director for group singing. Co-chairmen of the Ivy Day Exercises Committee were Patricia Boyle, Hazleton and Edmund Longo, Kelayres. Mr. Earl A. SALES RALLY

"Handle yourself and what you sell with a great deal of respect," Les Giblin, advised an overflow audience attending the Teachers College Sales Rally Thursday evening, March 4.

Over 1,000 sales persons, service club members, members of chambers of commerce and others crowded into Carver Hall auditorium for the eighth annual and best rally staged by the institution.

Jennings Randolph, former West Virginia congressman and one of two featured speakers, gave an interesting address following the talk by Giblin, director of the famous Les Giblin Clinic, national sales training center.

Giblin cited "The most important thing in selling is the art of handling people." In this regard he advised as most important:

Recognize people for what they are.

And Smile!

Giblin interspersed his talk with humorous anecdotes and timely stories illustrating the know-hows of successful salesmanship.

Randolph, now assistant to the president of Capitol Airlines, pointed out that no matter what your endeavor, "Selling is everybody's business." He stressed that you must learn to appreciate people, know how to fail intelligently, and look to the future.

The speakers were introduced by Ed Garhammer, first president of the Wilkes-Barre-Scranton National Sales Executives. Student chairman was Richard Hurtt of Forty Fort. John A. Hoch, college director of public relations, extended welcome in the absence of Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, college president, who was attending a convention in Chicago.

B.S.T.C. FASHION SHOW

Billowing skirts, aided by layers of crinoline petticoats, made outstanding summer fashion news on Friday, May 7, at the annual show presented at B.S.T.C.'s Carver Hall. The theme was "Fashions 'Round the Clock."

Only a few slim-skirted models were shown while the bouffant style repeated itself in cool cottons for afternoon wear, glamorous gowns for evening and even in the crisp frocks worn by the toddlers.

Other style notes were the predominant use of pink, the popularity of the rose motif, both in material design and in decoration and the introduction of the bloomer-type bathing suit.

New popular shades are lettuce green, bieve, burnt orange and a bright coral. Plaids appear in bathing suits along with small patterned materials. Everglaze cottons have the appearance of satin in some of the lovely afternoon dresses.

Hats ran the gamut from pill box to large eye-shading styles of horsehair.

An added feature this year was the display of $4,000 worth of jewelry and watches. Items were coordinated to the costumes of the various models and lent a sparkling note to the show.

Phyllis McLaren, Orlando, Fla., in a rose-splashed cotton print frock, was the fashion coordinator and described the clothing which was modeled. Organ music for the show was provided by Mary Jane Miller, Williamsport.

College girl models were Shirley Eveland, Joanne Heisley, Patricia Boyle, Dolores Doyle, Margaret Shultz, Olive Jean Fedrigon, Sara Jane Hoffman, Relda Rohrbach, Grace Histed, Janet Ference, Judith Stephens, Barbara Bennett, Doris Kryzwicki, Joan Christie, Virginia Scrimgeour, Alice Eyer, Bobbi Roadside, Joan Rieder.

Stealing the spotlight were Kathy and Kay Hummel, tiny twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Hummel, Bloomsburg, who modeled toddler styles. Other children in the show were Mary Elizabeth Knorr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Lee Knorr; Linda Haney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haney; Arden Polk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Polk, Bloomsburg.

Jeanne Faux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larue Faux, was the poised mannequin for pre-teen fashions.

Cooperating merchants were Arcus, Deisroth's, Dixie Shop, W. T. Grant, Dorothy Kashner Millinery, Harry Logan, jeweler, J. C. Penney Co., Ruth Corset and Lingerie Shop and Snyder's Millinery.

Abstract designs of time symbols and a jet-black backdrop formed the unique stage setting executed by Daniel Kressler. Mrs. Charles Beeman was adviser and Edward Chase was member of the stage committee.

Charles H. Henrie of the BSTC faculty was producer of the annual show. Evelyn Weaver was chairman of the store coordinators which included Bertie Knouse, Marian Durico, Ann Ryan, Jean Naughton, Joanne Hester, Sally Stallone, Eileen Gerocky, Marlene Gobster, Mary Faith Fawcett, Judy Ulmer and Mary Hoeffecker.

MISS WEIR SPEAKS AT MEETING ASSOCIATION

Need of retarded children having a place in the community was stressed in an interesting moving picture entitled "Search," during a recent meeting of the Columbia county chapter of the Association for Retarded Children. The wonderful part of the special education program takes in aiding their morale was stressed. The film also dealt with the cruelty of both adults and children who, within hearing difference of the retarded, speak of the "differences" between retarded and entirely normal children.

Miss Clara B. Weir, director of speech and hearing at BSTC, gave an impressive talk at the session, which was held in BSTC's Noetling Hall. She spoke of the patience and understanding that are needed both at home and in school in aiding the retarded. She told of improvement made to speech through work on muscular co-ordination.

Much favorable comment was attracted by her talk and by the work of several of her students, members of Sigma Alpha Eta, national speech and hearing fraternity.

ELLA KLINE RETIRES

"Hiya, hon!"

Every B.S.T.C. student from 1904 to 1954 has heard this cheery greeting from one of the most well-liked and indispensable persons at the college on the hill. Ella Kline is leaving after fifty years of faithful service, and with her will go a bit of the "spirit that is Bloomsburg."

Returning graduates always found Ella as friendly and smiling as the day they wandered through Waller or North Hall seeking—and finding in her—a companion who was willing to listen to all their problems. To many students, Ella was their introduction to Bloomsburg dorm life when they saw her scurrying through empty halls in September. And what B.S.T.C. shining face peeking in the door dorm-dweller could forget her each Wednesday morning to ask for the sheets?

To Ella, the high spots of the college year have been Homecoming and Commencement, because on these occasions she welcomed back her countless friends and recalls with them their experiences at Bloomsburg. No matter how hard she must work on extra room preparations, she looked forward with eager anticipation to these occasions each Fall and Spring.

In Ella's opinion, B.S.T.C. students have changed very little in her half-century of meeting new people. They are all "her children" and she loves to hear from them at Christmas and on her birthday—December 23.

Born in 1887 in Rohrsburg, Pa., Ella Kline came to Bloomsburg to "help out" in 1904. She left a year later, but returned in 1913 to stay for several years. 1918 saw her final return to B.S.T.C. and Ella has been a part of Bloomsburg life ever since.

Ella admits that when she first came to B.S.T.C. she had no intention of staying fifty years, but came merely to temporarily help in the housekeeping department. She recalls such students as Dr. Kimber C. Kuster and Mr. Howard Fenstermaker, and has seen the terms of six college presidents.

The modern fire towers and entrances are among the biggest improvements, in Ella's opinion, to the college. She clearly recalls the inside winding stairways that were the only means of entering or leaving the dormitories. Also, the new pressrooms and bathrooms are a vast improvement over the crowded facilities that existed before their installation. She remembers plainly the dark room beneath the present lounge in which the coeds ironed their clothes in by-gone years.

Embroidering and raising African violets are Ella's chief hobbies, as evidenced by her window full of beautiful plants and the numerous delicately embroidered cloths in her two-room apartment in Waller Hall.

A special tea honoring her fifty years of work at B.S.T.C. and the Waller Hall gifts of an autograph book and a china wedgwood college plate are the highlights of Ella's last year at Bloomsburg. One of her most treasured possessions now is the 1954 edition of the OBITER, which was also presented to her at the courtyard tea held on Monday, May 17, 1954.

Ella has never begrudged a moment of her time on the campus for her life at B.S.T.C. has been more fun than work. Her greatest wish is that all "her children" realize how much she appreciates the kindness and love everyone has given her in her life here. Although she will be lonesome upon first leaving Bloomsburg, the very best way to show appreciation for her half-century of outstanding service would be to remember Ella with a Christmas or birthday card sent to her address—Orangeville R. D. 1, Pennsylvania.

PRESENTED PLAY

On Tuesday evening, April 16, Carver Hall Auditorium was the scene of one of B.S.T.C.'s most unforgettable and enjoyable entertainments of the college year.

To a large and highly appreciative audience, the cast of "Blithe Spirit" presented an entertaining and memorable version of Noel Coward's hit play.

Superb acting on the part of William Ottaviani as Charles Condomine, Joan Curilla as his second wife Ruth, Avery Williams as his first wife Elvira, Jean Robison as Madame Arcati, Joanne Graeber as the maid Edith, and James Luchs and Wylla Bowman as Dr. and Mrs. Bradman made the play one of the most successful ever.

Mr. Boyd Buckingham, B.S.T.C. speech faculty member, directed this improbable farce, with Dick Williams assisting as student director. Stage Manager Gerald Houseknecht and prompters Glena Gebhard and Donna Wilcox aided in the smoothness and efficiency back stage.

Top honors of the men's senior class at the University of Pennsylvania went to four seniors—with one principal award conferred posthumously on Eugene A. Rygiel, son of Prof. and Mrs. Walter Rygiel, Bloomsburg, whose death occurred in January.

This was the Class of 1946 award for religious, scholastic, athletic and extra curricular leadership. The class also dedicated its year book to Rygiel, who was editor-in-chief.

The awards were made as male undergraduates held their traditional hey day exercises at the university.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED

Another step in the modernization program of the Administrative Offices' area of the Teachers College is the painting of the exterior of Carver Hall.

The main part of this building is the oldest structure on the campus (erected in 1867), and additions have been made over a period of almost ninety years. There are four different colors of brick, the original building being constructed of brick burned from Bloomsburg shale, and manufactured locally.

Smith, Lippi and Jones, architects from Wilkes-Barre, have been appointed by the Department of Property and Supplies to draw plans for a contract which will provide for a new entrance to Carver Hall, the completion of the Waller Hall project, and the modernization of the first floor of Waller Hall, running along the entire first floor corridor.

The total cost of all these projects, along with the recent refurnishing of the Administrative Offices in Carver Hall, is expected to cost approximately $100,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Gilbert, R. D. 5, Bloomsburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Katherine, to Russel C. Davis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel C. Davis, Luzerne. An August wedding is planned. Miss Gilbert attended B.S.T.C. and is now a senior student at Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia. Mr. Davis, a graduate of B.S.T.C., is now a member of the faculty at Jamesburg High School in New Jersey.

Class Reunions

Class reunions, as always, stole the show at the College Alumni Day festivities.

The ideal weather "flooded" the campus with graduates and friends for what Dr. E. H. Nelson, president of the Alumni Association, and Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, declared one of the finest and largest Alumni Day programs in history.

Two of the class of 1888, Mrs. Annie S. Nuss and Mrs. John T. Jones, were present. Mrs. J. S. John represented the class of 1895.

Class of 1894

Oldest class in reunion was the class of 1894 with four back for a delightful day. They were Willets K. Beagle, Williamsport; Minnie Hehl Buck, Bloomsburg; Mary Frymire Kirk, Watsonstown, and Lula Appleman Brunstetter, Williamsport.

The class of 1899 had an exceptionally fine turnout.

Members registering were Carrie Flick Redline, John C. Redline, R. D. 5, Sarasota, Fla.; Lillian Hilday Scott, Bloomsburg; Cunia Hollopater Persing, Philadelphia; Gertrude E. Morris, Scranton; Rush Shaffer, Danville; Gertrude Rinker, Bloomsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene K. Richard, Elysburg; Bessie Creveling, Bloomsburg; L. H. Dennis, Chevy Chase, Md.; Eloise E. Hicks, Espy; Mae Hanke Brandon, West Pittston; Emma Roberts Saverance, Los Angeles, Calif.; Edna Welliver Fortner, Bloomsburg; B. F. Burns, Northumberland; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pace, Forty Fort.

The fiftieth reunion of the class of 1904 was attended by the following:

Mrs. Irene Ikeler Sloan, Muncy, Pa.
Emma Kliminiski, Mt. Carmel, Pa., retired after 47 years of teaching.

Mrs. Leona Kester Lawton, Millville, Pa.

Aaron Killmer, President of Class, Stouchsburg, Pa.

James Malone, Shenandoah and Atlantic City.

Mrs. Mabel Mertz Dixon, Belle Mead, N. J.

Mrs. Mary Robbins Bower, Berwick, Pa.

Margaret Seely, Berwick R. D., Pa.
Mrs. Elizabeth Specht Martin, Hazleton, Pa.

Robert Eugene Stead, Plymouth, Pa.
Harry G. Trathen, retired postal employee, Ashland, Pa.

Dr. A. K. Aldinger, Milwaukee, Wis.
Herbert E. Rawlinson, California

The class and guests assembled in the lobby and enjoyed visiting together until we entered the dining room, to be served a delicious turkey dinner, given by the Alumni Association. Dr. Nelson, Alumni president, introduced every one present, including those of older classes, who were also guests. After the banquet we retired to the faculty room. Aaron Kilmer, 1904 president, conducted the meeting. We sang "We're here for fun" and "So say we all of us," after which he called the roll with each one responding with greetings. Business followed.

The class voted to give college permission to move the fountain to campus at their expense if they wished. Some were very much opposed to its removal. The class sentiment was that money could do more good if put into scholarship fund. A collection amounting to $210.00 was received. It was presented to Dr. Nelson Saturday morning in the auditorium by Harry Trathen, to be added to the scholarship fund. It is hoped the sum may be increased by those not able to attend. President Kilmer gave an invitation to members to contribute to program.

Harry Trathen, poet and lover of poetry, read some beautiful poems. Herbert Rawlinson entertained with a series of jokes and told of his life since graduation. Harold Cryder recited a humorous poem.

Saturday morning we assembled on the platform in the auditorium. President Kilmer spoke in behalf of the class. He gave the highlights of our class activities 50 years ago, praising our teachers and recognizing Dr. Sutliff, our only living teacher. He asked Dr. Aldinger how he already had doctor before his name when he graduated in 1904. Dr. Aldinger gave events leading up to that time.

After luncheon in dining room, we again went to the faculty room for more reminiscing. As President Kilmer had to leave he turned the meeting over to Harry Trathen. We spent time trying to get names and addresses corrected of living members, and complete list of deceased.

In closing Mr. Trathen had us form a friendship circle and each repeated "God be with you until we meet again" followed by prayer by Mr. Trathen. We wore white cards with '04 in red. We were easily identified. We had letters from Theresa Hammond Dinnen, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Anna Goyituey Canfield, Albuquerque, N. M.; Henrietta Hinkel Howell, Hanover, Pa.

We were given miniature copies of the teaching certificate which was issued in those days. Our guests were Mrs. Trathen, Mrs. Cogswell, Mr. Thielman, Mr. Saylor and daughter Elizabeth, Mr. Lawton, two sisters of Mrs. Howell, Mabel Mertz Dixon's sister, Mr. J. R. Bower and Mrs. Rawlinson.

The time was spent largely in reminiscing of "Normal" days and the events of the intervening 40 years. The class list was checked over to correct addresses in as many instances as possible. Mrs.

Mary E. Brown, Wilkes-Barre, and P. L. Brunstetter, Catawissa, were appointed co-chairmen to lay plans for the 45th year reunion to be held in 1959.

The reunion group decided to make a contribution to the Alumni Fund, the collection of which would be made at the group dinner.

The meeting adjourned and at 5:00 P. M. met in the College dining room for a class dinner where a very excellent meal was served. The time was spent in group singing and further reminiscing. A group picture was taken. The contribution to the Alumni Fund was $27.00. This amount was later

Mrs. Miltons Bolen Klinetob was elected President of the Department of Classroom Teachers of the Pennsylvania State Education Association at the state convention held in Harrisburg in December, 1953.

Mrs. Klinetob is teacher of sixth grade in the Central School, Plymouth, Pa.

Miss Dorothy L. Schmidt, Presbyterian missionary on furlough from Japan, attended her class reunion and also spoke in the First Presbyterian Church of Bloomsburg on Sunday, May 23, in connection with Divine Worship.

Miss Schmidt is a graduate of Bloomsburg State Teachers College. Her home is in Scranton.

For a number of years, Miss Schmidt has been a commissioned missionary of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., serving under the Board of Foreign Missions.

She is head of the English and religious departments of Hokusei Gakuin, a Presbyterian Mission school for girls in Sapporo on the island of Hokkaido, most northern of the Japanese group of islands. This is a five year high school and junior college with an enrollment of over twelve hundred girls.

In addition to her work in the school Miss Schmidt teaches a Bible class at home, works among alumnae and does extensive evangelistic work in the churches of the area.

Miss Schmidt first went to Japan in 1937, just at the beginning of the Sino-Japanese war. By September, 1941, the political situation made it necessary for Americans to leave Japan, and Miss Schmidt was transferred to Silliman University in the Philippines. Here, too, the war interrupted her work almost as soon as she started, and she spent the next three years in Japanese interment camps.

As soon as possible after the war she returned to Japan, and again took up her work at Hokusei Gakuin. She found many changes in the life of the school, and in the attitude of the students, and many new demands made upon her time by groups outside the school.

Postwar Japan, she says, is keenly interested in American ideas of democracy, education, and women's place in modern society, and on many occasions missionaries have the opportunity to give a Christian interpretation to these questions. Miss Schmidt is frequently called upon to lead meetings, conduct forums or direct conference programs.

After completing work at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, Miss Schmidt studied at Biblical Theological Seminary in New York City. Before she became a missionary to Japan, she taught for five years at Hatboro, Pennsylvania.

Beginning in 1955, Miss Schmidt's work in Japan will be partially supported by contributions from the Bloomsburg Presbyterian Church. She expects to sail for Japan late in July of this year.

Abraham Rarich '03

The following is quoted from the "News-Letter" issued by the Supreme Council 33rd degree, Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite, Northern Masonic Jurisdiction, the United States of America:

It was a shock to learn of the death — on February 1, 1954 — of Ill. Abraham Rarich, 33°, who recently retired as Secretary of the Scottish Rite Bodies of Scranton, Pennsylvania. The Grand Secretary General, Ill. F. Ehner Raschig, 33°, had just written an appreciative tribute to this veteran who, since March 16, 1914, had rendered faithful and competent service.

"It is doubtful," said Ill. Bro. Raschig, "if any other member of the Rite in the Northern Masonic Jurisdiction had served, in that capacity, continuously for forty years — an amazing record for any organization."

Abraham Rarich, born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, on October 5, 1881, a graduate of Bloomsburg State Normal School, was a school teacher and later entered the field of insurance. He was raised a Master Mason in Union Lodge No. 291 on June 4, 1909, and received the degrees of the Scottish Rite in March, 1910. Steadfast loyalty, efficiency and a thorough mastery of detail marked his secretarial career. All his many friends wished for him a happy retirement — but seriously impaired health intervened.

The following editorial appeared in The Morning Press, Bloomsburg, Saturday, July 24, 1954:

GOOD NEWS

Announcement that the Teachers College expects a larger freshman class this fall than a year ago is certainly good news, not only to the town but to the entire area.

The the advance registration at the present is running twenty percent ahead of 1953 is the result of two things, a splendid product in education to offer and a good recruiting program.

It will be noted, too, that the number entering the business education curriculum is the largest since immediately following World War II.

One of the greatest advancements our College ever made was to secure that business course, although there were some disappointed at the time that we did not get physical education course or a program in a couple of other fields.

As it has worked out Bloomsburg has profited greatly by its business school. It made a good one from the start and has long been rated one of the best in the country.

The present president of the institution, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, was the first head of the department. It has spread the fame of the school and of the community.

One of the things we remember from the days of World War II is that many of the local boys wrote from all parts of the nation to state they had met strangers who knew about Bloomsburg because of its business school.

There was a natural rise in the male enrollment of all schools at the close of that conflict because of the hundreds of thousands of GI's going back to school. Our male enrollment was up substantially. But that it has stayed up is largely due to the business department.

We don't have the largest Teachers College in the commonwealth. It is third and probably never will get higher ranking for West Chester and Indiana, both close to cities, are twice as large as the local school.

But Bloomsburg has been holding its own in enrollment exceptionally well and most years has done better in that regard than the other teacher institutions. That's a tribute to the job that is being done.

There's a lot of competition in the field of higher education, particularly right around here, and to keep advancing takes a great deal of work for it can be accomplished on merit alone.

There have always been several institutions of higher learning in our service area or close by and since the close of World War II three such institutions have come into being. Bucknell Junior College at Wilkes-Barre became Wilkes, with a four-year course. Kings was established in the same city. Lycoming College rose from Dickinson Junior College.

These institutions were added to Bucknell, Susquehanna and the University of Scranton. But even so the Teachers College here is forging ahead. We certainly can be proud of that achievement.

Doctor Andruss Completes Fifteen Years As President of College

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss completed fifteen years as president of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College and is beginning his twenty-fifth year of service.

Coming to Bloomsburg from the Indiana State Teachers College in 1930, Doctor Andruss organized and headed the Department of Business for seven years and then served two years as Dean of Instruction.

His period of service was interrupted in 1945, when the board of trustees, of which Reg. S. Hemingway is president, granted him a leave of absence of six months to help in the organization of the First American Army University located at Oxford, England, where he headed the Department of Accounting in the Division of Business Administration.

The college year 1954-55 has opened with an expected enrollment which is in excess of that of last year, and a freshman enrollment which is twenty per cent larger than last year.

Along with the expenditure, or approval expenditure, of more than $1,000,000 in the last two years for additions to or renovations of the college plant, the following developments may be noted during the last decade and a half.

1939—Beginning of an aviation program in cooperation with the Bloomsburg Airport, which resulted in the training of more than 1,000 civilian, Army, and Navy Pilots.

1941—Beginning of the provision of facilities for more than 1500 students enrolled in engineering, management, and science war training courses.

1942—Cooperation with Bloomsburg Hospital in the training of nurses.

1943—Inauguration of the only Navy V-5 (Deck Officer) training program in a Pennsylvania Teachers College.

1947—Freshman liberal arts program in cooperation with Pennsylvania State College.

195?—Proposals are now being made for the offering of graduate courses in certain fields.

Since World War II the Bloomsburg State Teachers College has not only continued to be approved by the Pennsylvania State Council of Education, but has been accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and revisited by a committee of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

College athletics as well as college academic work have been acknowledged on a state-wide basis. Two championship football teams, one championship basketball team, and two all-victorious baseball teams puts Bloomsburg in the first ranks of intercollegiate competition of the State Teachers Colleges.

One-fifth of the faculty now hold the earned Doctor's Degree. Over ninety per cent of the graduates have been placed.

These facts are to be noted as a recognition of the farsightedness of the Board of Trustees, and an evidence of the quality of service of the President of the College during the last fifteen years.

HOMECOMING DAY

STUDIES TEACHING METHODS AT B.S.T.C.

Bloomsburg State Teachers College was extremely fortunate to have on campus Mr. Nirmal Chatterjee, a professor of education at Visva-Bharati University in Santiniketan, India. A Fulbright Scholar on a six months' visit to the United States, Mr. Chatterjee was making a first hand study of teacher training methods practiced in this country. He studied the new teaching techniques adopted in American secondary schools, and observed especially the classes of teachers-in-service and B.S.T.C. students in their practice teaching. He was also interested in the methods used in the Special Education class at the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School and in the Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Mr. Chatterjee arrived at B.S.T.C. on Sunday, March 8, and remained here for two weeks. He had previously spent two weeks on the campus of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, and upon leaving Bloomsburg, he went to Kansas.

Mr. Chatterjee's agenda included the special education class, various college classes, College Council, and Sigma Alpha Eta.

The first impression Mr. Chatterjee had of B.S.T.C. after arriving from Stroudsburg was that we have such a beautiful campus location. He was very much impressed with our community life in general, and he found the student and faculty relationship to be very favorable.

Professor Chatterjee received his formal education in Santiniketan before going to Calcutta University to earn his M.A. in English. He then attended a course at David Hare Training College and received his degree as a trained teacher in First Class. His practical experience as a teacher includes service on the staff of Scindia Public Schools at Gwalior where he worked under the well-known educationist, Mr. F. G. Pearce, and at Santiniketan where he has worked since 1938. Besides his job as lecturer in the Teacher's Training College attached to Visva-Bharati University, Professor Chatterjee is a member of the university's Board of Studies for Education, English, and Modern Indian Languages.

Special interests of Mr. Chatterjee include literature and art. He is very well-known in the literary world of Bengal both as a scholar of merit and as a writer of distinction. He has to his credit considerable research in Bengali literature and had helped to edit Tagore's writings. His artistic specialties lie in the use of water colors and in decorative designing.

The university to which Professor Chatterjee belongs was founded by Dr. Rabindranath Tagore, the world renowned poet of India who was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1913. The University of Visva-Bharati is non-sectarian, co-educational and international in its character and outlook. Mahatma Gandhi frequently visited her and called it his "second home."

COLLEGE APPROVED FOR AIR FORCE INSTRUCTION

Bloomsburg State Teachers College has been approved to offer courses of instruction for Air Force Reserve Personnel of this area. A contract has recently been submitted which involved a minimum of thirty-two Air Force students who will meet for forty-eight hours of instruction under the direction of assistant professor W. B. Sterling.

While all details have not been completed, this represents the revival of a type of instruction in which the college was a pioneer in 1939 when they began to offer civil pilot training courses to ten students who received primary instruction in flying at the local Bloomsburg Airport.

Following this small beginning the College taught and the airport cooperated in a series of programs in which 1,000 civilian, naval or army personnel either learned to fly or pursued advanced courses in aviation.

Betty J. Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Hoffman, Annville, was elected president of the "B" Club of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College at a recent meeting of the organization. ATTENDS CLASSES

Mrs. Edith Mae LaBarr Tormay of Hazleton, Pa. (579 Emerald St.) who received her master's degree in education from Boston University summer school at the August 21 Commencement in Boston University Field, believes that it really should be awarded to her 13-year-old daughter Jane Louise who during the past four years has attended most of the classes with her.

"If Jane Louise had not been so patient and so good, it would not have been possible for me to have reached this level," Mrs. Tormay pointed out. This past summer was the first one in which Jane did not sit through all the lectures.

The reason was that they have a fine television set in their apartment that kept Jane Louise entertained during many of her mother's University lecture periods.

Although she has received her master's degree, Mrs. Tormay feels that she may add to her education next summer by taking Boston University's advanced course in mental testing. She is a graduate of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

Mrs. Tormay has made her life work the teaching of retarded children. She teaches in the Arthur St. School in Hazleton. During the past four years under the instruction of Boston University's great specialists in her field she has majored in remedial reading.

Her husband, who is employed in the electric light company in Hazleton, feels proud that his wife has made such a solid contribution to the educational life of their community, and, in turn, his wife appreciates the help and cooperation which has made possible four summers of study.

Both mother and daughter feel that Boston is the finest city in the country. Sitting through summer college classes for six weeks each season from the year she was nine years old to her present 13 years apparently was no chore for this sweet and serious daughter of a charming mother. "I really remembered a surprising amount of what I heard," she said shyly, "and it has helped me in my school work at unexpected times."

"We both love it because so much is happening here all the time, and there are so many things that we can do at very slight expense, such as enjoying the Esplanade concerts, and the trips arranged by the University to a wide variety of historic, literary and industrial centers," Mrs. Tormay said enthusiastically. Boston and Boston University also provide a wonderful opportunity for higher education," she concluded.

Miss Grace Ott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ott, Lebanon, became the bride of Eugene H. Vanderslice, son of Mrs. Josephine Vanderslice, Bloomsburg, in a double-ring ceremony performed in the Zion Lutheran Church, Enola, Pa., on Sunday afternoon, July 11.

The Rev. Franklin Patschke, cousin of the groom, officiated at the ceremony in the church.

The bride is a graduate of the Lebanon High School and is a senior at Bloomsburg State Teachers College. The groom is employed at Magee Carpet Company.

Howard Klein, nationally-known hypnotist and lecturer, was the guest speaker at the weekly assembly program at Bloomsburg State Teachers College on August 18. Dr. Kline, whose work with patients in U. S. Army hospitals was recently described in Reader's Digest, told of his work in the field of hypnotic therapy and demonstrated various technique in hypnotism.

TAKE PART IN CONFERENCE

Several local residents took part in the program of the District 2 meeting of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers which took place Saturday, April 25, at B.S.T.C. Nearly 200 attended the all-day event.

The Rev. Elmer A. Keiser, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, gave the invocation and Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of B.S.T.C., extended greetings.

Ray M. Cole and Mrs. Ellis Turner appeared on an afternoon panel discussing the topic, "What Can P.T.A. Do to Attract and Keep Good Teachers?" William A. Lank was on the panel which discussed "What P.T.A. Can Do to Help the Community Appreciate Better Schools."

Herbert Coble and Mrs. Joseph Miller took part in the panel discussion on "What P.T.A. Can Do to Help Form Advisory Groups to Work with the School Board."

Ten members of the Future Teachers of America group at the college participated in the panel workshops under the direction of Dr. Ernest Engelhardt.

CARDS HOLD TRYOUTS

Bloomsburg was the scene of intense baseball activity this summer when the St. Louis Cardinals conducted a two-day tryout camp at the State Teachers College Field.

Red Bird scouts, in quest of potential future major league talent, supervised workouts at the beginning at 10 A. M. The sessions were open to all young players between the ages of seventeen and twenty-three.

"Our scouts are always anxious to come to Bloomsburg because they consider the amateur talent in that area very high," Joe Mathes, chief Red Bird scout, said.

"We feel confident that our scouts will be able to discover young players in this camp who can be developed into a future St. Louis Cardinal through training and experience in our minor league system," Mathes related.

"We're looking for a large turnout of players from in and around Bloomsburg."

The Red Birds, with an eye toward youth, operate the largest, finest and best staffed minor league system in existence today. With 22 clubs in 15 states and two foreign countries, young players in the Cardinal organization are assured an opportunity to play regularly in every classification ranging from Class D to AAA and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Largely responsible for the outstanding success of the Red Birds' minor league system has been the Cardinal formula of plenty personal instruction and a generous amount of individual attention for all players.

Kenneth M. Camp, who received his commission as second lieutenant in the Air Force recently, received his Observer Wings in graduating exercises at James Connally Air Force Base, Waco, Texas. The ceremonies climaxed a year of training in the Observer Program. Lt. Camp, a 1950 graduate of Catawissa High School, attended B.S.T.C., where he was active in basketball and soccer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Camp, Catawissa.

Frank C. Kostos, former assistant football and basketball coach at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, has been appointed administrative head of the Penn State University Center at Hazleton.

He succeeds Merle E. Campbell, recently placed in charge of extension administration throughout the state.

Mr. Kostos has been with the Hazleton center since February, 1946, and has been the assistant administrative head for the past seven years.

After attending public schools at Mt. Carmel, Kostos was graduated from Bucknell University in 1930, playing varsity football and basketball.

Miss Margaret Shultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Shultz, Danville, became the bride of Earle Bittner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Bittner, Sr., Sunbury, in a ceremony Wednesday, June 9, at the First Baptist Church, Danville. The Rev. Byrd E. Spring, pastor, officiated.

Soloist was Donald Newcome, Sunbury, and organist was Mrs. Ruth Garrow Weller, Harrisburg.

The bride is a graduate of Danville High School and of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

PLANS COMPLETED

Final plans have been drawn by architects for the completion of the College Lounge, located in old gymnasium, and the renovation of the first floor corridor of Waller Hall. When completed this area will have expanded lobby facilities, faculty lounge, new offices for social deans and a larger suite of rooms for college guests. This project will cost approximately $100,000 when completed.

Initial studies are being made by John Schell, architect, for the recently approved College Commons (dining room, kitchen and storage building) to cost, when equipped, $500,000.

Interior renovations will begin in October, while ground breaking for new construction will probably take place in the early spring of 1955.

Willie Morgan Stein lives at 128 South 36th Street, Apartment A-1, Philadelphia 4, Pa. The following letter from Mrs. Stein will be of interest to her classmates and friends:

May I just take my classmates on a little journey with me? It was the dream (come true) of a lifetime.

We left Philadelphia Airport on TWA, with Paris as our destination by way of New York, Gander and Shanon Island. Three days sightseeing in Paris, then Air France to Madrid. Then on to Granada, in the southern part of Spain, for the prime purpose of seeing the Alhambra. Back to Madrid, and then by TWA across the Mediterranean Sea to Rome. We saw all the historical places that we studied in history in High School and B.S.N.S., such as the Pantheon, the Colosseum, the Catacombs, Appian Way, the Vatican and several famous cathedrals.

Then we went on to Naples by train, and by steamer to Sorrento and the Isle of Capri and its famous Blue Grotto. This was the most beautiful part of the trip. Back to Rome and on to Venice by train. The city of Venice is really as unique as it has been described in song and story.

From there we went to Milan to see the famous La Scala Opera House and hear a real old Wagnerian opera (five hours, since nothing is deleted). We saw the world famous cathedral, with 148 spires and more than a thousand gargoyles. The front door is made of bronze and weighs twenty tons. We also saw the famous painting of the Lord's Supper.

We left Italy and went northward by train through Switzerland and Interlaken. Our tour included an all-day trip to the top of Jungfrau Mountain. Here is the most beautiful mountain scenery anywhere in the world. We visited the Ice Palace near the top. The elevation is over 11,000 feet. The Palace was carved out of a glacier more than a quarter of a century ago. It has ice steps which one descends to the ball room, where one may rent skates if he is so inclined.

Then we went by train to Strasbourg, France, where we were met by friends who had their car over there. We toured Western Germany, Luxembourg, and Belgium for several days.

After returning to Paris, we flew to London. We had three days there and were fortunate in seeing the Parliament buildings, where we went through the House of Lords and the House of Commons. We had a trip to Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle, not to mention all of the other London highlights.

All through Italy, Germany, Belgium, France and England, we saw the results of the terrific bombing of World War II. Many places are unrepaired and stand as skeletons of fine buildings.

We left London Airport Sunday at 9:00 P. M. and arrived in the Philadelphia Airport Monday at 1 P. M. Add four hours for difference in time and take off three-fourths of an hour at Shannon, three quarters of an hour at Gander, and one and one-half hours at Idlewild Airport, and you have the actual flying time. It is a small world after all.

?School days, school days, dear old old golden rule days
Readin' and writin' and 'rithmetic but we are rudely awakened from our dream, for this is not 1909. Time and tide wait for no man. Forty-five years have passed and this is 1954; changes have taken place. Letters flew back and forth, some flew east and some flew west and some flew into the cuckoo's nest (or thereabouts) and "the chain of friendship stretching far, links days that were with days that are."

Our plans fell into place and our banquet at the Episcopal Church at 6:30, thanks to Bertha and Jessie, was a grand success from juice to nuts and mints and the alternating little plants of adjuration and fuscia, which we might keep, was a lovely touch of color. Our meal was prefaced with a beautiful poem blessing composed and offered by Bess Hinckley. Fifty-eight classmates, wives, husbands and guests were present and enjoyed a delicious dinner. Dean Sutliff, one of the Old Guards, ate with us and made us happy with his presence and the words he spoke to us. Other guests were Mrs. Foote, Miss Mary Good, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Shambach, Mrs. Bruce Albert, her sister, Mrs. Kyte, and Miss Mabel Moyer.

"Oh! would some power the giftie give us to see ourselves as others see us." Well, we had the chance, for a photographer appeared and lined up those of the class of 1909 present (28 of us) and insisted that those standing in line, behind the lucky ones seated, should stand on an angle and close to each other. A few of us who knew that our profiles were not "superb" turned full face on him and the next day we saw the result of the "shot." Of course we blush to say it (and yet who has better right) "would you have thought one class could have had brains and looks both? Well, 1909 has." Enough of merriment—let's get down to business. The Church allotted us a room upstairs to hold our meeting in. Our President, Dan Mahoney, and Fred Diehl presided. Dr. and Mrs. Andruss and Dr. and Mrs. Nelson joined our group. Dr. and Mrs. Andruss were introduced and Dr. Andruss spoke splendidly to us. The Nelsons were introduced and Jack gave us a good response (and something to think about and try to respond to at our 50th reunion).

Letters were read from many of our classmates who could not be with us. Fred read a telegram from Bob Wilner from the Philippines. Our guests were introduced and for the most part responded with short speeches. To me, one of the most outstanding things of the whole evening was the beautiful poems that fell so easily and beautifully from the lips of our classmates, most of the time their genius held me spellbound and I know I speak for the group. No wonder some of us are bald and some white—with ability like that. Bess Hinkley composed and gave us a beautiful "special" poem. Different class members spoke of themselves, their families and what the years had held for them. After a most delightful time we said goodnight.

Forty-six members of 1909 met the next morning and sat in a group in the auditorium for the Alumni meeting. Harold Moyer answered for our class when 1909 was called on, and very ably represented us. The group enjoyed luncheon in the College cafeteria.

At two o'clock a goodly number of our class and those who accompanied them, met in the Day Women's Lounge in Noetling Hall—the room allotted to us for our business meeting. Our President, Dan Mahoney, and Fred Diehl presided. Dan suggested that the names of our members who have died be read and we stand for a few minutes in silent recognition. Fred read the names—18 of them. The secretary read the minutes and the treasurer gave her report. Our treasurer's report showed all bills paid and a wee bit left but that was quickly augmented by some money rolling in. The President appointed a committee, Harold Moyer, Chairman; Ethel Creasy Wright, Irma Welliver Abbott, Bertha Welsh Conner, George Shuman and Walter Welliver. This committee to act on the financial end for our 50th or Golden reunion. We want to do something for the School, probably in the way of scholarship or scholarships, and for this end this committee will work in advance of that year.

Dan also appointed as a committee to plan for our 50th Reunion the same persons who served in a similar manner this year, namely: Fried Diehl, Ethel Creasy Wright, Irma Heller Abbott, Harold Moyer and John Klingerman.

The following class members spoke: Nora Clancy Lavins, Emma Eaton, Florence Priest Cook, Elizabeth Fagin, Norah D. Carr and Fred Diehl. Thurman Krum read a telegram from a 1908-er, Bill Watkins! Gertrude Hobbes Pooley's husband gave us a splendid poem of his own.

Then the peak and grand finale in the form of the Lavins who brought their recording machine and Mr. Lavins very kindly re-ran the wire with our 1949 tape with our voices ringing back to us and we heard again what we had said that day. It was a splendid treat and much enjoyed and appreciated by all of us. Thank you so much "The Lavins" and Norah for your class poem which you re-gave us earlier and which we all re-liked. Our deep appreciation.

The curtain drops—our 45th reunion is a thing of the past, a lovely memory and a great success, thanks to everyone.

Our GOLDEN TIME lies just around the corner for after 45 years what is a short 5 years? Let's make it a GOLDEN TIME INDEED.

Ethel Creasy Wright, Secretary. P. S.—We apologize for this delayed report, but trust that it will be none the less interesting. We are greatly indebted to Ethel for this account of our 45th reunion. The enclosed list of names and addresses of our class is revised, as per information gathered at the reunion. Perhaps it will revive old friendships and renew correspondence with old friends.

It is with regret that we note the passing of Eura Kester and Alma Wallace, since we last met. In telling us of her mother's death, on December 21, 1953, her daughter wrote, "If mother's work was an example of Bloomsburg training, I'm sure that your B.S.T.C. has done a great deal for mankind. Mother was a wonderful teacher—at home and in the classroom."

Plan now for 1959. As Ethel says, Let's make it a Golden Time Indeed."

Sincerely, Fred Diehl

Of the 104 graduates of the Teachers College last spring who have reported their employment status up to July 1, one half of that number, 52, are teaching in Pennsylvania. Twenty-six are teaching in other states while about an equal number have been called into the Armed Forces or expect to enroll in graduating school. Only four have found employment in fields other than teaching, according to Dr. Ernest H. Englehardt, Director of Placement.

With one-fourth of the Bloomsburg graduates being absorbed by the Armed Services, graduate schools, and employment in other fields than teaching and another one-fourth leaving Pennsylvania to go to other states for higher salaries, it is evident that only half of the graduates placed to date are going to teach in Pennsylvania. This trend may be revised by the final statistics after the remaining forty-percent of the graduates report their employment status to the college. In determining the number of positions to be filled in the public schools of Pennsylvania each year by comparing demand with the total number of Seniors being graduated and certified, we must not overlook the important fact that many of the Seniors do not go into the field of teaching the year following their graduation, Dr. Englehardt said.

As long as the surrounding states of New York, New Jersey and Maryland continue to pay higher salaries, Pennsylvania-trained teachers will go to these states for their initial experience. If they are to return to the state where they received their teacher education, greater inducements will need to be offered, local educators point out.

He was a former resident of Roaringcreek Valley where he had been engaged in farming for many years, but in recent years he had resided in Allentown and Bloomsburg.

Mr. Cherrington was graduated from the Bloomsburg State Normal School in 1898 and began a teaching career in Fernville. He later taught at Roaringcreek township and several sessions of the old Benton Teachers Summer School, in Columbia county, and for a number of years at Elizabethtown, Turbotville and schools in Lehigh county.

Mrs. Etta Hirlinger Keller '02

Mrs. Etta H. Keller, seventy-three, prominent Orangeville resident, was instantly killed Monday, July 5, at eleven-forty-five in the morning, in a two-car crash that sent four others to the Geisinger Hospital.

The tragedy occurred at the "Y" intersection of the Williamsport and Benton routes to Wilkes-Barre.

Mrs. Keller, driving alone, was returning to Orangeville after visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edith Bonham, who resides about two miles north of the scene.

The Bonhams, although not far from the scene of the crash, were not aware that Mrs. Keller had been killed. They had heard of the crash and called Mr. Keller, inquiring if Mrs. Keller had arrived home yet. Informed that he was still waiting for her, they drove to the scene of the accident. They were shocked to open the door of the car and see their relative lying on the floor, dead.

Bloomsburg State Police, still continuing investigation, were informed by the injured, that Mrs. Raup had halted for the "stop" sign at the intersection. There was no stop sign for Mrs. Keller. Mrs. Raup pulled out, apparently unaware that Mrs. Keller was approaching.

The front of Mrs. Keller's 1952 sedan and the left front and side of the Raup car were apparently points of impact. Both vehicles were demolished with shorn off parts of both cars strewn over a wide area.

Mrs. Keller's sedan was spun at right angles to the road, while the other machine remained headed in the same direction in which it had been traveling. None were thrown out, those early on the scene reported.

Mrs. Keller's car carried an emblem for sixteen years of safe driving. There were no eye witnesses.

The Rev. James Payne, of Harvey's Lake, had been seated outside of the old dance hall, now the Red Rock Gospel Hall. The minister, and possibly fourteen other persons who were working at the hall preparing for fall usage, rushed to the scene to aid. They dispatched a passing motorist to the nearest telephone to call for the Benton Community Ambulance.

Dr. J. W. Bredbenner, Benton veterinarian, was on the scene shortly after the accident, and by means of his two-way radio, contacted authorities through his wife, and otherwise aided in the case.

County Coroner S. Earl McHenry directed the removal of the body to the Holcombe Funeral Home, Benton. He ruled death accidental and due to a badly fractured skull. She also suffered compound fracture of the right leg above the knee, a fractured left leg and a fractured left arm.

Mrs. Keller was born August 30,

1880, in Huntington township, Luzerne county, the daughter of the late John M. and Hulda Steele Hirlinger. She had made her home in Orangeville since 1889.

A graduate of the Bloomsburg Normal in 1902, Mrs. Keller was also a graduate of Pennsylvania State College and Columbia University. She held a master's degree in education.

Early in her teaching career, she taught at the White's Hill and McHenry school, Orangeville R. D., and at the Dimmock school, Luzerne county.

For twenty-one years, she taught sixth grade at the Benjamin Franklin Training School of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. She and her husband, Alfred N. Keller, operated the Orangeville Water Company.

An active member of the Orangeville Reformed Church, she taught the Men's Bible Class there for ten years. She was president of the board of Directors of the Orangeville Public Library, an active member of the Orangeville Civic Club and the Columbia County Historical Society.

Surviving in addition to her husband and her sister, is a brother, George E. Hirlinger, of Benton.

Alice Guest, '02

Miss Alice Guest, retired Danville School teacher, died at the age of seventy-four Tuesday, September 7, at Geisinger Hospital where she had been a patient for several days. Death came to the well-known Danville woman after an illness of one week, and was due to complications of diseases.

Miss Guest was born June 19, 1880. She served faithfully in the teaching profession for forty-six years, retiring in 1946. She held the post of assistant principal of the junior high school at the time of her retirement.

She was a graduate of Danville High School and received her degree from Bloomsburg State Teachers College, later taking graduate studies at Bucknell University.

Miss Guest began her professional career at the Styer School in 1902 and only two years prior to her retirement had declined appointment to the position of principal of Danville High School.

Active in church and civic affairs, Miss Guest was a member of St. Paul's Methodist Church and served as organist for the church for twenty-eight years. She also held the position of secretary of the Montour County Historical Society for several years.

Surviving are one brother, Morris Guest, Anderson, Indiana, and several nieces.

Sixty years ago the "Quarterly" gave considerable space to "Methods of Primary Reading." In one issue "The Alphabetic Method" and "The World Method" were given generous treatment; and in the next number came "The Phonic Method" and "The Sentence Method." Still following came "The Burnz Phonetic Method" and "The Phonic Word Method." Miss Fundenberg's Phonic Word Method seems to have won out. The concluding commentary says her method was in principle the associative or eclectic and a decided improvement on the method as generally employed. I am at loss to know which one was tried out on me. Maybe all of them. Anyhow I belonged to the school where if one were asked whether or not he could read writing was likely to get the reply, "I can't even read readin'."

There was another statement in a "Quarterly" of 60 years ago of real interest. It was as follows: "A teacher cannot possibly cause to pass into a child's fullest comprehension any experience which he has himself not first experienced." I have tried to analyze that one. As I see it now, my teachers should have been along with Columbus, and with Grant at Vicksburg. Maybe if my Latin teacher had been in the Forum when Cicero was talking I wouldn't have needed my Interlinear. And it would have been nice if some of those teachers had taken time to attend a sports event — baseball preferred — or even try a waltz with one of the opposite sex. My education was spoiled because my teachers lacked first hand experience. I have often wondered wherein the difficulty lurked.

But why linger? The years are passing by. It is pleasing to list the names of those who continue to support the school and its programs through interest and financial contribution. A young married couple out in California, but three years out of college, sent back $10.00. Their names appear below. Fine young like that keep this old heart a pumpin'. We are happy to add in this number the names of those who have sent in contributions since the last issue.

Jean C. Conner
Arlene Frantz Covert
James J. Dormer
Albert W. Duy
Ruth Hope Handy
Clement Koch
Anna R. Kischke
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Laubscher
Elsie Lebo Stauffer

The list should be longer — much longer. Alumni of a neighbor institution gave $42,000.00 to support its 1953-54 program and will come right back and do the same thing again in 1954-55. We try all the means at our command to seek your support. Once again, "How about some dollars for your Alma Mater." A few can give $1,000.00. More can give $500.00. Many can give $100.00, and the $50.00, $25.00, $10.00 and $5.00 will be as much appreciated because you haven't forgotten and are giving as liberally as those who can afford more. Will I be hearing from you?

BLOOMSBURG BUILDING PROGRAM

An allocation of $460,000 has been granted by the General State Authority for the erection of a building to be located on the old tennis courts between Waller Hall and the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School to provide space for a dining room, kitchen, and general storage.

Tentative plans have already been drawn by John A. Schell, Registered Architect, of Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania, who designed the new brick porch for Waller Hall, which runs along Second Street.

This new building, which will probably be called the "College Commons," will be connected to the Waer Hall dormitory by an underground passage leading to the main dining room from a new lounge, space formerly occupied by the Business Office. A combination brick and glass facade will look out over Second Street to the scenic valley of the Susquehanna. The normal seating capacity will be 650, with a banquet seating maximum of 800, which may be further augmented by the use of a terrace running along the front of the building.

Two complete cafeteria counters will be constructed so that the service of luncheon in particular will enable 500 students to be served during the noon hour. Four separate walk-in refrigerators, to provide variations in temperatures for milk, vegetables, meat, and deep freeze items, will be a part of this equipment. The dietitian's office will be located in the kitchen area so that there will be a free and unobstructed view of the operations necessary for the delivery of raw food and its preparation and service.

A lounge will also be provided for those students who may not live in the dormitory or cannot reach it by using the underground passage from Waller Hall.

Bids for a second major repair and renovation contract have been received, and it is proposed to spend $152,000 in renovating the first floor of Waller Hall and completing the Student Lounge in the space formerly occupied by the Old Gymnasium. This means the construction of an elevated lounge on the West side, a new entrance to the lounge which will match the knotty-pine paneling used around the fireplace area; relocating college canteen and Book Store. The first floor corridor of Waller Hall from Noetling Hall to the Long Porch will have all the wainscoting removed and replaced by modern plastics; floors, walls, ceilings, and lighting will be replaced; the Business Manager's office, business office, bookkeeper's office, and store room for the Book Store will become a part of the Lobby at the entrance to the present Dining Room. The Book Store will become a part of the College Post Office, which will have twice as many lockboxes as in former years. The Faculty Lounge adjacent to the Alumni Room will have a combination cooking and dishwashing apartment unit and more light will be admitted by means of glass doors opening on the hall. A new limestone entrance to Carver Hall, providing parking space for eight cars, will be constructed. A Georgian porch will be constructed on Waller Hall at the Main Lobby entrance, all of which will tend to give the casual visitor to the college a different impression of the main floor corridors. This is especially true, since the administrative office of the President, Business Manager, Dean of Instruction, and Director of Placement have been moved to the first floor of Carver Hall.

The face-lifting contract for Waller Hall corridors and adjacent areas is supposed to be completed during the summer of 1955 and ready for use by the opening of the Fall Semester in September.

While the final plans for the Dining Hall project will not be approved until January, 1955, if construction begins in the early Spring, it may be possible to occupy the new Dining Room following the Christmas vacation of 1955.

As soon as the old dining room space is available and sufficient funds can be accumulated, the library, located for many years on the second floor of what is now the men's section of the Waller Hall dormitory, will be moved to the first floor of Waller Hall, adjacent to which will be the offices of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women.

With present library space vacated, it is expected that rooms for men will be constructed so that the dormitory capacity can be increased by at least twenty-five persons.

Although it will take approximately three years to provide adequate dining room and kitchen space, relocate the library, and increase the dormitory space, I am sure the Alumni will be interested in knowing the future building plans of the College.

Once the dining room is constructed and adequate library space is available, our greatest need is that of a modern dormitory to house at least two hundred men. This means that North Hall, which was never meant to be used as a dormitory for students, lacking bathroom facilities on the third floor, and having an outside fire escape, will not continue to be used as a dormitory. Since sixty to seventy-five men continue to live in the Town of Bloomsburg, some at such distances as to make it impossible for them to eat in the college dining room, it seems logical that since we will have a dining room that is large enough to provide meals for all students who wish to have them at the College, that our dormitory facilities should be increased.

Costs of modern building have spiraled to a point where a dormitory for two hundred men will cost, when furnished, in excess of $1,000,000.

At the last meeting of our Board of Trustees, serious consideration was given to the future building needs of the college, and it is hoped that after reading this message you, as an Alumnus of Bloomsburg, will be willing to use your influence in any way that may be necessary to improve our plant to the point that Bloomsburg will become Bigger and Better.

JOHN BAKELESS HONORED

"This is the town which gave me everything I needed and if I had to grow up again I would want to do it in Bloomsburg," Dr. John Bakeless, one of the commonwealth's Pennsylvania Ambassadors for state week, declared recently in his response at a dinner at the Elks in his honor.

Dr. Bakeless, who is now a resident of Connecticut and who has achieved distinction as an author, teacher, editor and soldier, was awarded a handsome plaque and a certificate of the occasion.

Around one hundred fifty attended the dinner which was under the sponsorship of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Glowing tributes to the guest of honor and to his family were paid in various salutes to Dr. Bakeless. Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff spoke of the early days of the guest of honor and of the rich heritage he received from his parents, the late Prof. and Mrs. O. H. Bakeless. Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, of the College faculty and a classmate of Dr. Bakeless, told of their days together at "Old Normal."

Paul R. Eyerly, representing The Morning Press, spoke of Bakeless having his first job on this newspaper and presented the plaque.

Robert G. Beers, president of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke of the manner in which the Chamber worked to secure the naming of Dr. Bakeless as a Pennsylvania Ambassador and touched briefly on the place the Chamber plays in the community.

He presented Dr. Harvey A. Andruss who presented the certificate to Dr. Bakeless with the expression that it gave him great pleasure to make the presentation "to a distinguished son of a great father."

William Strang provided dinner music on the Hammond organ. The invocation was by the Rev. Thomas J. Hopkins, pastor of the Methodist Church. Group singing was led by John Lyle, with John Morris and Howard Fenstermaker at the piano. The Magee Entertainers were at their best with three much enjoyed numbers.

The interesting response to Dr. Bakeless was devoted principally to "what Bloomsburg has meant to me." He paid glowing tribute to many of the faculty of the Normal School and to Paul R. Eyerly, one of the founders and long editor of The Morning Press. He also declared that "the woods, hills and creek provided the richest life for a growing child."

He said recognition is never so appreciated as when it is given "by the home folks."

Some of the accomplishments of Dr. Bakeless are interestingly dealt with in a short biography which has been prepared by Robert A. Baylor under the title of "John Bakeless—An Outstanding Alumnus." The biography follows:

John Bakeless is an alert, rapidly moving person with thick hair, a clipped-bristly mustache and a penchant for digging up long buried facts—whether they concern Elizabethian playwright Christopher Marlowe, frontiersman Daniel Boone, or an odd occurrence in the Balkans. A noted journalist, author and scholar, Bakeless is also a former resident of Bloomsburg, an alumnus of the Normal School, and an ex-staff member of The Morning Press.

Bakeless has put in years of unusual and exhaustive preparation for the several and varied careers which he has followed at one time or another. At various times and often simultaneously, for he is a man who can do many things at one time and do them all well, he has been a reporter, lecturer, soldier, editor, college professor, political prognosticator and author.

Since 1947, Bakeless has served as lecturer at the School of Journalism, New York University. He has also been engaged in writing a new book which will describe the continent of North America as it appeared to the first white explorers. At the moment he is writing that section of the book which deals with the Susquehanna Valley.

Born in Carlisle, Pa., Bakeless came to Bloomsburg in 1903, when his father, Oscar Hugh Bakeless, became a member of the faculty at the Normal School. Like all men who lead busy, active lives he looks enviously back on his boyhood days and the long leisurely summers spent in "reading and in rambles along Fishing Creek, in Dillon's Hollow, and up Catawissa Mountain." He recalls that the college library, containing thousands of well selected books to tempt any sort of reader, had a conveniently located, un-locked window which could be used to gain entrance when the library was closed. He was quick to discover and make use of this private entrance.

"I suppose I learned my trade as a writer," he says, "mainly in the library and The Morning Press office. I practically questioned the editorial, business, and mechanical staffs of the Press to death when I joined up as a 'cub' in 1911; but I came out with a knowledge of all sides of newspaper production that couldn't possibly have been gotten in a large metropolitan office."

Many years later he was to write that every professor and every research worker in the world ought to have at least a year under a really hard-boiled city editor. Here, too, perhaps he was speaking out of his experience with the Press!

Bakeless is remembered by his fellow students and friends here as a quiet, unassuming chap who seemed able to hold his own in any conversation regardless of the subject under discussion. In addition to hiking and reading, he claimed botany as a hobby and was for a number of years a "tagger-on" when science professor Hartline conducted field trips. He was also as seemingly were all Bloomsburg natives in their youth, a member of Professor Hartline's butterfly-catching brigade.

Like many other before and since, Bakeless was enchanted by his first contact with the works of Shakespeare. While a student at the Normal School he took to learning complete passages from Shakespeare's plays by heart. His interest in Shakespeare led him on to an examination of other Elizabethian playwrights—and to his first reading of the works of Christopher Marlowe.

For Bakeless, a mystery story fan and an avid seeker after facts, the enigmatic figure of Marlowe loomed out of the pages of his plays as a gigantic question mark. Who was this Marlowe, whose plays in some cases were the equal of Shakespeare's? What were the facts concerning his murder in a pub at the age of 29? Had he collaborated on any of Shakespeare's plays? The answers to these and hundreds of other questions pertaining to Marlowe were shrouded in a veil of mystery.

For almost a quarter of a century Bakeless devoted every possible spare moment to thinking, reading, and seeking more knowledge about Marlowe. In 1936, he was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for research about Marlowe. He spent seven months in England, reading original manuscripts, talking with other Elizabethans scholars, and snooping about in old attics. As a result of his snooping the literary world is possessed of seven hitherto unknown documents pertaining to Marlowe and his family.

Finally, twenty-two years after his first contact with Marlowe while he was still in Bloomsburg, Bakeless published "Christopher Marlowe. The Man in His Time," in 1937. It has been hailed by critics as a full blooded book, useful and important; the definite biography of its subject.

At the age of twelve Bakeless, at the urging of his father, became interested in woodwork. The late Professor J. C. Foote, who worked with wood as a hobby, agreed to teach young Bakeless the use of tools. Professor Foote had a workshop in the basement of his home and John spent many hours there sawing, chiseling, drilling—working with his hands. He is still interested in woodwork but lacks the time and equipment to be able to do much about it. While living in New York City, however, he did build his own book cases. He confesses somewhat ruefully that they are not too good, perhaps because he used a copy of Chopin's etudes in lieu of a carpenter's square.

Upon finishing at the Normal School, Bakeless took his B.A. at Williams College, graduating cum laude and carrying off many prizes including the prize for prizes. Just about this time the United States entered the first World War and John promptly enlisted. He completed Officer's Candidate School and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant, but much to his chagrin, never reached the front.

In 1920, Bakeless completed work on his M.A. at Harvard and married Katherine Little, of Bloomsburg. (He was awarded his Ph.D. in 1937.) Mrs. Bakeless is an accomplished teacher, author, and pianist, having studied music under many of the outstanding present day instructors both here and abroad. Her books, "Story Lives of Great Composers" for instance, deal primarily with the field of music. She also lends her husband a hand in time of need, working on notes, criticizing scripts, typing them and helping with proof and index.

Drawing on his wartime experience and study, Bakeless wrote his first book, "Economic Causes of Modern War," in 1921. It was promptly put on the reading list at the Army War College, making Bakeless, the only second lieutenant in history whose ideas were used to train generals.

Five years later he wrote his second and final, to date, war book. It was aptly titled, "The Origin of the Next War." In it he made many startling predictions which have since become realities. Probably the most far-sighted and amazing predictions of all concerned the Danzig Corridor, which he likened to the fuse of a powder magazine which might at any time set off explosions in both France and the Balkans. Thirteen years later, in 1939, Italy moved into the Balkans just after the Germans raised the issue of Danzig.

In addition to writing his two "war" books, Bakeless made two "flying trips" to the Balkans during the 1920's. Since 1922, he has been a steady contributor to such magazines as "The Atlantic Monthly," "Saturday Review of Literature," "American Mercury," "Outlook" and more than 40 others. In all, he has published more than 100 magazine articles, including fiction, essays and reviews.

In 1922-1923, Bakeless performed a feat of scholarship which had not been achieved in over 100 years. He took the graduate Bowdoin Prize two years in succession—in literature in 1922, and in biology in 1923. The joker in the successive years feat is that the prize is awarded one year in the humanities and the next year in science. The last man before Bakeless to achieve it was Ralph Waldo Emerson!

A man of multifarious interests and abilities, Bakeless is the type of person who never does things by halves. Generally when he takes an interest in something he doesn't let it go until he has become an expert in the field, whatever it may be. Often one interest will lead to another and before he knows it he has the material for another book or a subject for a lecture tour.

For instance, he first became interested in the Balkans while studying the Slavic languages at Harvard. This led to a trip to Europe and tour of the Balkan countries, and resulted in his writing several magazine articles on what he had observed. A few years later when things again grew warm in the Balkan hotbed he made another trip which he also wrote up for various magazines. In addition, he toured the United States lecturing on the Balkan situation. Thus his initial interest as a student in the Slavic languages led Bakeless on and on until he is today one of the leading experts on the Balkans.

In reading one of Bakeless' Balkan articles, "Apples from Mr. Michailoff" one discovers a deadly present day parallel between the incidents he recounts and the facts surrounding the recent murder of CBS correspondent George Polk in Greece. Polk left his hotel with three men who were ostensibly taking him to a meeting with a Communist Chieftian Markos Vafiades. He was never seen alive again.

In his article, which was published in 1930, Bakeless tells of a similar rendezvous he made in 1929, to interview Ivan Michailoff. At that time Michailoff was, as is Tito of Yugoslavia today, the mystery man of the Balkans. Head of the "Imro"—short for Inner Macedonian Revolutionary Organization—Michailoff directed his army of guerrillas while keeping constantly on the move, never sleeping more than two nights at one place.

After weeks of waiting in Sophia and several close scrutinies by "Imro" agents, Bakeless was picked up at dawn one morning and transported 150 miles by car to an obscure farm house near the Yugoslavian border. There, standing quietly beneath an apple tree, was Michailoff.

For three hours he questioned the "Imro" chieftain. Then, with three shiny apples—a gift from Michailoff—in his pocket, Bakeless was safely returned to Sophia.

In 1937, Bakeless published "Daniel Boone: Master of the Wilderness," his first "best seller."

"We have had to wait a long time," said the reviewer for the 'New York Times,' "for this exciting fully documented biography of a national hero. It was well worth waiting for."

The Bakeless' were living in Manhattan at about that time and John decided to plant a flower garden in his court yard. It soon became apparent, however, that garden flowers were too fragile to grow in the sunless, skyscraper surrounded courtyard. After suffering the gentle taunts of his big city friends at the failure of his "garden," Bakeless had a "brain wave." He recalled that ferns and wild flowers in the Grove at the Normal School grew in a tree-shaded environment similar to that in his courtyard. In answer to Bakeless' urgent request, Fred Lord, of Espy, sent him a barrel of peat earth and Professor Hartline sent along several different types of ferns and wild flowers. In no time Bakeless had a thriving wild flower and fern garden right in the middle of Manhattan Island. He also had the last laugh on his big city friends.

In 1940, the Bakelesses bought a farm in Connecticut. They named it "Elbow Room"—"because that's what Daniel Boone wanted and what we wanted and the Boone book had more or less paid for the farm."

They spent the latter part of the summer of 1940, motoring about the United States gathering material for his "double-header" biography of Lewis and Clark. In commenting on the three extensive field trips and the research that went into Lewis and Clark, which was published in 1947, Bakeless had this to say:

"It was a little like the Marlowe" (When speaking of his books, Bakeless invariably refers to them as "the Marlowe," "the Boone," etc.) "Marlowe lived only 29 years and it took me 22 years to write him up, which looks like slow going until you reflect that Marlowe didn't have to read all the German dissertations about himself.

"We actually rolled up more mileage than the explorers themselves, because of course they did not have to dodge back and forth looking for historical society libraries."

Work on the Lewis and Clark book was temporarily halted when Bakeless, who was and still is a member of the Officers' Reserve Corps, was ordered back to active duty in November, 1940. After a tour of duty in the War Department in Washington he was ordered to Europe and his old stamping ground—the Balkans.

Having risen to the rank of Colonel, he was at times assistant chief, acting chief, and chief, Intelligence Bureau in the Balkans. While stationed at Smyrna, now

Izmir, about which he had written several articles in 1923, he had quite a time letting his wife know where he was located. There was not the least secrecy about it but the Turkish telegraph refused to transmit the word Smyrna, and Izmir in those days wasn't on most maps.

Though most of his war work was of a confidential nature and is better not discussed, he did have several amusing experiences of a non-military nature. While living surrounded by Germans on top of Mt. Pelion, he was handed an English review of one of his books (the Marlowe) by Sir John Squire, "And believe it or not," he said, "it was favorable. It was a queer place to find it."

One can imagine the thoughts of a Greek officer who found Bakeless reading Plato's Republic in the midst of the Bulgarian border flare-up which followed the Second World War. I imagine he thought it was "a queer place" indeed to find an American reading Plato!

After much secret service "hocuspocus"—false arrests, tapped phones, diplomatic incidents, and various shenanigans behind the German lines in Greece—Bakeless was ordered home and demobilized in 1946.

While still in uniform he picked up where he had left off on the Lewis and Clark book. When that was on the presses he turned immediately to the new work on North America. It is now nearing completion and is projected for the publication either this fall or the fall of 1950.

After that? Bakeless has no plans — as yet. Perhaps another book will be waiting to be written or maybe the Balkans will pull him back for another look-see. Whatever the project we may be certain that Bakeless will pitch into it in his own capable fashion. And before he is through the world will know a little more about some long forgotten episode in the history of mankind.

DR. NORTH RETIRES

Dr. Thomas P. North, dean of instruction at the Teachers College since 1941, will retire at the end of the current semester. Dean North's retirement will terminate more than twenty-five years of service to the local institution and bring to an end an education career of more than thirty-seven years.

Dean North, a native of Punxsutawney, Pa., and a descendant of one of southern Jefferson county's pioneer Scotch-Irish families, came to Bloomsburg in 1929 to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Professor Oscar Hugh Bakeless. He taught courses in the philosophy of education, school law and administration, orientation and guidance, and educational and vocational guidance prior to being named dean of instruction in 1941.

During World War II, Dean North served as acting president of the college from July 1 to December 31, 1945, while President Harvey A. Andruss was on leave of absence, serving as head of the department of accounting, American Army University, Shrivenham, England. Dr. North also served as coordinator of the Navy V-12 officer training program during the war years.

A graduate of the Punxsutawney High School, Dr. North holds the Bachelor of Science and the Master of Science degrees from the Pennsylvania State College and the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Cornell University. He taught in the science department of the Brookville High School for one year before becoming supervisor of vocational education at the Becchwoods Vocational School. One year later, he was asked to establish the Union Vocational School at Corsica, Pa. Dr. North served as director of that school and supervising principal of the Union-Corsica Consolidated Schools from 1919 to 1926.

He was a member of the staff of the rural education department of the Pennsylvania State College for one year before accepting a position on the faculty of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

Dean North has had a wide and varied experience in professional activities during his tenure at Bloomsburg. He served as president of the Department of Higher Education of the Pennsylvania State Education Association in 1946, and he was a member of the Executive Council of that association. Dean North was a delegate to the conventions of the National Education Association in 1946 and 1947.

As chairman of the Pennsylvania Commission on teacher education and professional standards of the state-wide organization of teachers, he represented Pennsylvania at many national conventions including those held at Miami University, New Hampshire University, Bowling Green University, Leland Stanford University and Western Michigan University. He has attended regional conferences in Washington, D. C. and New York City. Dean North has also participated in the Second National Clinic on Teacher Education conducted in the state of Michigan.

He was largely responsible for the establishing of the Pennsylvania Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards. As chairman of that group for six years, he has been called the "father of the professional standards movement in Pennsylvania."

Dean North has served as chairman of the committee on professional improvement of the Association of State Teachers College Faculties, and he has represented Pennsylvania on the board of control of the Eastern States Association of Professional Schools for Teachers for two years.

At the local college, he was largely responsible for the inauguration of the college calendar, a program for the professional orientation of new students, the class

During the past twenty-five years, Dean North has been a member of the Bloomsburg Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, and the Bloomsburg Hospital Corporation. He is past president of the Bloomsburg Kiwanis Club; has served as chairman of the board of review for the Boy Scouts; and is a ruling elder of the First Presbyterian Church and a member of its board of trustees. Dr. North holds membership in the National Education Association, Pennsylvania Education Association, Phi Delta Kappa, Phi Sigma Pi and Gamma Sigma Delta, honorary national society in rural education. He is a member of the Blue Lodge and Caldwell Consistory.

After retirement in January, Dean North plans to move to his home in Brookville, Pa., where he will devote his time to his business interests and to activities which will help to make teaching one of the great professions.

Dr. Marguerite Kehr, former Dean of Women at Bloomsburg, and now living in Washington, D. C., was a visitor on the campus on Home-Coming Day. She is chairman of the Committee on Education of the Washington Branch, American Association of University Women.

She is also a member of the National Advisory Board of the National Student Association. She attended the annual Congress of the Association at Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, in August.

Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Reams, Whittier, California, spent a week visiting friends in Bloomsburg. They arrived on Friday, October 15, and enjoyed the homecoming festivities.

NAMED DEAN OF INSTRUCTION

John A. Hoch, dean of men at Bloomsburg State Teachers College, has been named dean of instruction to succeed Dr. Thomas P. North, whose retirement at the end of the first semester of the college year was announced by President Harvey A. Andruss. Dean Hoeh, who has been assistant football coach, director of public relations, and chairman of the athletic committee since 1946, will assume his new duties with the beginning of the second semester on January 25, 1955.

The new dean of instruction is a native of Milton, Pa., where he attended the public schools and graduated from the Milton High School. He holds the Bachelor of Arts degree from the Pennsylvania State University and the degree of Master of Arts from Bucknell University. He has done additional graduate work at the Pennsylvania State University.

Following his graduation from Penn State in 1933, Dean Hoch taught in the Milton Junior High School for eleven years and in the Milton Senior High School for one year before accepting a position on the faculty of the Teachers College in 1946. During his tenure at Milton, he served as assistant football coach under the late Alden J. "Lefty" Danks and junior varsity basketball coach.

Following the sudden death of Coach Danks in September 1946, Hoch took charge of the Husky varsity football team and piloted the team to a record of four wins, three losses and tie. Since 1946, he has served as assistant coach to Coach Robert B. Redman, now head coach at East Orange, N. J., High School, and Jack W. Yohe, present Husky grid tutor. During this period the Bloomsburg football teams show an overall record of 54 wins, nine losses and one tie. He succeeded William Landis as dean of men in 1947.

Dean Hoch was one of the pioneers in the founding of the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Athletic Conference in 1950, and he has served as secretary-treasurer of the state-wide organization since its beginning.

He is a member of the Bloomsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, the American Association of University Professors, the Pennsylvania State Education Association, and the following honorary fraternities: Kappa Phi Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Sigma Pi, and Pi Gamma Mu. He also holds membership in the Milton Lodge B. P. O. Elks and the Milton Lodge L. O. O. Moose.

HOMECOMING DAY

Hundreds of Bloomsburg State Teachers College's sons and daughters returned to the campus on the hill for the institution's Twenty-seventh Annual Homecoming Day, Saturday, October 16.

Opening the day's program was a concert by the Maroon and Gold Band under the direction of Nelson A. Miller. A cafeteria luncheon was served in the college dining room beginning at eleven-thirty, while dormitory students had open house for guests and parents at twelve-thirty.

Big feature of the day was the Mt. Olympus football game when the unbeaten Huskies tangled with the previously unbeaten Wilkes College Colonels. Following the grid contest, the Alumni Get-Together was held in Navy Hall and refreshments were served.

Cafeteria dinner was served in the dining room at five-thirty and the day's activities concluded with the Homecoming Day dance in Centennial Gymnasium. Al Anderson and his orchestra played for dancing from eighty-thirty to eleven-thirty.

Dean Yohe, who has been assistant dean of men since coming to Bloomsburg from West Chester in 1952, will assume his new duties with the beginning of the second semester on January 25, 1955. He will continue as head football coach.

Yohe is a graduate of the Jersey Shore, Pa., High School where he was an all-around performer in scholastic athletics. He holds the Master of Education degree from Temple University, and he has completed all the academic requirements for the degree of Doctor of Education at Temple.

He began his teaching and coaching career at Biglerville High School. Following his separation from service, he taught for one year at Upper Merion High School before accepting an assignment at West Chester State Teachers College.

Yohe taught in the health and physical education department at West Chester and served as back-field coach for five years under the astute Glenn Killinger. He also coached the junior varsity basketball team at the Philadelphia area college.

He resigned from the West Chester faculty in 1952 in order to accept the head coaching assignment at Bloomsburg. Since coming to Bloomsburg, his grid teams have had success. Mr. Yohe also tutored the Bloomsburg varsity baseball team for the past two seasons, and this winter he will coach the Husky wrestling team.

He is a member of the National Education Association, the Pennsylvania State Education Association and Phi Delta Kappa, national honorary graduate society. He also holds membership in the Jersey Shore Lodge, B. P. O. Elks.

DRAWS STUDENTS FROM MANY COUNTIES

The Bloomsburg State Teachers College has students from forty-seven of the sixty-seven counties of Pennsylvania. The analysis of over-all enrollment figures of approximately 800 students in 1954 is about equal to that of 1952; however, some significant changes are noted. There are twenty less students from Columbia County in 1954 while Luzerne shows forty less and Northumberland, ten less. In spite of these losses in counties in the immediate service area of the college, the largest relative increase is in Lackawanna County students from twenty-eight to forty-seven and Lycoming from twenty-nine to thirty-eight.

Schuylkill County provided fifty-three students which is about the same number as in previous years. Thirty of the forty-seven counties in the 1954 enrollment show an increase over 1953 while there is a slight decrease in eight counties. It is evident that the college is drawing students from a larger geographical area.

The greatest significant decrease is in the number of day women students which is forty although there has been an increase in dormitory women of twenty-four. The variation in the enrollment of women has undoubtedly been reflected in a decrease in students expecting to be elementary teachers to the extent of twenty-two. There is an over-all increase of eighty-nine men which is reflected in the increased enrollment of secondary students of thirty-eight and business students of fifty-nine.

The Freshman class shows an increase of fifty-five over last year, the Sophomore class is nineteen larger, and the Junior class is 14 larger while the Senior class shows a net decrease of ten.

The residence enrollment is one of the largest in the history of the college with more than fifty men living in the town of Bloomsburg. Of this number twenty-five or more are eating meals in the college dining room.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS JOIN COLLEGE STAFF

Joining the 300 Freshmen in their initial year at B.S.T.C. this semester are several new faculty members from widely-scattered sections of the United States.

Dr. Thomas B. Martin, who replaces Dr. Richard Hallisy as head of the Business Education Department, comes to Bloomsburg from the Delta State Teachers College in Cleveland, Mississippi. Dr. Martin received his B.S. degree from the Kirksville, Missouri, S.T.C. and his M.S. degree from the University of Tennessee. Continuing in his education, he obtained his Doctor of Education degree from Indiana University.

Another new Navy Hall resident is Mrs. Margaret McCern, whose last post was at the nearby Catawissa High School. The first day of classes was a homecoming for Mrs. McCern as she graduated from Bloomsburg State Teachers College before obtaining her Master of Education degree from Pennsylvania State University. The University of Maryland is the destination of Miss Honora Noyes, whose position Mrs. McCern fills.

Miss Gwendolyn Reams replaces Miss Elsie G. Bower as assistant librarian. Miss Reams comes to the "college on the hill" from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg, Virginia. The University of Alabama is her original alma mater, and the George Peabody College for Teachers, the college from which Miss Reams received her M.A. degree.

Filling the position left vacant on the Special Education staff is Mary E. Kramer, who gained her B.S. degree from the Kutztown State Teachers College and her M.A. degree from Lehigh University. Miss Kramer's predecessor, Miss Marjorie Stover, is on the faculty of the Jefferson Junior High School in Williamsport.

Mr. Donald W. Herberholz, who replaces Mrs. Warren Johnson in the Art Department of B.S.T.C., has travelled from the Jackson Public School System of Jackson, Michigan, to join our faculty. Mr. Herberholz received his B.A. degree from Michigan State and his M.A. degree at the University of New Mexico, where he served as a member of the faculty.

With an A.B. degree from Franklin and Marshall College and an M.A. degree from Columbia University, Mr. Claude L. Bordner completes the new faculty list as Mathematics instructor. Mr. Bordner comes to B.S.T.C. from the Pennsylvania State University, where he has completed additional graduate study.

EDUCATORS MEET

Bloomsburg State Teachers College was the host for the eighth annual conference for elementary, secondary, and business education teachers and administrators on Saturday, November 6, 1954.

Registration was from 9:00 to 9:30 in Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School for Elementary Education, Navy Hall for Business Education, and Bloomsburg High School at Center Street for Secondary Education. Lectures and demonstration lessons were given on all grade levels for each specific division in the respective registration buildings from 9:30 to 10:50.

The theme of the 1954 Conference was "Growth Through Reading." Demonstration lessons in the Elementary Curriculum were presented by the teaching of the training school and leaned towards developing the theme of the conference. Following the activity of each room, a discussion for the group present was led by prominent persons in the field of education from the college service area. Miss Edna J. Hazen was the director for this group.

Modern languages, social studies, English, mathematics, biology, and geography were the fields chosen for demonstration lessons in the Secondary Curriculum. Co-operating teachers of the College presented the lessons, and the discussions were led by college staff members. Dr. Ernest H. Engelhardt is the director for the Secondary Education section of the Conference.

In the Business Education Department, the program included the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of Business Education at Bloomsburg. This Conference presented a pre-celebration feature in the persons of Miss Madeline Strony who spoke on "Teaching of Secretarial Subjects," and John A. Pendery, who discussed "The Teaching of Tax Record Keeping." Dr. Thomas B. Martin, the new director of Business Department, was the director of this phase of the Conference.

From 11:15 to 12:45, a general session was held for all teachers and administrators in Carver Hall Auditorium. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of B.S.T.C., presided over this part of the program. The Girls Ensemble of the Teachers College, under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy J. Evans, presented a musical program. After this musical introduction, Dr. Andruss greeted the Conference group, and introduced the speaker for the occasion.

Dr. Leland B. Jacobs, Professor of Education at the Teachers College of Columbia University, spoke on "Man and His World of Books."

Following the General Session, a luncheon was served in the Waller Hall Dining Room at 1:00. During the luncheon hour, the Brahms Trio of Williamsport entertained.

COLLEGE FEATURES REGION-IN-LIFE WEEK

This year, for the first time, Religion-in-Life Week was observed on the campus of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. This event was suggested and planned by a representative group of students of the Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish faiths under the guidance of Clayton H. Hinkel, sponsor of the local college Student Christian Association, and other members of the faculty.

The theme for the program was "We Seek God—in prayer, in college life, in our home, in our vocation, and among our fellowmen."

On Tuesday, November 16, at 10 a. m., The Rev. Raymond Shaheen, pastor of Messiah's Evangelical Lutheran Church, South Williamsport, addressed the student body. At 7 p. m. there was an informal discussion on "How Can We Deal with the Social Problems of the Campus?"

Rabbi Isaac Vander Walde, Congregation Bethel, Sunbury, spoke at a Vesper Service in Carver Auditorium on Wednesday, November 17, at 7 p. m. Another informal discussion followed at 8 p. m. The subject was "What Should the Boy-Girl Relationship be During Courtship?"

Thursday, November 18, at 10 a. m., The Right Rev. Monsignor George D. Mulcahy, V. F., Pastor, St. Edward Church, Shamokin, was the speaker. The third discussion group was at 3:30 p. m. The subject, "What are the Problems of Mixed Marriages?"

Rev. Shaheen is a graduate of Susquehanna University and the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg. He has participated in various Religion-in-Life Week conferences on college campuses. He has been serving in South Williamsport since 1940. He is the writer of a weekly column, "Musings of a Minister."

Rabbi Vander Walde was born in Germany, and he received his Ph.D. degree from the University and was graduated from a Rabbinical school in Hamburg. He is chaplain for the Jewish inmates at the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, at Laurelton State Village, and at the Danville State Hospital. He is counsellor for Hillel, the Jewish student group at Bucknell.

Monsignor Mulcahy attended Mount Saint Mary's College and Seminary, Emmittsburg, Maryland, and he was ordained to the holy priesthood in 1934. He was Diocesan Director of Scouting and Youth Activities from 1939 to 1944, and was named Domestic Prelate to His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, in 1945. He has been pastor of St. Edward Church, Shamokin, since 1953.

The three informal discussion groups met in the social room of Science Hall. The topics were suggested by students, Bloomsburg ministers and members of the faculty led the discussions.

The marriage of Miss Gloria DeCeasare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeCeasare Mahanoy City, to E. Wilson Hagenbuch, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hagenbuch, Berwick, is announced. The couple was married April 19 at Walter Reed Army Chapel, Washington, D. C.

They are residing at 818 Sheridan Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C. Mrs. Hagenbuch, a graduate of Mahanoy City High School, is employed in Washington. Her husband was graduated from Berwick High School, B.S.T.C. and Valley Forge Military Academy.

EMPLOYMENT GRADUATES AT COLLEGE IS HIGH

In collecting the figures for a professional bulletin to be issued by the President of the College under the title "Development of a Decade and a Half (1938-1954)," Dr. Harvey A. Andruss reports that the year after graduation eighty-three per cent of the students available for employment were teaching in the public schools while thirteen per cent were employed in other occupations. Thus the total employment exceeds ninety-five per cent.

Of a total 2,185 graduates, 219 went into the Armed Services following graduation and eighty-two pursued graduate studies so that 301 were not available for employment the year after graduation. Of those available for employment less than five per cent are accounted for in the category of married women, who either did not desire to teach or could not secure a position near their homes.

This record, while unusually high, is being resurveyed and the results are being compiled by Dean John A. Hoch, Director of Public Relations of the 1,800 graduates from the years 1941 to 1953, inclusive. Replies have been received from 1,250 students. When a similar study was made for the 10-year period from 1931 to 1940, it was found that seventy-seven per cent were employed in teaching and fifteen per cent in other occupations. This was approximately ten per cent higher than the employment figures compiled a year after the graduation of each class. It is not expected that the eighty-three per cent in teaching will be ten per cent higher. It can hardly be expected that more than 90 per cent can be employed in teaching due to a choice of occupations other than teaching by men who return from the Armed Forces and others who pursue graduate work and enter other occupations. However the Bloomsburg State Teachers College has one of the best pictures of what happens to its graduates and one of the best demonstrated placement records of any college in the country.

B.S.T.C. HONORS HER NUMEROUS AUTHORS BY LIBRARY DISPLAY

Bloomsburg took the opportunity of this Homecoming Day to honor the many authors among her colorful display featuring many of faculty, alumni and students. A colorful display featuring many of these authors was set up in the college library, and some of each writer's work was included in the display so that students and Homecoming Day visitors might see the fascinating materials and varied content of the publications.

Included in the library display were the publications of many of our current faculty and administration heads. For example, Burgess Business Law by President Andruss, Growing in Citizenship by Mr. Barton, and Rowe Typing by Mr. Rygiel, were included in the display.

Also displayed were What Happens Is by Mrs. Marie Colt Reese, who is a B.S.T.C. graduate and has written this amusing book about Mrs. Clarice Hummel, another B.S.T.C. graduate, and alumna Eleanor Sands Smith's book of poetry, St. Martin's Summer. A famous B.S.T.C. writing team is Mr. and Mrs. John Bakeless. Our library contains five books by Mr. Bakeless, including books about Daniel Boone and Christopher Marlowe. Mrs. Bakeless (nee Little) has written several books such as Story Lives of Great Composers, and Birth of a Nation's Song.

Two members of the class of 1954 had magazine articles published: David Newbury breaking into "The Commonwealth" with Danville's Iron Past, and Al Chiscon appearing in "School Science and Mathematics" with Skulldugery. Both of these articles are illustrated with snapshots taken by the authors.

Many of the other articles were intended for professional magazines, and tend to be of a technical nature, such as Dr. Kuster's A Study of the General Biology, Morphology of Respiratory System and Respiration of Certain Aquatic Stratiomyia and Odontomyia Larvae (Dystera), and Dr. Seronsy's Marginalia by Coleridge in Three of His Published Works. Several faculty members have written in the educational field, for example, Dr. Hallisy, Mr. Gehrig Budget Procedures for Extra Curricular Organizations, Mr. Hinkel, Mr. Henrie Techniques of Staging School Fashion Shows, Mr. Schleicher, and Mr. Ralph Fisher Smith.

Mr. DeVoe and Dr. Russel have each published articles of general interest on varied subjects.

In a pretty autumn ceremony at Bloomsburg Methodist Church recently, Miss Emily Barbara Bethel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Maitland Bethel, Miami, Florida, became the bride of Harry Jay George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry George, Bloomsburg.

The Rev. Thomas Hopkins, pastor, performed the double-ring nuptials.

The bride graduated from Miami Edison Senior High School and Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida. She is a member of Gamma Alpha Chi, honorary advertising sorority. She is assistant editor of Tropical Homes and Gardens Magazine.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Bloomsburg High School, attended B.S.T.C. and is a graduate of Florida State University. He is a member of Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity. A former sergeant in the U. S. Marine Corps, the bridegroom is now employed by Francis Scott Key Hotel, Frederick, Md.

SURVEY SHOWS NEED OF GRADUATE STUDIES

A growing need for the addition of a program of graduate studies to the curricular offerings of the Teachers College is indicated by the results of a study which is now being made of the 1845 graduates of the college from 1941 to 1953. Only eighteen per cent of the more than 1250 alumni who answered the questionnaire mailed to them have completed the requirements for the master's degree, leaving more than a thousand graduates of the college who would likely be interested in course work at the graduate level, if and when it is offered at Bloomsburg.

A total of 229 Bloomsburg alumni reported that they have been awarded graduate degrees since their graduation. Of that number, 186 are men and forty-three are women. Those who have earned advanced degrees represent roughly one-half those who said that they began graduate work.

The Class of 1947 holds the distinction of having the largest percentage of its members in the master's degree class—forty-three per cent but all six male graduates of the Class of 1944, who returned their questionnaires, hold graduate degrees—a record 100 per cent.

Bucknell University leads the list of institutions which granted master's degrees to Bloomsburg's graduates, the Lewisburg institution having conferred graduate degrees on seventy-six B.S.T.C. alumni. Teachers College, Columbia University, is second with twenty-seven, while New York University trails with twenty-five and the Pennsylvania State University is fourth with twenty. In all, thirty American universities and colleges are represented on the list of institutions which Bloomsburg graduates have reported as having conferred master's degrees on them.

College authorities have been studying the possibility of establishing a graduate program on a part-time and summer basis. A faculty committee headed by Clayton H. Hinkel is developing certain items of information concerning the demand for graduate work, and a postal card survey of the graduates of the institution as well as public school teachers in the college's service area will be made in order to determine how many would be interested in work at the graduate level on a part-time and summer basis. Approval by the State Council of Education is necessary, however, before any graduate courses can be offered.

AIR FORCE TRAINING PROGRAM

Approximately twenty-six Air Force Reserve officers from Central Pennsylvania have completed the first month of instruction in a completely new paid training program for flying officers who are members of the Air Force Reserve. The classes, held at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, are the first paid instructional program offered to air reservists since the end of World War II.

All officers receive one day's base pay for each class they attend, and it is expected that several additional classes will be established in the near future for airmen and officers.

The present class in air operations is a specialized one on weather for air crew members. Air Force manuals, films, maps and other instructional aids are used by the instructor, Brad Sterling, of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College faculty.

The twenty-six flying reservists are preparing themselves for any emergency which may arise to threaten the security of the United States. The course they are now taking is designed to bring them up to date on the latest air operational techniques and methods.

The training flight is commanded by Lt. Col. Neil M. Richie of Light Street, who urged all Air Force reservists and all former Air Force officers and airmen to investigate their eligibility for the paid training. A class in administration for non-flying officers will start soon, and classes for airmen are being organized. Full information may be obtained by writing to 9548 Air Reserve Squadron, First National Bank Building, Bloomsburg.

MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS

Bids have been solicited for major improvements to Waller Hall at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, with proposals opened on October 20 at the Harrisburg office of the State Department of Property and Supplies.

In addition to extensive Waller Hall changes, the projects include the removal of a town landmark. The present brick wall and fountain in front of Carver Hall at the top of College Hill, is to be removed to make way for an attractive new entrance that will provide for additional parking space in front of the main administration building.

In Waller Hall, the former office of the president will become the office of the Dean of Men. Offices vacated by the Dean of Instruction will be converted into office space for the Dean of Women, the assistant dean of women and the dean's secretary. The present office of the Dean of Women will become the living room of a guest suite now confined to a single room and bath.

The whole area will have new acoustical ceiling and vinyl tile floor. The present main lobby of Waller Hall will have terrazzo floor and new lighting fixtures. Space formerly occupied by the business office will be converted into a lounge connecting with the present main lobby and will continue the theme of large arches. Recessed lighting will be included.

The area on the outside of the Waller Hall Lounge will be torn out to provide a new entrance to the lounge and on either side will be offices for the Community Government Association, the Obiter and the Maroon and Gold. New ceiling and floor will be provided and the faculty lounge, which is in the same area, will have a new glass wall.

In the Waller Hall Lounge, the remaining bleachers on the west side will be removed and an elevated floor will be built in providing for the new book store and college canteen. The balance of the interior will be finished in knotty pine to match the recently-remodeled north area of the Lounge.

Alert defensive football led to three touchdowns in the first 9 minutes and 43 seconds of the opening clash of the 1954 football season for Bloomsburg Teachers College Huskies and iced the way for a decisive 28 to 0 triumph for the Maroon and Gold over the Mansfield Mountaineers.

The only sustained drive of the afternoon came the first time the Huskies had the ball in the last half. Bobby Dipipi, the sophomore T-attack general from Old Forge, took a punt on his 14 and returned to the 34. Then the running attack started to roll. Boughner, Browning and Boychuck carried in running up five consecutive first downs and Boychuck took it over.

The Bloomsburg Huskies, taking up where Hurricane Hazle left off, splattered a highly-touted Wilkes College eleven, 44-0, before 3,000 Homecoming Day fans on Mt. Olympus.

Led by the whippet-like running of halfback Jimmy Browning and the pin-point passing of quarterback Mike Lashendock, Coach Jack Yohe's charges completely outclassed the Colonels who had dreams of extending their winning streak to three games.

Browning gained 180 yards in nine carries and ripped off two touchdowns on sensational sprints measuring 53 and 68 yards. Lashendock fired for two six-pointers and scored the third TD himself after setting it up with two long passes.

Bloomsburg's big, bruising forward wall had Wilkes' running attack back-peddalling all afternoon, stopping cold such heralded ball-toters as Ronnie Rescigno, Andy Brezney and Al Nicholas. Rescigno and Nicholas ended up with minus yardage while Brezney managed a net gain of eleven yards but could do nothing until the fourth quarter when Yohe used an all-Frosh team.

Taking keen delight in their role of spoilers and playing it to the hilt, Bloomsburg Teachers College Huskies tumbled King's College from the unbeaten ranks at Memorial Stadium, Wilkes-Barre, by the decisive margin of 49-0.

It was the second week in a row that the Maroon and Gold had placed the first blemish on the 1954 mark of a Wilkes-Barre collegiate football team, and the charges of Jack Yohe looked even sharper against King's than they had seven days earlier in blasting Wilkes, 44-0, before a homecoming day throng, here.

Sharpening up their game for sterner tests ahead, the Huskies made their aerial maneuvers click as they hadn't at any previous time in this football season and sent blockers down field to tumble King's defenders in a manner reminiscent of Hazel's effort on trees during her recent visit.

A stalwart New Haven Owl line that completely throttled the Bloomsburg Husky attack until the issue was decided, was the big factor as the New England Teachers College tumbled our Maroon and Gold footballers from the undefeated ranks, 26-14, before a small gathering on the windswept sports plateau of the "friendly college on the hill."

It was the last home appearance of the '54 campaign for the Huskies and the two things that will stay long in the memories of our local knights of the moleskin and their following are these:

They didn't register a first down until 13:26 of the third period when New Haven had the ball game wrapped up and sealed for special delivery.

They fumbled six times, losing the ball on each occasion. In addition, they suffered a blocked punt early in the game to provide a seeming psychological handicap from which they never recovered.

The result was another evidence of what a potent attack weapon a good defense can be, especially when it is seasoned with loose ball handling by the opposition.

Bloomsburg was completely outplayed through the first half and the major portion of the third period and what happened after that, while a balm to the Husky faithful, really didn't matter.

Taking command with a 73-yard march for a touchdown in the second period, Bloomsburg Teachers went on to a 21-13 triumph over California Teachers on the latter school's gridiron.

The victory was the second conference triumph for the Huskies and kept them in the forefront of the loop standings.

A California team that played rugged football and filled the air with passes constantly challenged the Husky lead but was never able to draw on even terms with the invaders.

A varied attack with the principal factory in the Husky triumph. Two of the touchdowns were made through the air and the third scoring opportunity was established through a pass interception and a 14-yard roughness penalty on California on that play.

BASEBALL COACH

Dr. E. Paul Wagner, professor of psychology, has been named baseball coach at Bloomsburg State Teachers College according to an announcement made by President Harvey A. Andruss. Dr. Wagner succeeds Jack W. Yohe, who was named coach of wrestling. Yohe tutored the Husky diamond crew for the past two years.

The new Husky baseball coach hold the degrees of Bachelor of Science, Master of Education, and Doctor of Education from the Pennsylvania State University. His teaching and coaching experience includes one year at the Stony Creek Township Junior-Senior High School, eight years at Donora High School, and two years at Mohawk College in New York state. At Donora High School, he coached such standout performers as Stan Musial, the hard-hitting St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder; Bimbo Cecconi, one-time University of Pittsburgh grid star, and Arnold Galiffa, West Point quarterback and All-American.

During World War II, Dr. Wagner served as an officer in the United States Navy, including a hitch as a V-5 instructor at the University of Georgia.

Coach Yohe will take charge of the varsity wrestling squad immediately following the close of the grid season. Until that time, the Maroon and Gold grapplers are working out under the direction of Tom Welliver, one-time state schoolboy champion from Shamokin. The Husky matmen will meet eight intercollegiate rivals during the 1955 campaign.

DANNY'S GLOVE IN MUSEUM

Danny Litwhiler, whose major league career was highlighted by a 187-game errorless record as an outfielder with the Phillies and Cardinals, recently received official notification that the glove with which he set the record has been received for display in the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, New York.

Sid Keener, director of the Hall of Fame and its museum, paid additional tribute to Danny in the following letter:

Dear Danny:

Your errorless glove that shattered a record for outfielders has arrived. I want you to know that I consider it one of the prize mementoes for display in the Baseball Hall of Fame.

The unique angle which impresses me is the fact that you held the National League record for errors among outfielders in 1941, fifteen to be exact, and the following year you participated in the 151 games without a single miscue.

This ex-outfielder of semi-pro days in St. Louis, 1906 era, marvels at that errorless performance. I played rightfield and at this late date I will make this confession—I was the worst in any baseball uniform to the extent that I know I muffed at least one fly in every game. On one particular occasion, I dropped two as early as the fifth inning, was yanked by the manager, and if memory serves, was fired right on the spot.

Thus, you will note, Danny, that I cherish your glove with deep personal pride. I looked at it, wrapped it around my left hand, and said to myself:

How could he do it?

Please know that I will find a prominent spot in the Hall of Fame for your glove. Among others with a background similar to yours is Neal Ball, who turned the first unassisted triple play in 1909; Bucky Harris, who established records at second base in the 1924 World Series, Washington vs. New York; Frankie Frisch, with a high total of putouts and assists at second base for the Cardinals in 1927.

Bloomsburg, Pa., is not too far from Cooperstown, N. Y. This is my way of extending a personal invitation to you. With warmest wishes, and again thanking you.
Sincerely,
Sid C. Keener.

Over a hundred members of the three service groups attended the affair, held in the Montour Hotel, and heard Chief Burgess John Bausch, who is also the Rotary Club president, laud Lewis for his many contributions of time and energy to various phases of community betterment.

The selection, the second annual award of this type to be made by the service clubs, was made by a joint committee and kept secret until the moment of presentation.

Political Science Department of Bucknell University, who spoke following the presentation declared that it was one of the most worthwhile actions that the service clubs could have taken. He expressed the wish that thousands of other American communities would make similar awards, declaring that the idea behind the plaque is important to preservation of the American way of life.

He is an elder of the church, teaches a Sunday School class and sings in the choir. Have Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges Come of Age?

HARVEY A. ANDRUSS, President

State Teachers College

Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania

Individuals and Institutions

Coming of age means one thing to individuals, while it may mean something else to institutions. Individuals graduating from a Teachers College have probably come of age in the legal sense and also in an academic sense, but they have still to demonstrate their professional responsibility.

Age As A Measure of Maturity

While individuals may get married at eighteen, vote at twenty-one, and make legal contracts according to the law of the particular State in which they live, there is no such measure for the maturity of colleges. If so, we could say that in 1955 our college has been on a four-year basis since 1934, at which time only students for the Bachelor's Degree were admitted, thus marking the passage of twenty-one years.

Institutions mature, or come of age, not on the basis of the passage of an interval of time. They cannot be viewed in the same way as individuals. Generations are sometimes required for institutions to achieve

Academic Respectability

Sometimes the outward display of collegiate status has been too pretentious.

When the Goths overcome the Romans, we are told, these conquerors arrayed themselves in togas and strutted about the Forum spouting orations in ornate Latin style with greater aplomb than any of the Roman Senators. Young colleges sometimes fall into this error. In achieving academic respectability, the Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges have been slow to follow the outward show of traditions and trappings whose sources have long since been lost in the light of the Middle Ages.

Being a part of the public school system, our college calendar is the nine month—180 day—36 week calendar of the public school rather than the two semesters of 15 or 16 weeks comprising the traditional academic college.

Faculty ranking has only recently been established in State Teachers Colleges as a part of a mandatory salary schedule following the pattern of the public schools.

If academic respectability, i.e., the conformation to academic traditions, were the measure of maturity, or coming of age, then the Pennsylvania Teachers Colleges may not qualify by the mere length of academic processions headed by marshalls with maces, or rigid plans of organization, such as department heads, professorial rank, adherence to a policy of publish or perish, do research or resign, or many of the other current traditional practices.

Professional Responsibility

However, if we do not view coming of age in terms of the passage of years or achievement of academic respectability but in terms of being professionally responsible for the education of teachers, it is another story. All Pennsylvania Teachers Colleges are now accredited by the Pennsylvania Council of Education, the Middle States Association, and the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education. This means that they have been recognized by the State, Regional and National Accrediting Associations. In terms of professional responsibility, we can say that Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges are on the road to coming of age or maturity.

The Heritage of History

Those graduating in 1955 commemorate a century of Teacher Education in Pennsylvania. They are the inheritors of history which began in a very modest way in Lancaster County for the first time in 1855, when James P. Wickersham discovered a need for separate institutions for teachers. This need grew out of his observation of teachers in one-room rural schools. Wickersham was a meticulous record keeper, and he has left us in his diary the notes which he took over a century ago. Here are five examples.

1. Teacher—Can scarcely understand English—speaks to the pupils altogether in German—teaches in the old way—knows nothing about the improved modes of teaching—may do his best but is unfit without more knowledge to teach either English or German.
2. Teacher—Dull, slow, and ignorant—writes miserably—teaching, reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic equally bad—is unfit to teach and yet is wanted by the neighborhood.
3. Teacher—A female, the only female teacher in all this country—industrious—speaks too low—teachers reading well, by example—asks miscellaneous questions in Grammar and Geography—has improved methods of teaching—is an excellent teacher.
4. Teacher—Inexperienced—pronounces English badly—has some idea that there is a better way of teaching—with a good deal more knowledge and influence may make a teacher, but is a poor one now.
5. Teacher—Old, and very old-fashioned—sits with his hat on—seems feeble—I doubt whether anybody can teach worse—no energy—no life—no improvement—poor beyond hope of amendment—amputation is necessary.

The law providing for County Superintendents was enacted in 1854. It is interesting to note that James P. Wickersham, of Lancaster County, had his salary fixed at $1,500 per year, the highest in the State, and Joel Bradley, of Columbia County, received only $300 per year.

Under the 1854 law, County Superintendents conducted examinations, issued teaching certificates, inspected schools, kept public attention focused on educational problems, and encouraged teachers to remedy their deficiency on a voluntary basis by attending teachers institutes which were organized to increase their proficiency in common school subjects and, as Wickersham put it, learn something about the "business of teaching."

The Lancaster County Normal Institute opened April 17, 1855, for a three month period in the build-

Mid-Year Commencement

Pennsylvania's fourteen teacher-education institutions have probably come of age in a legal sense and an academic sense, but they still must demonstrate their professional responsibility, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the Teachers College, declared at the mid-year commencement, in Carver Hall auditorium.

Speaking on "Have Pennsylvania Teachers College Come of Age?", the educator declared that this is so "to the extent that the college and their graduates will do more than is required of them by the school laws of the commonwealth."

President Andruss conferred the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education on fifteen members of the class. Dr. Thomas P. North, dean of instruction, who retired at the end of the present semester, presented diplomas to the following degree candidates:

Business — Mrs. Olive Hunter Buynak, Taylor; G. William Creasy, James Roberts, Mifflinville; Ann Snyder, Elysburg; Robert Snyder, Sunbury.

Elementary — Dorothy Barnes, Starrueca; Mrs. Anne Rutter Lee, Northumberland; Dolores Miles, Mt. Carmel; Theodore Thomas, Nanticoke; Constance Wallace, Wilkes-Barre.

Secondary — Ronald Couch, Tamaqua; G. Richard Dietz, Mark Morris, Bloomsburg; John Nemetz, Shamokin; Jacob Slembariski, Moeanaqua.

COLLEGE SECOND SEMESTER TOTAL SETS A NEW RECORD

With American colleges and universities accommodating more students than ever before, Bloomsburg State Teachers College reports the largest second semester enrollment in its history. With a registration of 817 students, the college enrollment figure exceeds the former high of 778 students registered in February, 1950, following World War II.

Included in the second semester figures are 116 Freshman students, the largest group of first-year students to enter college for the second semester since January, 1946, when World War II GIs were returning from overseas. The Freshman class numbered 270 in September, 1954.

A breakdown of the 1955 enrollment figures indicates that the Department of Business Education has become the largest division of the college with an enrollment of 289, as compared with 284 in the secondary curriculum and 244 in the elementary curriculum.

Men outnumber women on the Bloomsburg campus, 498 to 319—a unique situation in American teacher - education institutions. However, in the Department of Elementary Education, there are only sixty men, with a ratio of three women for every man enrolled. The secondary curriculum has a seven to one male ratio, while there are two male students for every woman studying in the Department of Business Education.

...IMPRESSIONS FROM 'DOWN UNDER'...

By Anne Northrup Greene '34

When I acquired my husband through "lend-lease," (I always say it was lend-lease as so many American boys married Australian girls during the war and I evened things up a bit by marrying an "Aussie" at that time), I naturally became interested in my husband's home country and looked forward to seeing the place of his birth. This opportunity presented itself last February when my husband and I made a trip to the South Pacific.

Our first stop was Honolulu, a place I'd always dreamed of visiting and which, to me, will always be the loveliest kind of a dream! From the time one steps from the plane and is greeted with a perfume-scented flower-lei and a welcoming kiss, one lives in a dream world. The island is beauty itself with its lush growth of tropical flowers and fruits and its happy people. Nowhere have I encountered more friendly and hospitable people! Nothing is too much for them to do if it adds to the pleasure of visitors to their island paradise and everyone smiles. The air is balmy and pleasant and the blue, blue water which washes the lovely white sand beaches seems to caress the shore with its white-tipped waves giving one a feeling of quiet relaxation and unhurried pleasure. In Hawaii there is that delightful marriage of tropical island charm coupled with the cleanliness and comfort of the mainland.

Reluctantly leaving Hawaii after four days, we flew 5,000 miles on our next hop which brought us to Auckland, New Zealand. At the airport we were met by friends who were to drive us by easy stages to their home 400 miles south in Wellington, the capital of New Zealand. After an overnight stop in Auckland, a city which resembles the cities of England, we started toward Wellington. New Zealand has much rolling sheep country and we traveled over winding hilly roads, from time to time encountering groups of wild horses as we rounded a curve in the highway.

Our first day's drive brought us to the thermal region and a resort called "Rotorua." Here geysers shoot steam from breaks in the rocky ground and spray the surrounding foliage with a sediment which turns everything into a petrified forest. Pink terraces are formed on the rocks and, as one walks, one feels the warmth beneath the earth through the soles of the shoes. There are hot bubbling mud pools and deep boiling springs, while nearby will be found cool running streams and calm pools of cold water.

In this area of New Zealand, the Maori people (the real native New Zealanders) have a settlement. These people are brown-skinned with dark hair and eyes but with quite fine features. They have a highly developed culture and consider it a disgrace to marry into the white race. They have beautiful voices and lovely folk-music. The popular song "Now Is the Hour" was written to the tune of one of their loveliest folk-songs.

The Maoris live in a community of their own, using the warm pools for bathing and the boiling springs for cooking their food. Within a stockade in this village they have built some of their earlier types of grass-roofed houses and ceremonial huts, the latter being of carved wood set with mother-of-pearl and painted with ocher.

In this thermal area the Maoris are forced to bury their dead above ground as one might uncover a new geyser or steaming pool if he attempted to dig into the earth. Many new springs break out constantly and the visitor has an uneasy feeling as he walks about on the warm rocks for who knows what is under the next step?

Leaving Rotorua we drove south through the lake region into a desert covered with scrubby growth but sprinkled with buttercups. From here we could look up to the huge snow-covered mountain

"Ruapehu" next to which stands "Ngauruho" an active volcano a mere 20 miles away.

Wellington is a modern city built around a lovely harbor, and as one first sees it he is struck by the contrast of colors. Yellow gorse-covered mountains slope down to the deep blue harbor around the edge of which cluster hundreds of brightly-colored tile-roofed houses.

Inside the city I was again startled by the similarity of this New Zealand metropolis to those of England and many say the New Zealander himself is more "English" than the English as he has retained many of the old customs of England and the patriarchal family system.

From our friends' home we visited many points of interest in the North Island and then left on an overnight boat for the South Island. Here we drove again through rolling country first but this sharpened and soon we were winding through, around and over rocky, brown mountain-land with the valley between scrubby and barren.

Toward the end of the day we started down a narrow, winding, hairpin trail which was wide enough for only one car and which led to a fertile plain and a few farm houses, the first habitation we had seen for hours! This plain led us to Queenstown, a lovely little settlement surrounding "Lake Wakatipu" called "the lake that breathes." It is fed by springs and the water level rises and falls several inches every few minutes. The water is ice cold and few fish can live in it, but is very clear and beautiful and reflects the green trees on its shores and the snow-capped mountains which surround it.

After two days rest we drove to Christchurch, known as "the city of flowers." Flowers are grown in every available space. Homes, streets and different sections of the city compete for prizes for the best presentations each year.

From Christchurch we flew to Melbourne, Australia, and here I had my first look at "the wide brown land" so named because Australia's lack of rainfall keeps the landscape brown - tinged throughout the year.

Melbourne was gaily decorated, for this was the occasion of Queen Elizabeth's tour of Australia and we had arrived on her last day in Melbourne. Everything was a fever of excitement! Everywhere were crowds of people lining the streets and the buildings were a mass of colored lights, flags, bunting and lighted crowns. Our host drove us into town to see the festivities as this was the night of the final reception for the royal couple and everyone hoped to catch a glimpse of the Queen. Being short and unable to see anything in a crowd, my hopes for seeing even the royal standard on the car were slim until my husband and host made a seat of their hands and raised me above the crowd where I could look down into the limousine and view the "Fairy Queen" in her white ermine and jewels, seated beside the handsome blond Duke.

We had made plans to fly to Tasmania for the week-end so left next morning for this green island state south of Australia's mainland. It is a fertile black-soiled area surrounded by a rocky coastline and produces Australia's finest crops of potatoes and apples. It is much cooler than the rest of Australia. Here in its fern-edged streams is found one of the most peculiar animals in the world, the platypus. He is a shy four-footed creature, half animal and half bird. He has a duck's bill and webbed feet, is covered with beaver-like fur and has a tail resembling that of a beaver, lays eggs, is as much at home in water as on land and seems to be a hold-over from prehistoric times. Australia being one of the oldest continents, believed to have been a part of Asia in ages past, has many strange animals similar to those of prehistorical mammals.

Returning to Melbourne we made excursions to outlying spots of interest including "Ballarat," one of the old gold mining cities to which many of our unsuccessful "Forty-niners" went and made their fortunes in the fifties.

Our next flight took us to our destination, Sydney, my husband's "hometown." We were greeted by a delegation of friends and relatives and given a royal welcome and there began seven weeks of sightseeing, visiting and exploring.

Sydney is a large modern city built around a harbor which is said to be one of the two most beautiful harbors in the world, (Rio de Janeiro being its only rival and I should not want to have to choose between them for each has its own special appeal). The basin is an extinct volcano with wonderful blue Pacific water, miles of golden sanded beaches and full of man-eating sharks! The city has a population of over 1,500,000 people and has its beautiful suburbs, slum areas and all the characteristics, good and bad, of most modern cities. In the harbor stands the famous "coat-hanger" bridge which missed being the longest single span in the world when San Francisco completed one three feet longer just before Sydney's was opened to travel.

There are tall buildings and apartment houses but, as the people do not like to be "cliff dwellers," and there is plenty of room in Australia for expansion, most families live in red-tile-roofed one-story houses with small flower gardens in the front and vegetable gardens in the rear of the buildings.

With Sydney as our base, we made many trips into the Blue Mountains, to the seaside spots, and to various cities, including Canberra, the nation's capital. Here I first heard the laugh of the kookaburra, a short fat bird (about the size of a small owl) found only in Australia, whose laugh so resembles that of a human that even Australians are fooled at times when they hear it.

Canberra is built in a saucer of land, a former sheep station, surrounded by mountains and patterned after our own nation's capital, with tree-lined streets and well planned official buildings.

In Sydney we attended the Royal Easter Show, a glorified fair of outstanding proportions, witnessed a surf carnival where we saw the famous Australian life guards drill, wandered through narrow city streets, and enjoyed the shops and parks.

Outside the city we explored mountain trails, hunted wild flowers with camera lens, and watched the sheep-dog trials, a competition in dog disciplining and handling of sheep.

One of the greatest thrills of the trip was seeing the adorable koala bears of which I'd heard and read so much. This little fellow is the original "teddy-bear" with gray-brown fur, a flat leathery nose, devoid of tail and defense and one of the most lovable little animals I've ever seen! He is affectionate and cuddly, cries like a baby, drinks no water and eats the leaves of only six of the wide varieties of eucalyptus trees. These leaves contain a drug which makes the little bears sleepy and they crawl into a fork of the tree and there sleep, being detected by only the keenest eye. This little animal is one inch long at birth and lives in its mother's pouch until six months old. When fully furred and six inches long, he emerges and is carried pick-a-back until an adult one year of age.

Another curious animal native to Australia is the kangaroo whose smaller relative is the wallaby, also a pouched animal, and these produce a third variety called the "wallaroo." All these animals use their strong tails as a springboard and can be very swift moving in flight, although they appear to be very clumsy creatures.

Australian life is a cross between our own and that of England. Being of English descent, the Australians always speak of England as "home." They, like the New Zealanders, have a patriarchal form of society and children are strictly disciplined and educated in the English tradition. The teen-agers are less sophisticated than American adolescents.

Mother tends to make her home and family her chief interests leaving the worries of politics, government and international affairs to the man of the family. The Australian housewives have less of the modern conveniences and luxuries than our American women and their work fills longer hours and is harder because the average home cannot afford the labor-saving devices we acquire so cheaply. But food, clothing, recreation and fun are plentiful and easily accessible and the Australians are a healthy, happy people.

The country has a socialistic form of government. The laboring class is protected by all sorts of laws governing hours and wages, insuring the worker a living wage, children's allowance and medical care, and allowing him ample leisure time to enjoy swimming at the beaches and the other sports of which Australians are so fond. But these laws tend to forget the laborer is also a consumer and work to his disadvantage at times. When a worker wants to go on a trip at the week-end, he must be sure to buy his "petrol" before the station closes at noon on Saturday when all service is discontinued until Monday. He must reach the hotel at set meal hours as food is not served outside of hours scheduled and there are few restaurants available. No one works in shifts to give round-the-clock goods and services and the grocer, baker and other tradesmen must close their shops at stated times and not sell outside government dictated hours. Excess profits are heavily taxed and this tends to stifle initiative. The average worker does not strive to work longer and make more profit because all income beyond a certain level is so heavily taxed that there is no incentive to accumulate wealth. Most Australians have the attitude, "why try to get more when what we have is adequate for our needs." This point of view, in my opinion, will retard Australia's progress and continue to keep it a country of the future until this type of government is replaced by one less restricting to competition and initiative.

The people "Down Under" are among the most hospitable in the world and are keenly interested in America and Americans. They all hope to visit "The States" and love our baseball. They could not understand my lack of knowledge and interest in this sport as they think all Americans who are not baseball players are naturally baseball fans!

When one enters an Australian home, the kettle is immediately put on to boil and one isn't invited to have a cup of tea; he is served it automatically with an array of homemade scones and cakes that would make an American housewife blush; for the measure of a housewife's hospitality there is the number of cakes and cookies she can produce at a moment's notice for the unexpected caller.

On April 24th there was a large group of well-wishers at the airport as we took off from Sydney. Already it was Autumn in Australia and Spring in Washington seemed a welcome prospect as there is no central heating in the Australian home. Twenty-four hours in flight brought us again to Honolulu where we basked in the warm sunshine four days before flying to San Francisco and on May 3 we were safely home.

Our trip took eighty-two days and we traveled 25,000 miles, a distance equivalent to a trip around the globe. We reached Washington with more than 400 Kodachrome slides; we were tired and overweight, but full of pleasant memories of the wonderful experiences we'd shared with friends "Down Under."

Each time I leave my country and travel beyond its borders, I come home with increased respect and love for our great land and its system of government. I am made more and more aware of the fact that nowhere in the world do so many people enjoy so much of the good things that make life comfortable, happy and worthwhile than in the good old U.S.A. When I see "Old Glory" waving from the top of a building as I fly into "home port," I experience anew the thrill

SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS

County County Alumni of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College will be asked to share in a drive for scholarship funds during the month of March, it was announced by Paul G. Martin, business manager of the college and treasurer of the B.S.T.C. Columbia County Alumni Association. Plans for the solicitation were made at a recent meeting of officers of the group held at the college.

Mr. Martin said that the town of Bloomsburg has been divided into sections for solicitation by committee members. Similar groups will canvass alumni in Berwick, Benton, Millville, Catawissa and Scott Township. Letters will be mailed to alumni, asking their help in raising funds to help educate worthy students for the teaching profession, although every effort will be made to contact individual alumni personally.

A complete report is to be made at the annual dinner meeting of the county Alumni group Saturday evening, April 16, at the Bloomsburg Elks Club. The dinner will be held at 6:30 o'clock, EST.

Mr. Martin has asked that interested Alumni contact him at once if they would like to help solicit funds. Those who wish to give their contribution now can do so by mailing it in care of Mr. Martin at the college.

KATHERINE LITTLE

BAKELESS

The Waterbury, Connecticut Sunday Republican commented on Katherine Little Bakeless' newest book entitled "In the Big Time" that, "you can't brush the silver-grey dust from the blue jacket of this book. It's pure star dust."

Star dust, as everybody knows, is the stuff that gets into the mind's eye of nearly all young aspirants for success in the entertainment world. Mrs. Bakeless' In the Big Time unfolds the vivid star dust stories of fourteen of the biggest "big time" entertainers, including such famous personages as Fred Astaire, Burl Ives, Hildegard and Marian Anderson.

Early in her own life Katherine Little Bakeless felt the magic of the star dust for, at six, she was already on her way to a long and talented career as a pianist. Bloomsburg is proud to acclaim that it was here where she was born and began to study piano. She was the daughter of the late President Judge Robert and Mrs. Little, whose Mayflower ancestry traced back through the famous John Alden-Priscilla Mullens marriage. She received her diploma and music certificate from the Bloomsburg State Normal School, where she met her future husband, Colonel John Bakeless, soldier, scholar, and writer.

After graduation, she entered Peabody Conservatory, in Baltimore where she studied under Immanuel Wad, a pupil of the Viennese teacher Leschetizsky, who had taught Paderewski. In 1920 she married Colonel Bakeless and moved to Cambridge, Massachusetts, where she studied under Heinrich Gebhard, at the same time teaching music at Belmont Hill School.

Six years later, she studied in New York City under Bruce Simonds, now Dean of the Yale School of Music. Mrs. Bakeless spent several summers in Europe, where she studied under the great teachers, Berte Jahn-Beer and Tobias Mathley. During these years, she associated with well-known musicians and music lovers. Instead of continuing with piano, she felt that she could do more to encourage appreciation of music, so she turned to writing about musicians and other entertainers. Her efforts resulted in the publication of five highly entertaining and informative books.

Her first book, published in 1940, was Story-Lives of Great Composers. In this book she included lively biographical sketches of nineteen composers from the modern Stravinsky back to Searlotti. This, like her succeeding books, was written in an easy conversational style and provides good background material for the music lover.

Her other books, The Birth of the Nations, The Battle Hymn of the Republic Story, and Story-Lives of Great American Composers, have become exceedingly popular and are found in most libraries over the United States.

In fact, on one of their many trips to various parts of the United States, the talented couple, Mr. and Mrs. Bakeless, made a game of checking libraries in many towns to see which of the two had the more books in each. Mrs. Bakeless usually won in public libraries, but Mr. Bakeless won hands down in university libraries, mainly because of his scholarly articles.

Colonel and Mrs. Bakeless now reside on a farm near New Haven, Connecticut, where the talented authoress devotes her time to gardening, writing, music and the raising of Kerry Blue dogs.

KELLER FEATURED IN SATURDAY EVENING POST

A recent issue of The Saturday Evening Post featured the story of George J. Keller, the Bloomsburg ex-professor who gave up teaching at the local Teachers College to devote full-time to wild animal training.

In an article entitled "I'm Scared All the Time," Murray Morgan tells that until 1942 Keller regarded his work with jungle beasts as a sort of hobby. Then he was booked into Atlantic City's Million Dollar Pier at $400 a week.

The author relates that for ten years after turning professional Keller remained a summertime trouper, spending his winters teaching the techniques of art instruction.

Then, in the summer of 1952, he wired his resignation to the college from Chicago, immediately after his first appearance on a televised circus show. The message read, the article relates: "When the public appreciates from a dollar-and-cents standpoint the teacher of human beings as much as it does the teacher of wild animals, then I will go back to the college classroom."

Keller told Morgan that many people thought he was crazy to quit the college, giving up a full professorship and the security of an eventual pension, but he says his only regret is that he didn't do it sooner.

DR. HAAS RESIGNS

Dr. Francis B. Haas, former President of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, and Superintendent of Public Instruction more than fifteen years, resigned Monday, January 17, his resignation taking effect the following day.

Dr. Haas' resignation placed that $15,000 cabinet post at the disposal of Democratic Gov.-elect George M. Leader, one of the most important positions in the state government, since the instruction department spends 500 million dollars a biennium, half of the state's general budget.

Dr. Haas' term, without the resignation, would have extended until August.

He has held the post continuously since 1939 through administrations of Republican Governors Arthur H. James, Edward Martin, James H. Duff and John S. Fine.

Dr. Haas said his resignation was "for purely personal reasons." He added that he does not have any immediate plans for the future other than to "take a little vacation."

"Pennsylvania will feel deeply this great loss with your departure from active administration after many magnificent contributions to its schools and youth," Gov. Fine said in disclosing an exchange of letters between Haas and himself.

The Public Instruction Department supervises Pennsylvania's educational establishment which spends $500 million a biennium—half of the state's general budget. Governor Fine described the department's success as a monument to "your prudent guidance and intelligent direction . . . to no small measure."

"The commonwealth has been served well by your several administrations. You effectively articulated the essential needs of the schools and supported well the administrative directors. You have always promoted the best interests of our teachers for greater educational progress," Fine wrote Haas.

Dr. Haas, a teacher and principal before becoming associated with the department, makes his home in Harrisburg. He is a native of Philadelphia and served in the school system there.

In 1920 he joined the department staff as assistant director of the Teachers' Bureau. He was deputy superintendent for a year before taking charge in 1925. Between 1927 and 1939 he was president of Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

In his letter of resignation Dr. Haas said:

"It has been a privilege and a great opportunity to cooperate with you in advancing the cause of education in the commonwealth. Every phase of our program has received the benefit of your interest and your active support."

In a lovely home wedding performed on Christmas night, Miss Ruth Emma Singley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Singley, Zion Grove, was united in marriage to Meade Wilbur Shuman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur W. Shuman, of Bloomsburg R. D. 3.

The Rev. C. E. Keafer, Mifflinburg, performed the double-ring ceremony of the E. U. B. Church at the home of the bride's parents.

Both graduated from Beaver Township High School. Mrs. Shuman attended the Shamokin School of Beauty Arts and Sciences and is a beautician in the Mary Larish Shop, Bloomsburg. Mr. Shuman is employed at Bloomsburg Mills, Inc., and is attending B. S. T. C.

NAMED COACH

Daniel W. (Danny) Litwhiler, a ten-year veteran of the National Professional Baseball League, has been named baseball coach and instructor at the Florida State University. Arrangements have been made by him to continue his studies at the institution, working toward both a master's degree and a doctorate.

Litwhiler succeeds Ralph Matherly as coach. Matherly went to FSU in 1950 and had considerable success with the team. He is leaving to direct his energies in other fields. There are a number of returning varsity players.

The local resident, who is widely known throughout this section, had been managing in the minor leagues for the past three seasons. He completed his big league career with Cincinnati as a coach, being put back on the player roster in late season for pinch hitting.

During his major league career he played with Philadelphia, St. Louis, Boston and Cincinnati. He was on the St. Louis Cardinal World's Champions of 1944 and in one of those games hit a home run. Litwhiler has retained residence in Bloomsburg for several years and owns a home just off the Teachers College campus. It is the former residence of Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Reams. Mrs. Litwhiler and the children are still in Bloomsburg. Florida has an enrollment of about six thousand students.

Annie Potter Trescott '85

Mrs. Boyd Trescott, eighty-eight, a native of Bloomsburg and resident of Columbia county most of her life, died this past winter at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Trescott, Richboro, near Philadelphia.

Death came from complications. Mrs. Trescott had been in ill health for a number of months and critical since last October.

During her residence in the county she was identified with numerous civic endeavors and for many years her interest was centered in the Berwick public library. In that time she did virtually all of the book buying.

Exceptionally interested in all current affairs and a keen student of history, Mrs. Trescott loved books.

The daughter of the late G. A. and Catherine Potter, she resided in Bloomsburg during the early part of her life, and was a graduate of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, class of 1885.

She removed to Millville in 1887 where she taught school. Her marriage to the late Boyd Trescott, who died in 1948, was solemnized in Millville on Christmas day 1887. Millville at that time had two one-teacher schools. Mrs. Trescott taught one and Mr. Trescott the other.

Her father, who was a publisher through most of his life, published and edited the Millville Tablet. During the trials of the infamous Mollie Maguires he established, on a temporary basis, the first daily newspaper in Bloomsburg's history. During that period his daughter, then a child of about twelve years, handset type for the publication.

When Hester, Kelly and McHugh were hanged some time later in the Columbia county jailyard, then located at the site of what is now the high school playground, she was one of the few of her sex to witness the execution.

She assisted her father with the publishing of the Tablet until his death in 1911 and then was publisher and editor of the paper until it ceased publication in 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. Trescott at that time removed to Berwick where they resided until Mr. Trescott, a civil engineer and for many years county surveyor, retired in 1942. Then they went to the Philadelphia area to reside with their son, a member of the editorial board of The Evening Bulletin, Philadelphia.

An expert needle worker, Mrs. Trescott spent hours almost daily in that sort of work until the past summer. Some of her creations were of exceptional beauty.

The survivors include the son, Paul, and two grandsons, Paul Barton and Alfred P. Trescott.

She was a member of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Berwick, and the Evan Owen Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Berwick. She was long a member of the Order of Eastern Star.

Mrs. K. Maude Smith Fausel '87

Mrs. K. Maude Smith Fausel, former member of the faculty at Bloomsburg, passed away in November in a nursing home in Concord, North Carolina.

Mrs. Fausel was born in Massachusetts and was a graduate of Holyoke College. She taught in the schools of Mahanoy City and later came to Bloomsburg to accept a position as critic teacher.

Her later life was spent in Albemarle, North Carolina, teaching music. After her retirement she made her home at the Maralise Hotel.

Of pioneer stock, Miss Dodson was descended from John Dodson, a Quaker, of Knaresborough, Yorkshire, England, who fled to this country to escape religious persecution in 1677, and settled in what is now Burlington, N. J. Her mother's family settled nearby, at about the same time.

Upon graduation she took charge of a survey of various emigrant aid societies in the principal ports of this country for the U. S. Emigration Commission. Her report led to closing of some of the societies because of their abuses and to the reorganization of others.

In 1911, Miss Dodson turned to magazine work, first on the editorial staff of Vogue, then on the Housekeeper, a Collier-Nast publication. She was later associate editor of Harper's Bazaar and then became managing editor of that magazine. Her work was recognized by her inclusion in "Who's Who in America." In 1920 she joined the editorial staff of the Ladies' Home Journal, where she was one of the four executives whose names appeared on the masthead of the magazine.

versity conferred him a doctor of education degree in 1935, and he received an honoray degree of doctor of science from Gettysburg in 1943.

HAVE PENNSYLVANIA STATE TEACHERS COLLEGES COME OF AGE?

ings of the Millersville Academy with 147 teachers in attendance. At that time the average male teacher received a yearly salary of $118.88, and the average female teacher $79.02, while the cost of this institute was $37.50. You can understand the sacrifice that was necessary to attend these institutes, when women were willing to pay half and men one-third their salary for bettering their preparation for teaching.

Undoubtedly, the County Superintendents had a great deal to do with the development of these short term institutes, housed in rented quarters, into separate schools for the preparation of teachers.

The Lancaster County Normal School was founded and finally became, after the passage of the Normal School Act of 1857, the first of the State Normal Schools in 1859. This same James P. Wickersham became State Superintendent, and in 1867, on a trip through the Northeastern part of Pennsylvania, passed through Bloomsburg on the railroad in the evening, saw the lights from the student lamps in the newly erected building of the then Bloomsburg Literary Institute, and the thought occurred to him that this would be good location for a State Normal School. Later he delivered an address in Bloomsburg advocating a conversion of the Literary Institute into a State Normal School, and you will recall that on February 19, 1869, our institution was chartered as a State Normal School.

This is your historical heritage.

Giants of the Profession

As we look back to find out where we have been in order to find out where we are in relation to where we want to go, we recall the biblical quotation that "Giants dwelt therein in old time." Giants dwelt here in those days.

James P. Wickersham, the most prominent of the early County Superintendents in Pennsylvania, organizer of the Lancaster County Institute for Teachers and the Lancaster County Normal School, Principal of the First Pennsylvania Normal School, State Superintendent, one of the leading spirits among the organizers of what is now the Pennsylvania State Education Association, Editor for many years of the Pennsylvania School Journal, and one of a very small group of men to meet in Harrisburg to organize the National Education Association—all these things along with his part in the organization of the Bloomsburg State Normal School, justify his designation as a giant of the profession.

Lancaster County also claims a part in the careers of Thomas H. Burrows, Secretary of the Commonwealth and Superintendent of the Common Schools, President of the struggling institution which now has become the flourishing Pennsylvania State University; and Dr. E. E. Higbee, President of Marshall College, now Mercersburg Academy member of the faculty of Franklin and Marshall, was later State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

But Bloomsburg has also made its contribution to this galaxy of giants. Two of the Heads of Bloomsburg have been State Superintendents, one, Dr. David Jewett Waller, was Principal of the Bloomsburg State Normal School for two terms of office aggregating twenty-seven years, was State Superintendent for four years, and Principal of Indiana State Normal School for twelve years, making a total of forty-three years of service in teacher education, probably the longest Pennsylvania career in teacher education on record. The other, Dr. Francis B. Haas, who was State Superintendent of Public Instruction before becoming President of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College in 1927, and after a term of twelve years is now completing his sixteenth year as State Superintendent, having served under four Governors.

It is also interesting to note that both Doctor Waller and Doctor Haas have been Presidents of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, along with Mr. W. W. Evans, who served as Superintendent of Columbia County Schools for many years, and who was for four years Vice-President of the Board of our Trustees.

Commemorations of Historical Events

On February 19, 1954, we commemorated the Eighty-fifth Anniversary of the chartering of the Bloomsburg State Normal School. The Bloomsburg Beacon was lighted and dedicated to those of our graduates and former students who made the supreme sacrifice in World War II.

Following the passage of the Normal School Act in 1857, an "Educational Harvest Home" was held in Millersville. This was an event commemorating the hope that Millersville would be the first State Normal School. Beginning at nine o'clock in the morning with the distinguished guests assembling in Lancaster and parading to Millersville over a recently constructed turnpike, escorted by a local militia company (Fencibles) and their band in Conestoga wagons. The procession was over a mile in length and included Governor Pollock, who spoke, along with the several County Superintendents. Newspaper reports indicate that the guests were entertained with exhibitions in elocution, phonetic spelling, dialogues, and music in the small school chapel and with sentiments from the pupils appropriate to the occasion. Of the sentiments addressed to the County Superintendent, this one is typical:

"The Superintendents of the three counties—May the White Rose of York, the Red Rose of Lancaster, and the Cedars of Lebanon, be twined in a never-fading wreath of bloom upon their brows."

The State Superintendent was the recipient of a sentiment given by a young lady whose name it is interesting to note was Miss Rose E. Budd, who addressed him thus—

"Thomas H. Burrowes, the steadfast friend of public schools—When old Lancaster wished the plow of progress to turn the deepest furrows, she turned and gave with one acclaim the handle up to Burrowes."

If you will contrast this demonstration of interest in public education with our observance of the Eighty-fifth Anniversary, you will have to admit that the Millersville Educational Harvest Home had a wider public appeal. It was a combination Camp Meeting, Revival Meeting, Political Rally, and Militia Parade all rolled into one. Over 1500 people came in a holiday spirit and filled the seats provided, with more than 500 finding only standing room. Some of the people came with the same spirit with which they went to the County Fair, or saw the butchering of a 795 pound pig at a local tavern.

The Governor was there, great throngs were there, and for many it was an exciting day aside from any thought of advancing the cause of public schools.

Student Life Then and Now

Students have always felt that there were too many rules and regulations. In one of the early Bloomsburg Catalogs can be found the following statements for the guidance and edification of students. The regulations in the Bloomsburg Catalog at that time read as follows:

"1. The young ladies and gentlemen are not allowed to pause and loiter for intercommunication in the Halls, Society Rooms, Dining Rooms or Parlors, unless by special permission. Neither are they permitted to walk, ride or correspond with each other.

"5. In the time intervening between the close of afternoon study hours and the supper hour, the boarding students have the privilege of leaving the grounds and walking in the neighborhood of the School.

"6. After evening Chapel exercises, the students are to repair immediately to their rooms for study; the study hour ending only with the ringing of the first retiring bell, at quarter before ten p. m. During this time no visiting of rooms or loud talking is allowed, and no student is permitted to leave his floor without permission from the teacher in charge."

Sometimes the student reaction to these regulations carried over into Alumni Meetings. Evidently Millersville, and I doubt not Bloomsburg, had strict rules which chafed both sexes.

An article by J. W. Coates, titled

"The Autocracy of Millersville" will be a case in point (or in print). This was an address delivered at a well attended meeting of the annual Junior reunion on June 4, 1881. The speech appeared to be based on facts. At that time it was considered to be quite inflammatory. Here is a paragraph or two.

"And mark you the consistency: A man may not speak to his wife on these grounds, a lady to her brother, a gentleman to two ladies old enough to be his grandmother; but any insignificant member of the faculty whom strangers do not know from Adam, upon whose brow no look of superior intelligence sets to distinguish him from the common herd, can sit for hours talking to any lady students. Certainly, if a member of the faculty can do this and the school not fall into disrepute, why shall not a man walk with his own sister on these grounds?

"The author writes not as one desirous of spending his time with the ladies on these grounds. He has no fond dove with whom he wishes to coo on this yard; but he desires to see common sense and common decency exercised at this school; he wishes to see an institution fostered and supported by the public conducted in the interest of the teachers whose welfare it pretends to seek; and he desires to see men and women treated as such and not as children."

Stages of Development

If 1955 marks the end of a century of Teacher Education, it also may mark the crucial year in the development of State Teachers Colleges. Again we must look backward for certain significant dates which may help us to determine the time of change even though its nature may not be discernable in the immediate past or the foreseeable future.

1907 was the year in which Dr. George M. Phillips of the West Chester State Teachers College first made a formal plea for the purchase of the then private Normal Schools by the State. This was repeated in 1909 and incorporated in the School Code in 1911.

1913 was the year of the purchase of the first State Normal School, West Chester, by the State.

1920 marked the completion of the period of purchase of thirteen of the State Normal Schools.

1927 was the year when State Normal Schools became State Teachers Colleges in name, since they continued to offer two-year curricula.

1934 was the year that the issuance of the two-year Normal Certificate was discontinued and these institutions became State Teachers Colleges in fact.

1941 was the year of the outbreak of World War II, and a section was inserted in the School Code so that over 2,500 students were housed, fed, and instructed in State Teachers Colleges at one time to become Army Aviators, Army Postal Clerks, Navy Deck Officers, Naval Flight Officers, Nurses, etc.

1948 found the State Teachers Colleges cooperating with Pennsylvania State College in accepting Freshmen students. World War II Veterans were accepted in large numbers with their tuition being paid directly to the college by the Federal Government.

1955 is the year in which consideration is being given to the applications of State Teachers Colleges by the State Council of Education to offer graduate courses leading to the Masters Degree.

Have We Achieved Professional Responsibility?

If coming of age is not calculated by the number of years that State Teachers Colleges have been four-year colleges, or by their conformations to college traditions, but by their professional responsibility of educating teachers for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, we are still left with the question of coming of age unanswered.

Even though we seem to discern a pattern, or a rhythm, in the dates of 1907, 1913, 1920, 1927, 1934, 1941, 1948, and 1955, we are dealing with quantity rather than quality, the time of change rather than the nature of change, and it may be that we are confusing change with progress.

It is evident that Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges are still developing, and I trust that they will never come of age in the sense that they will find a place in the system of higher education of Pennsylvania, and having found such a place continue the same practices that many other colleges have continued long beyond the time when they have ceased to meet the need of the public schools.

If this development of over 100 years is to continue, then it must be in the spirit of Bruce Barton writing in the current January, 1955, Reader's Digest, under the title of "The Best Advice I Ever Had." He takes the text from one of his father's sermons, which was

"And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain." The challenge of the Second Mile is the challenge of coming of age, but never becoming aged.

He tells all about the work he did for a publishing house, work for which he was not paid, working longer than the eight hours put in by the rest of the staff. He tells of drawing $10.00 a week of a $40.00 a week salary because the business in which he was employed was in financial difficulties. And finally he tells of an Irish lad who came to the publishing house for a summer job and stayed on as office boy and mail clerk. One morning he came and said, "Mr. Barton, what books should I be reading?" Thus Duffy, the Irish office boy, became, in time, one of the most valuable men in the concern. When Bruce Barton retired as President, and the company faced the choosing a young successor, even though there were one-hundred college men in the company, Duffy, the ex-mail boy, who never finished high school, but who was willing to go the second mile, was made President of the company.

If you, the members of this graduating class, wish to exemplify the institution which is about to confer the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Education upon you, if you would come of age, then you too must be willing to go the second mile.

So I say that, whether Teachers Colleges come of age as collegiate institutions is not so important as the continuance of their willingness to do more than is expected of them in terms of the School Laws of Pennsylvania. Our college will come of age in time, and to the extent that its graduates are willing to go the Second Mile.

E. H. NELSON '11

You may recall that in the issue of December 1954 there appeared in this column the following statement under "From the Quarterlies, July 1910."

"This little note (omitted) will be a stimules to more Normal girls to go west to teach Indians, with the hope of finding a husband!"

The writer of "this little note," now living in Montana, saw the statement and came back with a two-page letter, beautifully written in a vertical hand that belies the years since 1903. Here is the letter:

Mrs. J. E. Keough
St. Xavier, Montana

February 10, 1955

Mr. E. H. Nelson
Bloomsburg, Pa.

Dear "Saucered and Blowed"—

Seeing your reference to a girl who went "West to teach Indians with the hope of finding a husband." I wondered if "this little note"—July 1910 was from this now old girl.

Good Professor Bakeless told me when he learned of my appointment to a position in a Government Indian School in 1903, to accept, as the Indian Service needed trained Normal teachers.

Sent to a newly opened school of 60 pupils all ages from 6 to 16, of whom 4 teen-agers had been in school about one year in other places, you may be able to understand my dismay.

First lessons were to learn names, a friendly ex-Carlisle pupil told me the Indian sign for "I"—forefinger of right hand on tip of nose—proceeding from that ("I am Frank Strikes on the Head," "He is Peter Paul Top Notch," "She is Mary Old Crane," "We are Crow Indians," "They are White Ladies," "Our Teacher is Miss Quinn"), we started our language lessons. My own methods; no course of Study available, but we had results. If sometimes "he" was used for "she" (or either pronoun for "it") a word or a little laugh corrected the mistake.

For 6½ years I staid with my Crows, so you see I wasn't in too big a hurry to acquire a husband.

It was a thrill to find in an Indian employee's quarters a picture of a Carlisle football team with Profs. Sutliff and Hartline among them.

Several times I met former Carlisle students who had kindly memories of Professor and Mrs. Bakeless during their stay at that famous school for Indians. Which brings me to their son, John Bakeless and the books of which he is the author.

Having lived for 52 years in a part of the Lewis and Clark country I was interested in what was said about his book in the December quarterly, and also in "Daniel Boone, Master of the Wilderness."

As I met some years ago, a woman who claimed to be a descendant of Daniel Boone and know her grandson, it seemed they were two of the many coincidences I've met during my long years in the West.

You did not mention the publisher of these books. Please let me know and perhaps I can obtain copies of them which the author may autograph because I knew his father and mother at "Old Normal" in 1893-94.

Sincerely yours
Bridget Quinn Keough

And as a heartening close may I say that the Montour County Alumni group turned over a $50.00 scholarship at their fall dinner meeting, and that Kathryn Spencer, president of the Philadelphia group gave me her personal check for $25.00. Thanks Sincerely.

See you all May 21st.

BLOOMSBURG --- BIGGER? BETTER? OR BOTH?

Harvey A. Andruss, President
Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania

For more than ten years our college has been requesting additional plant facilities from the General State Authority through the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

During this period twenty million dollars has been allocated to the fourteen State Teachers Colleges. If divided equally, each college would have received more than one million four-hundred thousand dollars. With the reconstruction of our heating plant, costing less than four-hundred thousand dollars, and the allocation of four-hundred sixty thousand dollars for the building of a new dining room and kitchen, Bloomsburg will have received about eight-hundred fifty thousand dollars.

We have been told that our physical plant is in better condition than that of other colleges. Only two State Teachers Colleges have received less for construction than Bloomsburg.

The present allocation of $450,000 for the construction of a new dining room, kitchen and storage building on the site of the old tennis courts, with an additional $10,000 for equipment, is inadequate. Plans have been drawn to come within this amount. They do not provide for a terrazzo floor in the dining room, and complete modern kitchen equipment. Our Board of Trustees has passed a resolution which has been sent to the proper state authorities requesting that the $450,000 allocation be raised to $530,000, which, we understand, was the original figure fixed by the General State Authority at the time this project was first proposed.

With the expenditure of twenty million dollars in the fourteen State Teachers Colleges, we find that the capacities of these institutions have not been increased appreciably. New buildings have been built to replace structures varying in age from fifty to almost one-hundred years. We have now come to the place where Pennsylvania must decide whether or not it is going to increase the capacity of the State Teachers Colleges so that they may serve more students who want to become teachers in the public schools of the Commonwealth.

The enrollment situation as of June 15, 1955, while duplicated in some other State Teachers Colleges, is very acute at Bloomsburg, as shown by the following figures: With the year just closed May 31, 1955, we find we have had 900 full-time students during two semesters, divided as follows: 535 men, 365 women. The Freshman Class of 1954 numbered 409 including 177 entering the second semester. We now face the reduction of the class of Freshmen and entering students for September, 1955, to 270, which with 664 returning students will give an enrollment in excess of 925. We have had 235 applicants up to June 15, which we will not be able to admit. In former years, over half of our admissions were made after June 1, therefore we anticipate 200 or 300 applications which we can only file, since we do not have available faculty or facilities. This means that we shall admit one out of every three students that apply.

If graduation and student dropouts permit, we may admit 345 new students if space is available for seventy-five Freshmen students in January, 1956, making our total enrollment about 1,000.

Last year we had the largest enrollment in the history of the institution, and when we increase it by ten per cent we will have reached a point above which any additional number will lower the quality of instruction and our ability to treat students as individuals in a small college atmosphere.

Since our dormitory capacity is slightly more than 400, our dining room capacity 500, and our auditorium capacity 867, we will have 200 students (mostly men) living in the town of Bloomsburg next year.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction, Budget Secretary, Department of Property and Supplies, General State Authority, along with all the members of the Legislature in the counties surrounding Bloomsburg have been advised that immediate plans should be made for:

(1)—A new dormitory to accommodate 250 men to cost at least $1,125,000; (2)—Replacement of the 1875 barn with a new storage building to cost $100,000; (3)—An Auditorium to seat not less than 1200 to cost $700,000; (4)—A Classroom Building to include science laboratories to cost $750,000.

In addition, the following expenditures are necessary:—(a)—Renovation of the present dining room space to provide for Library space for the next five years—$50,000; (b)—Renovation of present second floor Library space for dormitory purposes—$50,000.

COMMENCEMENT

"Ideals are within us . . . they are given their meaning and drive by the way we experience the things that influence us and how we in turn deal with people and things," declared Dr. Martin P. Chworowsky Monday, May 23 to an overflow audience at the annual commencement exercises at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. Dr. Chworowsky, director of the Albert M. Greenfield Center for Human Relations at the University of Pennsylvania, pointed out that "ideals represent something we desire and can lose their attraction for us if we feel our efforts to achieve them are of no avail."

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Education was conferred by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss on one hundred thirty-eight seniors who were presented by John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction.

Dr. Andruss explained to parents and friends of the graduates why he could not endorse some of the bills currently being considered by the state legislature to alleviate the shortage of teachers in our Commonwealth. At the same time, he suggested a number of other proposals to deal with the problem, namely, raising teachers' salaries and changing certification procedures.

In addition, Dr. Andruss repeated the need for expanded facilities at the college so that young people, who are interested in preparing for teaching, would not have to be denied the opportunity for securing their training at Bloomsburg.

The Rev. Thomas J. Hopkins, minister of the Bloomsburg Methodist Church, pronounced the invocation. Howard F. Fenstemaker was at the console for the processional, the Alma Mater, and the recessional, Nelson A. Miller was the director of music.

BACCALAUREATE

"Humility is essential in success of all kinds. Think not more highly of yourself than you should," declared the Rev. Elmer A. Keiser on Sunday, May 22 in delivering the baccalaureate sermon to one hundred thirty-eight seniors at the State Teachers College.

Speaking on the theme, "Humility before God," Rev. Keiser pointed out to all members of the audience, "If you desire riches, honor, and a more abundant life, you must be humble before God. If you go after the things that are right—not for the aggrandizement of self, but for the glory of God—then you will be humble, and God will lift you up."

Rev. Keiser, pastor of St. Paul's

Episcopal Church, Bloomsburg, also pronounced the invocation and the benediction during the exercises. President Harvey A. Andruss read the Scripture, and the College quartette sang "How Gentle God's Commands." Nelson A. Miller was director of music, and Howard F. Fenstermaker was at the console. Immediately after the baccalaureate service, a tea was held in Waller court for students, faculty members, and guests of the graduating class.

A former Bloomsburg State Teachers College student, Sheldon Erwine, graduated on December 15, 1954 from the Officers Basic Course at the Marine Corps School in Quantico, Virginia. Second Lieutenant Erwine was commissioned in the Marine Corps last summer and began the intensive five-month indoctrination course in July. Upon completion of the course, he was ordered to duty with the Fleet Marine Force, or to advanced specialty schools.

Miss Clarabelle Davis, Clarks Summit R. D. 2, and Clarence Walter Troutman, Lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force, were married Saturday, April 30, in the Milwaukee M.E. Church in Clarks Summit.

ALUMNI MEETING

Bloomsburg State Teachers College, if provided the facilities, can grow to an institution of fifteen hundred students within five years, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the college, told alumni at their general meeting.

Speaking of the introduced legislation to acquire additional land adjacent to the College, he said there must be room to put buildings when the money is provided for them. He added it was not the desire to put anyone out of their homes but it was simply the necessity of looking ahead. "We have had this proposal in our budget for twenty years. We never got the ear before of someone who would introduce the legislation."

He was referring to the bill which provides for the purchase of seven properties and would appropriate $175,000 for this purpose. Reference was made to the fact that the bill would be worthless if the right of eminent domain is not included.

Dr. Andruss said he regretted that two bills had been presented in this Legislature by the representative from Columbia county (Albert E. Strausser.) He predicted neither would get out of committee and would not pass if they did.

One bill, having for its purpose the keeping of teachers educated in Pennsylvania teaching in the schools of the state for at least four years, would require students in teachers colleges to pay $500 tuition per year. This would be returned to them at the rate of $500 per year as they taught in commonwealth schools.

He believed such legislation would cut the enrollment in teachers colleges fifty, sixty to seventy percent. "How many of you could have paid $500 tuition a year when you came here? I could not have paid that much when I went to college," the educator asserted.

"Some who graduate from our teachers college go to other states and the proposer of the legislation does not seem willing to remedy this by increasing salaries," the College head told the alumni.

It would be just as fair, he pointed out, to demand that all who take agriculture courses at the Pennsylvania State University be required to farm in Pennsylvania; those who graduate in law at Pennsylvania or Pittsburgh practice the profession here; those who get degrees in medicine at Jefferson or Hahnemann remain here to administer to the ill.

If, he continued, it was deemed wise to hold teachers in Pennsylvania, then all that needed be done would be to hold transcript of credits until they teach a certain number of years or until it is established there are no teaching positions in Pennsylvania for them. Andruss reminded that some educated in other states come here to teach.

The other bill would rate teachers under tenure by examination of teachers and pupils at four year intervals.

The aim of the bill would be to cut from the ranks those under tenure who are not satisfactory, but the College head was doubtful that this method would work and he was sure it would be costly.

"I don't pretend that everyone under tenure is a capable teacher. We need methods to get rid of the lazy and incompetent, but it would be difficult to cover that situation in a law. It is an administrative problem. Those bills are ill advised and would serve no good purpose. They were not introduced at the instance of any in Columbia county."

By September this College will have to turn down two of every three seeking admission. This is the situation in most Pennsylvania colleges. Private institutions have stated they will be unable to increase capacity more than fifteen percent. So those who wish to go to college are clamoring at the doors of public institutions.

As of May 7 there were 706 students who had paid advanced registration fees for the year beginning in September. The freshmen enrollment had to be closed as of May. The College is now striving to bring the numbers of old and new students within the 900 limit.

The enrollment next fall, if facilities were available, would be 1,100. It has been suggested to the state authorities that Bloomsburg's future capacity be raised from 1,000 to not less than 1,200.

Dr. Andruss said that with an enrollment of at least 900 next year, 200 men will have to live in the town where a hundred resided during the past year and the College will refuse admission to a large number of women since dormitory accommodations have already reached their limit.

Buildings necessary, he said, are a new dormitory for 250 men to cost over $1,250,000; replacement of the old storage barn with a new storage building, $100,000; auditorium to seat not less than 1,200, $700,000; classroom building to include science laboratories, $750,000.

Also required are renovation of the present dining room space to provide for a first floor library, $50,000, and renovation of second floor library space for dormitory purposes, $50,000. Dr. Andruss observed that the latter program assumes we will not need a new library until a later date and it also assumes that $175,000 shall be made available for the purchase of land as provided in the House Bill 703 and Senate Bill 380.

We have made progress in the past, he said, but today the institution faces a greater challenge than ever before. "If we are to meet the needs of those we serve, this program cannot go on as it has been. Our sister institutions are going to expand and we must too."

CITATIONS AWARDED

A world recognized authority on the construction of tunnels, an educator and editor and a man who has devoted forty-five years of his life to building up the vocational education program of the youth of the commonwealth were recognized for their achievements recently in one of the highlights of an outstanding Alumni Day at the College.

Recipients of the Distinguished Service Awards were:

Miles I. Kilmer, New York, class of 1900, in charge of construction of the Holland and Lincoln Tunnels, New York, and many other major projects.

E. Joe Albertson, editor and co-publisher of the Peekskill, N. Y., Evening Star, class of 1901, and a leader in the building of the educational programs of the Philippines and Peru.

Howard C. Fetterolf, Mifflin township, a member of the class of 1910, chief, vocational education in the State Department of Public Instruction forty years and a consultant and trainer of teachers in agriculture programs in both Germany and Korea.

Mr. Kilmer was presented by the Rev. J. E. Klingaman, Winchester, Va.; Mr. Albertson by J. E. Shambach, Camp Hill, and Mr. Fetterolf by Fred W. Diehl, Danville.

The latter, a graduate of the class of 1909, was making his first appearance before the alumni body since his recent elevation to the presidency of the College board of trustees. He was named to succeed the late Reg. S. Hemingway. Mr. Diehl has served on the board for over twenty-two years and was long the vice president. He has been superintendent of the schools of Montour county thirty-seven years.

Named to the board of directors for three year terms were Earl Gehrig and Howard F. Fenstermaker, town, and Mrs. Ruth S. Griffith, Wilkes-Barre. Gehrig succeeds Miss Harriet M. Carpenter, long treasurer, who was recognized for her outstanding service. She declined reelection.

Dr. E. H. Nelson presided at the general meeting and the class of 1955 attended in a body, sang the Alma Mater and were admitted to membership in the association.

Members of the class of 1905, honor class of reunion, were seated on the platform. Reports of the association's student loan fund, now helping a large number of students, was presented by Mr. Gehrig. Mrs. Charles C. Housenick gave the secretary's report. Concluding feature of the meeting was the report of the reunion classes. Oldest class represented was 1888 which had Mrs. Annie Nuss, town, and Mrs. Mary E. Jones, Scranton, present.

Mr. Shambach in his presentation of Albertson told of his going to the Philippines immediately after graduation here and of his becoming principal of the high school in Manila where he instructed many who are now key men in the government of that nation. He spoke of his service in the islands as teacher, superintendent of schools and later as a member of the provincial board before he took over the principalship of the high school.

In 1918 he was appointed trade advisor in the Bureau of Exports of the War Trade Board of this government, a bureau that had control of the issuing of licenses for exportation of restricted strategic materials. In 1921 he was appointed by the U. S. State Department as a member of a commission to go to Peru, at the request of the president of that nation, and modernize its school system. Since 1924 he has been editor and co-publisher with Donald F. Ikeler of the Peekskill Evening Star.

The citation was made to him as "a pioneer teacher, school administrator, educational counselor, U. S. trade administrator, editor and publisher."

Mr. Diehl in presenting Mr. Fetterolf spoke of his as a teacher and principal for five years, chief of the bureau of vocational education in the state for forty years, state director of food production in World War I, in charge of the training of 625 agriculture teachers in Korea in 1948, consultant of the U. S. Army in agriculture education in Germany in 1949, member of the State Farm Show Commission fourteen years.

The award was made to him as an "educational leader, patriotic citizen and Christian gentleman" who had devoted "forty-five years of service to the youth of the state and nation."

The Rev. Mr. Klingerman spoke of the outstanding work of Mr. Kilmer in his chosen field and of the fact that in 1946 he received the outstanding construction award in the United States.

His citation was to a "school teacher, farmer and civil engineer" and listed some of his top achievements.

Mr. Kilmer referred to himself as "sand hog" and stated simply "I owe to this Normal School everything that I have." He paid tribute to the faculty of his day, and especially to Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff and to the late Prof. John G. Cope. He referred to his days on the hill and mentioned some of the major construction jobs with which he was associated. He was in charge of construction of Holland Tunnel and has been prominently identified with all major projects of that type since. During the war he was in charge of one project that involved thirty-five million dollars.

Mr. Fetterolf said that the most difficult thing he ever had to do in life was to turn down invitations to return to Korea and to Germany at the request of those governments. He said that the Koreans have nothing and need everything and are appreciative of anything done for them. The German government asked him "come back and finish what was started."

The wives of the recipients of the awards received orchid corsages.

SALES RALLY

Some 800 persons, most of them engaged in one form or another of merchandising, were literally "sold on selling" Friday evening, March 2 as Bloomsburg State Teachers College staged its ninth and most successful sales rally.

Featured speakers were Eugene P. Mapel, vice president of Barrington Associates, who gave the six fundamentals for master salesmanship, and Jim Watson, president of James Watson Associates, who delighted the audience in a theatrical presentation of do's and don'ts in retail selling.

Watson, for almost an hour and a half, squirmed, mimicked, pantomimed, shouted and whispered through the roles of customer and clerk, declared that every salesman should have some "ham" in him and that the only difference between the legitimate theatre and the "retail theatre" is that in the former "You pay before the show" while in the latter, if the show's no good, "no pay."

Mapel, with the illustration of a flannel board, cited attributes of the good salesman; preparedness, presentation of product to show the benefits to the buyer, stimulation of desire, tell the facts eliminate retarding factors that influence the buyer and "ring up sales." In his presentation, the key words spelled out the word "Master" in keeping with his message.

The auditorium was filled to capacity for the event which marks one of the highlights of the college's observance of its business education department's silver anniversary. Dr. Harvey Andruss, president of the college, and founder of the department that has given the local institution high educational regard in the east, extended welcome to the record assemblage. He stated that it was fitting that the college present such a program as a "community service to the business people of the area."

Dr. Thomas B. Martin, director of the business department, credited Charles Henrie, member of the faculty, with the success of the rally. Harold Grossman, Mt. Carmel textile executive, introduced the speakers.

Prior to the rally, a dinner was held in the college dining hall for guests who included members of the Berwick, Benton, Bloomsburg and Danville Kiwanis Clubs. John Hoch, dean of instruction, introduced Fred Diehl, Reg. S. Hemingway, members of the college board of trustees; Frank Croop, former member; Dr. Paul Moser, Robert Newman, Edgar Baker. Ted Glenn, officers of the Kiwanis clubs; William Simmons, West Hazleton, Kiwanis Lt. Governor, and Keith C. Schuyler, secretary of the Berwick chamber of commerce.

Members of the service clubs, merchandising associations and personnel and chambers of commerce of a wide area were represented at the rally.

Watson said that "nobody really knows what retail selling is all about" and cited that over 59,000 books had been written on the subject. He declared that there is no such thing as a "non-selling" employee, that the elevator operator, the credit interviewer, the stock boy all had direct or indirect sales influences. He especially criticized the manner in which most of us answer phones.

"Nothing happens till a sale is made," Watson said, adding "You can be proud that America is the sellingest nation in the world today." Speaking from more than thirty years' experience in sales training, Watson cited the importance of first impressions, emphasizing personal appearance. He deplored the sales person who is careless from a hygienic standpoint, pointing out that the "Customer gets the best . . . even a dog isn't expected to smell anymore." His castigation of gum chewing sales personnel drew a round of applause from the audience.

He urged the use of the "crowning glory of a smile" and advised that not the manager nor stockholder but the "customer is boss." Watson admonished against prejudging a customer but give him a warm greeting and "don't kill with questions. Give him something to play with." Add to the customer's preference and use your imagination. "Love your customer, and if you can't, act as though you do." A warm approach and the customer will open up with his pocket book. Have knowledge of your product. "It's better to admit you don't know than lie about it."

Watson urged that the salesman makes some store official's life miserable by asking questions so you can "stop being stupid . . . stop murdering the American sale." Hit as being missed because of sheer laziness were "suggested" sales.

In the earlier talk by Mapel, he credited the salesman with making the "national economy tick." He said there was an element of "fear" between the buyer and the salesman but that there was "no psychology, no trick, no magic, no gimmicks, no cheating to make a master salesman" as compared to an inept salesman.

Going on to list his six fundamentals, he said all marketing programs are based on "pride, profit and convenience," and that there were three ways to stimulate desire on the part of the buyer, "demonstrate . . . demonstrate . . . demonstrate."

Mapel urged "looking behind objections" to selling and find the solutions for the three sales retardants: price, prejudice and procrastination. "A salesman," he declared, "is always in a foreign country and has to speak the other fellow's language."

COLLEGE FOURTH IN ENROLLMENT

Enrollment figures released by the Bureau of Teacher Education and Certification, Harrisburg, as of February 15, show the total adjusted enrollment of the Teachers Colleges give Bloomsburg the fourth place in rank with an enrollment of 827, with the Bloomsburg enrollment exceeded only by West Chester 1744, Indiana 1655, and Millersville 856. Other Teachers Colleges with comparable enrollments are East Stroudsburg 825, Kutztown 790 and Snappery Rock 766.

Bloomsburg has the largest business education enrollment among State Teachers Colleges with 285 students, Indiana having 275, and Snappenburg only 191.

The total enrollment in the fourteen Teachers Colleges is 11,492 persons, of which 11,250 are full-time students. Of this number more than half are men, Bloomsburg has the highest ratio of men to women of any of the State Teachers Colleges, with approximately 500 men and slightly more than 300 women.

While additional dining room facilities are being provided at Bloomsburg, additional dormitory facilities will also have to be provided if the enrollment increases more than ten per cent above the present figure. In view of the increased demand for teachers, a men's dormitory to accommodate 200 students, and an auditorium to accommodate 1,000 or more, are necessary if enrollment increases are expected. Present applicants for the Freshman class entering in September, 1955, indicate that two-thirds of the quota of freshmen which can be admitted have made application before the Easter vacation.

Undoubtedly, some worthy students will have to be denied admission in September, 1955, at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

COLUMBIA COUNTY ALUMNI GIVE $350 SCHOLARSHIPS

Columbia county alumni of the Teachers College announced at their meeting at the Elks that they have raised $351 thus far in a drive to provide scholarships for the institution with much more to come in. It was decided to give $350 in scholarships during the 1955-56 term.

Don Rabb, Benton, who was a moving spirit in the graduates of the area becoming more active, was renamed president. Other officers reelected were Miss Lois Lawson, vice president; Edward Sharrets, secretary and Paul Martin, treasurer.

The program, arranged by Max Arcus, was a most enjoyable one and attended by around seventy. Dinner music was by William Strang, at the Hammond organ. A delightful feature was provided by the talented Magee Entertainers, John Morris, Jack Eble, John Lyle, Joe Dunkelberger, Harold Albertson and Jack Peifer. One of the bouquets of flowers was sent to Reg. S. Hemingway, president of the board of trustees, who was ill in the Bloomsburg Hospital.

John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, spoke briefly of the coming events at the College and noted that never before in the history of the institution has there been such a large number of applications for enrollment next fall.

He feels sure that the graduates and townspeople generally will like the new entrance now under construction.

Dr. E. H. Nelson, active head of the general body, told of the progress made by the graduate body and of the great tasks ahead. It was decided during the meeting to name a committee of the branch to work with other authorities in any way possible for the advancement of the institution.

Fred W. Diehl, superintendent of the schools of Montour county and a member of the College board of trustees for more than a score of years and the present president told of the organization in Montour county where there are one hundred fifty graduates and where annual branch dinners generally attract ninety or more. Columbia county has a potential membership of 1,200 and those present will seek to build up the annual dinner.

Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, head of the College committee on scholarship, said that there will be $2,400 in scholarship awards this year but that much more money is needed. While the total available is growing it is still not large enough to take care of all the worthy applicants.

Dr. Kuster gave the invocation and Charles H. Henrie led in the group singing.

----- SUPERINTENDENT COLLEGE BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

The appointment of J. B. Knoebel, Elysburg, as superintendent of grounds and buildings at the Teachers College, effective June 1, has been announced by the board of trustees.

At present employed in a supervisory capacity by the S. H. Evert Co., Inc., Knoebel holds a Degree of Bachelor of Science in Architectural Engineering from Pennsylvania State University. He has had experience as a lumber dealer, contractor, sales engineer, and construction engineer for the United States Navy in Virginia, Hawaiian Islands, Philippine Islands and New York City area.

HELPING HAND PLAYS A PART

"Every person who has achieved any degree of success in life has had a helping hand from someone," declared George Derk, Montandon, a member of the 1955 graduating class at the State Teachers College. Derk, elected by his classmates to deliver the annual Ivy Day oration, went on to add: "We cannot possibly get along in life without some dependence upon other people. Therefore, the ability of living and getting along with people is one of the greatest single factors in success."

The Ivy Day exercises, one of the oldest traditions at Bloomsburg, were held in the Waller Court immediately following the Honor Assembly. Arnold Garinger, Harvey's Lake, president of the class, presided during the ceremony. Garinger also planted the Ivy, and presented the spade to William Bitner, Harrisburg, president of the class of 1956.

During the program, June Lukac, Freeland, presented a piano solo. The class sang "Halls of Ivy" and the Alma Mater. Nelson Miller was the director of the group singing. Co-chairmen of the Ivy Day exercises committee were Joanne McCormick, Sunbury, and George Deek, Montandon. Mrs. Olive P. Beeman is the faculty advisor to the class of 1955.

Mr. Derk's Ivy Oration follows:

Tradition brings us here today to observe a ceremony that has become as much a part of Bloomsburg as the Carver Hall Tower—the planting of the ivy. This ceremony indicates the beginning of new life. We plant ivy that it may symbolize by its growth and spreading upward, our own growth and dispersion into the world that awaits us upon graduation. As the ivy draws nurture from the soil in which it is rooted, so are we and all people feeding on the cultural environment in which we grow and think. Thus, within a few days, we too, will start a new life and our prayers go to God that it might be a life filled with service and a life blessed with world peace.

As we stand on the threshold of this new life, let us think of the people and incidents that have helped us attain our present standing. Every person who has achieved any degree of success or position in life has had a helping hand from someone. We cannot possibly get along in life without some dependence upon other people. Therefore, the ability of living and getting along with people is the greatest single factor in success.

A recent article by Dr. William C. Menninger, one of the nation's most respected psychiatrists, states that the difference between success and failure depends on knowing how to get along with other people. About 80 per cent of those who lose their jobs are dismissed because they don't know how to get along with the people for whom or with whom they work.

We will all be a success—some of us will reach a higher degree of success than others. But, the degree of success we attain will be dependent largely upon our willingness to help others.

In order to get along with your fellowmen you must, first, be willing to give more than you receive—and enjoy doing it. You must eliminate that "what's in it for me" attitude. Second, we must try to understand the other fellow—try to see his point of view and not be blinded by our own selfish whims. Third, we must be willing to give recognition to others for their achievements. And fourth, we must be flexible. We must be willing to change our habits and attitudes to fit any situation.

As teachers we have a tremendous opportunity to aid others in achieving this basic principle of success—the ability to get along with others and do it well. We will be working with young people who are at the stage of life when they must learn to make important decisions. Here is our chance to help young people to make an excellent start toward a better position in the world by teaching this basic factor through our love and guidance.

Look at yourself and your past four years experience here at Bloomsburg. Most of us will agree the educational values; that is, book learning, here for us to receive is equal to any university or college in the country. The amount of that book learning you received at Bloomsburg depended largely upon you. But, will you also agree that the education for living you received here is as important to you as your classroom learning. Bloomsburg's emphasis on the living phase of education shows foresight and initiative on the part of our faculty and administration. Through these experiences we learn that living together is also an important part of the educative process.

As we look at the world today we see what some people might term as mass confusion. We live in fear of the power of the Atomic and Hydrogen bombs. We live in constant dread of international communism, but the conclusions drawn from these or any situations depend largely upon one's interpretation of those problems. Anyone who takes a fair appraisal of the world and specifically the American situation today can easily see that good far outweighs the bad.

For instance, the recent development of polio vaccine by Dr. Salk is a great stride toward national and international health. Our nation has just completed the most prosperous and successful business quarter year in our history. The experts who formally predicted "depression for the United States by March 1955" have changed their song to "the most prosperous business year in all our history." Although the communist threat to world peace seems to be increasing, I personally believe that, within America itself, the communist movement is largely under control.

I do not intend to give you an entirely optimistic viewpoint. We are still far from international peace but we are taking some definite strides in that direction.

What does all this have to do with your future? Whether you plan to teach or enter some other profession, you will contact many new faces along the way. You will

RESOLUTION

Board of Trustees
State Teachers College, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania

WHEREAS, the recent retirement of Dr. Francis B. Haas, at the end of a second term of sixteen years as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, which was preceded by his being President of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College from 1927 to 1939, ended one of the longest terms of service in the Department of Public Instruction, dating from 1920 to 1955, and

WHEREAS, his administration at Bloomsburg served to lay the foundation and set the pattern for the institution which only shortly before had been designated as the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, the Board of Trustees, representing the student-body, alumni, faculty, and friends of the College, wish to record this Resolution their appreciation for the professional contributions made by Dr. Francis B. Haas to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the field of Public Education, and more particularly with regard to the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

It is RESOLVED that a copy of this Resolution be sent to Doctor Haas, the Alumni Quarterly, Maroon and Gold (College newspaper), and that have an opportunity to help people to understand themselves and other people around them. This, eventually, will lead to a better, more congenial community and world. The ability to get along with others and to do it well is so important to our future and to the futures of your people we will soon be instructing that, until we get to the heart of this fact, we can never hope for a better world.

As teachers we must not be promoters of education merely for our own community betterment; we must direct our educational endeavors toward the goal of international betterment. World peace will never become a reality until we have individual understanding, for us can never achieve international understanding until we understand ourselves. We must guide young people so that they might understand others.

We should not strive or even hope for a perfect world, but we can take definite steps toward a better world. The children you will be guiding and instructing during the rest of your life are the leaders of tomorrow. Your influence on them will be carried through every endeavor of their life. They are the clay—you are the potter. Upon you rests the responsibility to mold them into respectable young citizens in whom you will not be afraid to place your trust and your children's future. With the help and guidance of God, we hope and pray they may reach this goal.

DR. ANDRUSS RECEIVES PLAQUE

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of Bloomsburg State Teachers College and who earlier directed the destiny of its Business Education Department, passed on much of the credit for that department to his co-workers and Dr. Francis B. Haas, as he received a plaque in recognition for outstanding service.

In accepting the plaque at the noon luncheon that concluded the annual conference of the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania Business Educators Association, Dr. Andruss remarked, "I am deeply grateful and most appreciative of this award. But I think that in giving this award you are honoring a lot of people.

"You are honoring Dr. Haas (former president of the local institution and recently resigned state superintendent of public instruction) who made the decision and application for a business education department here. I am grateful to him because he selected me to come here. You are honoring the people he helped me select. Today in honoring Dr. Haas, you are also honoring these faculty members."

Touching on problems of the institution, including too many students for next year, and of the business education profession, Dr. Andruss pointed out that school department heads in the state have less time to supervise and improve instruction and predicted "The one-teacher business education department is going the same way of the one-room school house with these jointures."

Referring to a study which showed that Michigan schools were failing to add to the business vocabulary of their junior business students, Dr. Andruss commented, "We are no longer teaching some things that need to be taught. x x x We do not have enough business in business education. We need business teachers who have had more formal economics, business law, consumer management, credits and collections and applied psychology.

We cannot build, we cannot grow, we cannot continue on a super structure of hand-finger skills."

Citing that bookkeeping is rapidly becoming a one-year course, he warned the educators, "You will have proportionately less of the high school student's time unless you can demonstrate certain facts, namely that there are values in consumer economics.

"If you can't make Engle's law ite up with the family budget then you don't have education.

"I think we will grow. I think we will eventually have five years for teacher training. Those are your problems in the next twenty-five years."

Presentation of the award was made by Morgan E. Foose, president of the PBEA division. The session opened in the morning with sectional meetings and a general session in Carver Auditorium preceding the luncheon. The general session speaker was Les Giblin, originator of the Les Giblin Sales Clinic, who pointed out the needs of human relations. He advised working with people, encouraging people to talk about themselves, learn to agree with the other fellow, and smiling.

Miss Joan Bucher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bucher, of Bloomsburg, was united in marriage to Richard B. Keyser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Keyster, of Bloomsburg, in a ceremony at five o'clock March 7 in the Methodist Church, of Winchester, Va.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Miller Lewis.

After spending several days in Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Keyser are now residing at their new apartment at 111 East Fifth street, town.

Both graduated from Bloomsburg High School. Mrs. Keyser is employed in the offices of the Magee Carpet Co. Her husband, a veteran of two and one-half years in the U.S. Navy, received his degree from B.S.T.C. and is now employed as an assistant to the paymaster of the Magee Carpet Co.

Andruss and Dr. Kimber Kuster, chairman of the faculty committee on scholarships and grants.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY

Dr. John J. Serff, of State College, has been appointed professor of social studies at Bloomsburg State Teachers College, it was announced by President Harvey A. Andruss.

His appointment is the second faculty addition to the institution in recent weeks. Walter R. Blair, head football coach at Chambersburg high school, had earlier been announced as assistant football coach and assistant dean of men. He will hold the rank of assistant professor of science.

Dr. Serff comes to Bloomsburg after twenty-seven years of teaching in the public schools of State College, where he is currently serving as head of the social studies department. He is a graduate of the Shippensburg State Teachers College and has been awarded the degree of Master of Education and Doctor of Philosophy by the Pennsylvania State University. In addition to his public school service, he has taught intermittently at Penn State and the California State Teachers College.

Along with his teaching duties and graduate work, the new faculty member has served on the state committee for the revision of the social studies curriculum, and has collaborated in writing a textbook "American Government for Pennsylvanians" and a workbook "Learning for Living." Dr. Serff's professional affiliations include membership in the Pennsylvania State Education Association, the National Education Association, the Pennsylvania Council for the Social Studies, the National Council for the Social Studies and the Pennsylvania Historical Association. Dr. Serff is married and has two children. He will begin his duties at Bloomsburg during the summer session.

Mr. Blair, who will begin his duties during the latter part of August, is a native of Philadelphia where he excelled in high school athletics. After graduation, he attended Temple University for several months before entering and serving in the Armed Forces for three years during World War II.

In the fall of 1946 Mr. Blair entered West Chester State Teachers College. He won varsity letters in wrestling, baseball and football, but it was in gridiron competition that he enjoyed an enviable and unusual career, playing in both line and backfield. Mr. Blair's performance and versatility drew the attention of Jack Yohe, who was then serving as backfield coach at West Chester.

Mr. Blair received the Bachelor of Science degree in January, 1950, and started his teaching and coaching career at Neshaminy high school in Langhorne. Two years later, he became head football and baseball coach at Jenkintown high school. In the fall of 1954, Blair joined the faculty of the Chambersburg Area high school as head football coach and director of physical education.

Along with his teaching and coaching duties, the new faculty member has been pursuing graduate work at Temple University. Mr. Blair with his wife and two children will reside in an apartment in the men's dormitory.

FASHION SHOW ON MOON ENJOYED BY MANY

Periwinkle blue and avocado—the two new colors for spring and summer 1955—highlighted the many delightful fashions presented by coeds of BSTC Friday, May 6, in their ninth annual fashion show, at Carver Hall auditorium.

Capacity crowds attended both the afternoon and evening presentations of "Fashions Out of This World." The unusual and effective setting was a space port on the moon which was designed by Daniel Kressler, Olive Payne Beeman and Donald Herberholz. The show opened with a realistic rocket trip to the moon.

Joan Christie, Shenandoah, was the charming fashion coordinator who narrated the show. Barbara Tuckwood, Springfield, presented the millinery styles. Judith Ulmer, Williamsport, was chairman of the store coordinators.

An outstanding feature was the presentation of children's fashions by a group of pupils from Benjamin Franklin Training School. They were Melissa Frey, Debbie Welliver, Douglas Hock, Jan Wilson, Tony Frazier, Jimmy Abbott, Willard Archbald, Barbara Katerman, Jane Hartman, Stephen Tinsley, Anne Baker, Jeanne Faux and Kathy and Kay Hummel.

Billowing skirts supported by crispy petticoats in horsehair, nylon and starched cotton were seen in fashions for every hour of the day and night.

The princess style was seen in several junior cottons—one outstanding style in monochromatic stripes in shades ranging from light lavender to deep bluish purple.

The long torso look was evident even in fashions for the very young miss. Nylons, nylon mixtures and polished cottons were often used. Included in the show were styles in lingerie, bathing suits, sports clothes, afternoon dresses, hats and frothy formals.

The models included Grace Histed, Relda Rohrbach, Janet Ference, Doris Krzywicki, Judith Stephens, Barbara Bennett, Barbara Roadside, Joan Rieder, Mary Grace, Barbara Creamer, Marta Dimon, Bette Gibson, Carol Ely and Mary Heatley.

The store coordinators were Bertie Knause, Marion Duricko, Irene Zielinski, Jean Naughton, Mary Hoffecker, Mary Cuber, Sally Stallone, Janet Plummer, Mary Faith Fawcett, Joanne Hester, Delores Stanton, Mary Jane Miller of Williamsport was organist for the show.

The local stores which cooperated with Charles H. Henric, faculty adviser, and his staff were W. T. Grant Co., J. C. Penney Co., The Dixie Shop, Arcus, Ruth Corset and Lingerie Shop, Deisroth's, Snyder's Millinery and Logan's Jewelry Store.

Earl S. Fetterolf, Bloomsburg, a student at BSTC, was recently promoted to the rank of Captain in the Air Reserve. He is an officer of the 9548th Air Reserve Squadron, Bloomsburg.

Capt. Fetterolf is a native of Philadelphia and is a graduate of the Germantown High School. At the present time he is pursuing a course of studies in business administration and is a member of the senior class at the Teachers College. Capt. Fetterolf has had the unusual distinction of having been on the dean's honor roll every semester of his college career. He received his commission as a second lieutenant upon graduation from Cadet Bombardier School. Following his graduation he was retained at the school as an instructor. At that time he had Chinese students who were taught the U. S. methods and techniques of bombing used in World War II. Capt. Fetterolf was relieved from active duty after the cessation of hostilities in World War II, but recalled into active service during the Korean conflict when he was among the first of the U. S. troops to arrive at the North African bases. He served as officer in charge of shipping and receiving at Nouasseur Air Force Base, in French Morocco. Capt. Fetterolf is married to the former Jean Hasel of Mahanoy City.

SEVENTEEN STUDENTS AT SPEECH, HEARING MEETING

Seventeen students of the Teachers College attended a speech and hearing conference held at the Pennsylvania State University. More than a hundred graduate and undergraduate students attended, representing California and Indiana State Teachers Colleges, Bucknell University, Mt. Mercy College and the University of Pittsburgh.

According to Miss Clara B. Weir, director of the speech and hearing clinic of Bloomsburg, the students were much impressed by demonstrations using the psychogalvanometer for testing the threshold of hearing, the pneumograph, the delayed feed back, the sound spectrograph, the nasalometer and other equipment used in rehabilitating people with speech and hearing difficulties.

The group witnessed a number of demonstrations of speech therapy and heard Dr. Robert T. Oliver, chairman of the department of speech, discuss "Communication: Our Common Problem." Dr. Oliver pointed out that teachers in the field seek to promote better communication both with those who are fluent and with those who are speech handicapped.

CLASS REUNIONS

CLASS OF 1905

Reunion classes had good attendance and gala occasions without exception here over the week-end upon the staging of one of the most outstanding Alumni Day programs in the history of the Teachers College.

1895

Oldest class in reunion was that of 1895. They met in the school dining hall on Friday evening and joined in all the festivities on Saturday.

Members back were Mrs. J. S. John, town; Mrs. P. M. Ikeler, Danville R. D. 2; Mrs. Martha Romberger Fickinger, Orange, N. J.; Mrs. William Mundy, Pittston; Mrs. Joseph Lindsay, Hazleton; Fred E. Fassett, Wyalusing. Two of the members of the class of 1894 joined with them, Minnie G. Hehl and Mrs. Jonathan W. Buck, Bloomsburg.

By Michael D. Costello

As guests of the 1955 class, we appreciate their thoughtfulness, something we will remember for the remaining years of our life, and God grant our class the opportunity to return to our Alma Mater annually.

To the class of 1955, we sincerely wish you success in all your endeavors.

The 1900 class in reunion held two successful meetings. Enthusiasm for the success of our Alma Mater was evident in our two sessions.

Frank C. Harris, an active member of the Alumni, spoke briefly on the importance of encouraging members of our families to matriculate in the college of their Alma Mater. Clyde Confer spoke also.

Immediately after the banquet, eleven members of our class had their pictures taken.

The Alumni Day, Saturday, May 21st, a few more classmates were on hand, and how glad we were to meet them. At the moment I recall Joseph H. Oliver, an outstanding student and an eminent lawyer of Scranton, Pa.

Miles Killmer, in the opinion of the members in attendance at our class reunions, was declared the outstanding member of the class of 1900.

On the stage with the honored class of 1905 were a few outstanding graduates of former years who received awards for achievements worthy of recognition. Among them was none other than Miles Killmer, who as a civil engineer, and graduate of Pennsylvania State University, achieved greatness in this field, and he said he owes it all to his start in the Old Normal on the Hill.

Rev. J. Edward Klingaman, a classmate and a friend of all, presented the citation in the award which is given to a graduate for pre-eminence in his or her particular field by the authorized administrators of his Alma Mater.

Last but not least, your humble servant, Michael D. Costello, was active in all our sessions.

Particular mention was made of the following:

1. Husky Plaque fund was raised.
2. Active membership in the Alumni.
3. Stress was laid to contact all members of our class.

Among those attending were Glenmore Snyder, Wilkes-Barre; J. H. Oliver, Scranton; Frank C. Harris, Orangeville; Lottie Burgess Maue, Hazleton; Edna Bontz Hassler, Pittsburgh; Clyde Confer, Watertown R. D. 1; Michael Costello, Shamokin; Leona Seesholtz, Orangeville; Mary Adams Yetter, Bloomsburg; Anna Solomon; Miles Killmer, New York; the Rev. J. E. Klingaman, Winchester, Va.

The members of the class of 1905, celebrating their Golden Anniversary, were guests of the College Friday evening, May 20, in the college dining room. After the dinner, the class gathered in the Alumni Room and recalled pleasant memories, told of their present activities, and discussed future plans.

Saturday morning, the members of the class were platform guests at the Alumni Meeting. G. Edward Elwell, Jr., spoke for the class and presented a class contribution to the Scholarship Fund.

One member of the class, Beatrice Larrabee Albertson, received an orchid at the time her husband, E. Joe Albertson, received a Distinguished Service Award.

Following the Alumni Luncheon in the college dining room, the members of the class met in the Social Rooms of Science Hall and enjoyed a very pleasant informal meeting.

The committee on arrangements consisted of the following: G. Edward Elwell, Jr., Sara Milleisen Elwell, Vera Hemingway Housenick, Ida Smith Conrey, Dora Leidy Fleckenstine, Edna Crouse Harrison and Grace Roberts Miller. G. Edward Elwell, Jr., was elected acting president, Vera Hemingway Housenick was chosen as acting secretary.

E. Joe Albertson, a native of Benton and a brother of Miss Atta Albertson, town, was one of three graduates of the Teachers College who were honored this year by alumni for distinguished service.

Immediately after graduation in 1901 he went to the Philippines where he had a major part to play in the setting up of the educational system there. Later he was one of a commission sent to Peru, as that nation's request, to reorganize the educational program of that nation. He has served on government boards and is now editor and co-publisher of the Peekskill, N. Y., Evening Star.

Mr. Albertson spoke interestingly in his response before the alumni. Here it is:

"I feel deeply grateful to you and your associates, and to the authorities of this fine institution, to which I owe so much for whatever I may have achieved in the half-century that has passed since I left here as a graduate. I feel grateful to this institution because it was instrumental in no small way in determining my future. I had not yet reached twenty-one. Little did I realize that in accepting an appointment to teach school in the then scarcely known Philippines was to have a major effect upon the course of my entire future. In letters I received from the States in those early days, I was frequently asked what kind of people 'those Philippines' were—these epistles from my correspondents, of course, had nothing to do with the Epistle from the Bible.

"I did not know when I left Bloomsburg, a quiet, peaceful community, what unusual and at times breath-taking events I was to run up against in connection with school work—such as typhoons, volcano eruptions, earthquakes, epidemics of Asiatic cholera, bubonic plague and smallpox.

"I had been in the Philippines only a short time when I was to visit a mountain tribe of tree-dwellers whose 'stairs' consisted of a notched pole which they climbed like chickens do in getting up to their roost. Up in the little hut was kept a supply of large stones which, in an attack, were dropped upon their warlike neighbors, the Mohamedan Moros.

"After spending sixteen years in the Philippines, there was an interlude of about two years when I served as trade adviser in the Bureau of Exports of the War Trade Board in Washington, D. C.

"I scarcely got settled at home when the Government called upon me to go to Peru, South America, with an educational mission. My work was supervising and reorganizing the public school system in an area several hundred miles in length in the high Andes, two and a half to three miles above sea level. Primitive conditions prevailed in most parts. School houses, in the rural districts were of abode construction, with one door, no windows whatever and a ground floor. Teacher was often absent—sometimes in a nearby canteen drinking chick, a native alcoholic beverage.

"One experience I had in Peru, I am sure I shall never forget. I long had wanted to see and follow a section of the famed Inca trail which reached from Quito, Ecuador to Cuzo, Peru, the ancient capital city of the Inca Empire. Eventually I found it and followed it on horseback from 4:30 a. m. until about three o'clock the following morning. It was easy to keep on the trail during the day for there were large boulders at regular intervals on both sides of the road which was about 150 feet wide.

"On the way I spotted two dark objects huddled together on the horizon ahead of me. I thought they were Indians—I already had passed two drunken Indians on horseback. When I approached the strange objects they suddenly took to the air, their broad wings spread out like those of an airplane. They were a pair of condors; the sight of which one seldom ever has the good fortune to see.

"Another unforgettable episode in connection with my work in Peru was the holding of the first so-called Olympic games ever held in that republic in which several hundred students from every corner of the department participated over a period of four days. I chartered a special train of ten cars to transport those who lived near the railroad. Competition in the various athletic events was terrific, as was also that in the literary program. Ill feeling between certain factions developed and when we were homeward bound at night stones were thrown through windows of the train at one station, and shots also were fired.

"In spite of all the difficulties I met up with in the Philippines and Peru, I must have made some impression on the young people with whom I worked, for when I returned to the Philippines a few years ago, I found many of my former students occupying responsible positions in the government and the professional and commercial fields. Two of them had become internationally known—ex-President Elpidio Quirino, who was one of my clerks in his student days, and Carlos Romolo, now a brigadier general and ambassador and representative in the United Nations. Upon this visit to Manila I was royally entertained in Malacayan, the presidential palace.

"When I went back to Peru last Fall, I received the same warm greetings from former associates there as I had received in the Philippines. None, perhaps, so humble and touching as when I finally located the old college in the city where I had lived, completely transformed from what it had been in the early days. When I set out to find the college, I stopped in front of what appeared to be—from noises heard inside the walls—a school.

"I entered the patio, and inquired for the principal. Soon she appeared, and with the customary courteous formality so characteristic of the Latin American, she introduced herself. By that time several teachers had gathered around us. I didn't disclose my identity, instead I pulled from my pocket a small picture which had been taken thirty-two years before, in which I sat in the center of a group of students.

"The lady principal took a quick look at the picture, and instantly pointed to where I sat and said, somewhat excitedly in Spanish. 'Why, this is Mr. Albertson!'

"I replied, also in Spanish, 'Yo soy el.' (I am he).

"With another quick glance to reassure herself, she threw her arms around me, and gave me the biggest hug I had had since I left Old Bloomsburg Normal, a half-century before. She had been one of Mrs. Albertson's students in the Girls Normal School which Beatrice had directed when we lived there.

"Well, when the hugging was over, and some moist eyes were dried, that was the beginning of a week of parties, receptions and a general warming up of old friendships.

"You young gentlemen here today, just forget that piece of advice given years ago by Horace Greeley when he said: 'Go West, young man!'

Robert T. Millard, (B.S., Bloomsburg, '49; M.A. State University of Iowa, '50) presented to the April Speech Association of Eastern States Convention, Hotel Statler, New York City, a film entitled "The Application of Cinefluorography with Image Intensification to Plastic Surgery, Dentistry, and Speech Pathology."

Cinefluorography is a medium of research that until very recently was considered impractical for popular use as a diagnostic tool because of prohibitive costs and inadequate equipment. The Lancaster Cleft Palate Clinic, where Robert Millard has been Director of Speech since 1950, has pioneered in basic techniques of x-ray motion pictures.

The work of the principal investigators, Dr. Paul E. Wallin, and Robert Millard, has contributed immensely to the field of cinefluorography. By employing the image intensifier which brightens the image 1000 times, a patient can be exposed to X-radiation and photographed for 2½ minutes before accumulating as many "r" units as one receives from one dental x-ray of 4 seconds duration. An enlargement technique of the exposed area has been developed and will soon be published in the appropriate scientific journals for any interested person to copy.

Mr. Millard's greatest contribution has been to add sound to the motion pictures produced at the Clinic. The first 16 mm. cinefluorographic film ever produced with synchronized speech of the abnormal and normal patient is available to students of speech pathology, dentists and plastic surgeons by writing to the Lancaster Cleft Palate Clinic for information.

Notice has been received by J. Richard Wagner, mathematics instructor at North-Mont High School, of his selection as one of the Mathematics Fellows at Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland, Ohio. The Fellowships are sponsored by the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Company, Inc., for the summer of 1955. Thirty teachers have been selected to participate in this program, which is designed especially for high school and preparatory school mathematics instructors.

Mathematics is playing an increasingly important role in business, industry, and throughout our daily lives. At present, the demand for highly trained mathematicians far exceeds the supply. High school teachers of mathematics have a great opportunity to stimulate the student's interest in mathematics as a career. To aid secondary school teachers in this important work, Case Institute with the financial aid of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Company, Inc., is offering a special six-week summer program emphasizing basic mathematics and modern computing methods.

During the six weeks program of courses, lectures, and industrial plant visitations, Fellows will have an opportunity to live and work and exchange ideas with each other and with college teachers of mathematics and science. In addition to the academic program on the Case campus, visits will be made to industrial plants and to government laboratories in the Greater Cleveland area, where extensive computational activities are under way. In this way, the Fellows will see mathematics in action.

The college courses are to be given by the faculty of the Case Institute during the six weeks period from June 19 to July 29, 1955.

BLOOMSBURG — BIGGER? BETTER? OR BOTH?

This is based on the assumption that we can defer the beginning of construction of a new Library ($650,000) and Women's Dormitory ($1,500,000) for four years.

It also assumes that $175,000 will be provided for the purchase of all private residences and land within the present boundaries of the college campus.

Needless to say, a larger enrollment will mean an increase in the number of faculty. These proposals do not include, however, more faculty and facilities for the offering of graduate work for teachers, or for the inaugurating of college curriculums in fields other than teacher education.

In this time of challenge and crisis, there are those who propose to fix the tuition of State Teachers College students at $500 a year to be repaid at the same rate each year as our graduates teach in the public schools of Pennsylvania, and there are various proposals pretending to improve the tenure status of teachers. All these things tend to discourage young people from entering the teaching profession.

There are those who challenge the growth of Pennsylvania Teachers Colleges by asking such questions as: (1) How many graduates actually teach, and; (2) do they teach in Pennsylvania?

We find that 1744 of the 2377 graduates of State Teachers Colleges in 1954 went into teaching. Since 633 did not go into the profession of teaching, immediately the question was raised of why does the State educate young people and then not receive teaching service in return. An analysis of the group who did not go into teaching shows that 406 men went directly into the Armed Services, 43 went to graduate schools, and 55 women were married, thus 504 were not available for teaching. Only 129 were available and did not enter the teaching profession. In fact 93% of those available did go into teaching and only 227 went out of Pennsylvania to teach in other states, while in the same year 820 teachers from other states came to Pennsylvania.

The outflow of Pennsylvania trained teachers will be checked when Pennsylvania salaries are raised so as to more nearly equal those of the surrounding States.

In view of all these facts, the Bloomsburg Alumni can help their Alma Mater by first understanding our limited capacity, and if they know of good students who want to be teachers, have them file their applications as early as possible, and second, those interested in building a Bigger and Better Bloomsburg should write to their Senators and Representatives setting forth their opinions in light of this message from

President

PROSPECTS FOR 1955

You will be interested to know that of the approximately 240 Freshman students accepted for September, 127 are in the upper fifth of their classes. Of this number, nine were Valedictorians and nine were Salutatorians. Only thirty-nine of the total number were admitted after an entrance examination from the lower half of their class.

It is not to be assumed that we intend to accept only those in the upper 20% of the high school graduating classes in the future. The present situation was not developed as a policy, but from the approximately 300 that applied before May, 1955, we selected the present Freshman Class. It may be that better applicants applied after May, 1955. We do not know. After counting over 500 applicants, admission blanks were not sent out to others who requested them. Since admission blanks were not sent out during the months of June, July, and August, it is estimated that we had three times as many applicants as we could accept.

These statements are made so that Alumni of Bloomsburg will understand:

- 1—An enrollment of 935 students taxes the present college facilities and threatens the quality of college instruction and lessens the amount of attention which students have received in the past, and
- 2—Even though a new dining room is constructed and the Library is moved to another location, our total capacity will not be increased appreciably.

Therefore, if students expect to enroll at Bloomsburg in the future, it would be well to advise them

- a—That they should file their applications and come to the campus for a personal interview as early in the year as possible, and
- b—Since the Legislature is holding the colleges accountable for the number of teachers who actually teach, only those applicants who are interested in teaching should apply.

Alumni may also be helpful in urging their State Representatives and Senators to favor Appropriation Bills for new construction at State Teachers Colleges to the end that they may accommodate an increasing number of students so that more teachers may be educated for the public schools of Pennsylvania.

929 COLLEGE STUDENTS LAST TERM SETS RECORD

Bloomsburg State Teachers College during the year 1954-1955 reports there were 929 full-time students, the largest in the institution's history. Previous high was in the post World War II period of 1949-50 when enrollment of veterans was at the peak. That term 884 were accommodated.

During the past year, there were 882 full-time students and forty-seven part-time students, making a total of 929 students, of whom approximately 505 were resident students. There were 564 men and 365 women, which does not quite equal the ratio of two men for every woman, a ratio which existed five years ago.

The Department of Business Education had the largest enrollment with 315 students registered. The Secondary Education Department was a close second with 312 students, while the Elementary Education Department had 255 students.

The Freshman enrollment for September, 1955, has been completed, and for the first time since the end of World War II the number of women exceeds the number of men. It is expected that the elementary enrollment will increase, particularly in view of the great demand for elementary teachers.

The Freshman Class of 1954 shows about the same relative distribution with business 163, secondary 156, elementary 90.

On a county basis, Luzerne county contributed 181 students, with Columbia county a close second with 175. Northumberland 128, Schuylkill 64, Lackawanna 47, Lycoming 41, Montour 25, Montgomery 21, Bradford, Dauphin, Delaware, Lehigh, Snyder, Susque-hamma, Wayne and Wyoming counties accounting for ten or more students. That Bloomsburg is no longer a regional institution is evidenced by the presence of students from forty-five counties in Pennsylvania. There were five students from outside the state of Pennsylvania.

Over 3,800 students were utilized in the campus, laboratory school and other public schools for student-teaching purposes.

Although expenditures have been made to repair and renovate present plant, even the addition of new dining room building, which is still on drawing boards of the General State Authority, will not increase the total enrollment materially. With the relocation of the library in the space now occupied by the dining room, the dining room, the present library space can provide living quarters for only twenty-five or thirty men of the group of 200 who will be forced to live in the Town of Bloomsburg.

PRAISE COLLEGE FOR AID IN AIR RESERVE PROGRAM

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State Teachers College, has received a letter of commendation from Major General Roger J. Brown, commander of the First Air Force, commending the College for its splendid contribution to the Reserve Specialized Training Program. A copy of General Brown's letter to Dr. Andruss is herewith quoted as released by Major Daniel Rohrbach of Sunbury, Commander of the 9548th Air Reserve Squadron of Bloomsburg:

"Lieutenant Colonel Tabasco, Commandant of the Wilkes-Barre Air Reserve Center, informs me that reservists in his area have recently completed a year of training in Flight Operations at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

"It is largely through the splendid cooperation from institutions such as yours that the Air Force is able to perform the monumental task of keeping its reservists, throughout the United States, current in their specialized skills.

"Even though the Air Force is a comparatively young service, we have already identified ourselves with the American tradition that education is the cornerstone of progress. A major part of our effort is devoted to education and training because it is only through these means that we can remain a strong and effective arm in the nation's defense.

"We are proud to have been included in your academic program during the past year. I would like to offer my thanks for a job well done and express the hope that the Wilkes-Barre Air Reserve Center may continue to be associated with you in the future."

A course in Flight Operation has recently been completed by twenty-six officers of the 9548th Squadron. The group of officers designated as Flight F was under the command of Lt. Col. Neil M. Richie, Bloomsburg R. D. 2. The instructional program was carried out by Mr. Sterling of the College

Staff. Through this instruction the officers were brought up to date on the latest methods and procedures as practiced by the Air Force in Flight Operations.

Men in Bloomsburg include; Lt. Col. Neil M. Richie, R. D. 2; Major John H. Fox, Danville; Capt. Harold F. Beck, Berwick; Capt. Bruce M. Crawford, Benton; Capt. Earle S. Fetterolf, Bloomsburg; Capt. Buddy M. Hartman, Espy; Capt. Richard G. Klinger, Danville; Capt. Robert A. Linn, Bloomsburg; Capt. Clarence R. Remley, Danville; Capt. Charles A. Robbins, Bloomsburg; 1st Lt. Anthony Kulingoskey, Catawissa; 1st Lt. Robert C. Robbins, Bloomsburg.

The Rev. Herbert Landis, pastor, performed the double-ring ceremony before the candle-lighted altar which was banked with palms and urns of white flowers.

The bride graduated from Unionville High School and Mansfield State Teachers College. She will teach home economics at Bloomsburg High School this fall.

DOCTOR RUSSELL WRITES ARTICLE

J. Almus Russell, professor of English at the Teachers College, is the author of "Nineteenth Century School Readers Influence the Nation's English," published in the January, March, April and May, 1955, issue of The Progressive Teacher, Morristown, Tenn.

In this comprehensive article, of significance to students of elementary and secondary education, Dr. Russell has made a detailed and careful study of the readers used in the American public schools of the nineteenth century. This survey starts with Noah Webster's—"An American Selection in Reading, 1758," and concludes with Robert McL. Cunnock's—"Choice Readings, 1878."

Professor Russell, in preparation for this essay, made a study of the collection of nineteenth century school readers found in the library of the Friends of the Middle Border located at Mitchell, S. D. In addition, he consulted volumes found in other libraries as well as in his own collection, paying especial attention to the famed McGuffey Eclectic Readers, unabated in their popularity from their inception in 1836 to their discontinuance about 1910, and "... in which were combined literary lessons, obvious moral lessons, and carefully selected abstracts from great English and American writers. Their estimated sales, running through numerous editions, totalled 122,000,000 copies. Consequently, their constant use in the mid-nineteenth century schools had a profound effect upon the cultural and moral shaping of the American mind. During the Civil War, they were published independently in the South, a tribute to their broad point of view."

Each chapter of this article is illustrated by the author with pictures reproduced from school readers of the period.

The principal purpose of the event this year was to pay tribute to Miss Frances Kinner, who is retiring after thirty-six years in the teaching profession.

Miss Kinner came to the then Hallstead High School, now a part of the Blue Ridge Joint Schools, in 1928. Previous to that time she had taught in the schools at Mechanicsburg and Falls Overfield. She was placed in charge of the English and Latin departments of the High School, a position which she has fulfilled with outstanding ability and success. Aside from her regular teaching duties, Miss Kinner acted as Senior Class adviser for several years. She also directed many of the class plays, whose repeated successes were indicative of her exceptional ability in this particular field.

During the course of the evening, Mr. George Schmick, Principal of the High Schools, on behalf of the faculty and himself, presented Miss Kinner a wrist watch as a token of the esteem in which she is held. The people of the community join with the members of the faculty in wishing Miss Kinner many happy and pleasant years in her retirement.

"The Maroon and Gold")

Poetry, the embodiment of beautiful emotion, imagination, and thought within a jeweled framework, is the concentrated treasure in the communication of feelings and ideas.

Eleanor Sands Smith has been the worthy recipient of a steady stream of critical acclaim for her rhapsodic poetry. She has been called, "a mature poet writing with a deeper understanding of nature and life."

St. Martin's Summer, a deluxe edition containing some of Mrs. Smith's most lyric poems, was published by the Falmouth Publishing House of Manchester, Maine, in 1952. The book of poetry is representative of only a fraction of the hundreds of verses written by Mrs. Smith from her early school days until 1952.

Eleanor Sands Smith was born in an antique house in Benton, Pennsylvania, in 1908. Except for a few years of teaching near New York City, she has always resided in the country.

She attended the Benton public schools where she found the teachers interested in her writing. Soon after graduating from high school, she entered Bloomsburg State Teachers College. She later studied at Pennsylvania State College and New York University, continuing her education at Montclair State Teachers College and Newark State Teachers College, both in New Jersey.

At present, Mrs. Smith resides in Benton with her husband and three children. In addition to her duties as housewife and mother, she is editor of "Poetry Corner" in The Morning Press of Bloomsburg. She is also an editorial representative for the Falmouth Publishing House, in which capacity she reads manuscripts and acts both as poetry adviser for the staff and as a talent scout.

Mrs. Smith's favorite poets are Elinor Wylie, Emily Dickinson, W. B. Yeats, Dylan Thomas, and the great romantic poet, John Keats. Her writing has been further inspired by tales of the Bronte sisters, and by The Golden Bough, which she considers as "an eternal source." Her interests range from philosophy and ancient religions to astronomy and science.

The poetess says that in the beginning she was interested in writing as a means of expression only. Soon she was very gratified to discover that her poetry had a strong communicative value as well. She began to write with additional purpose at age eleven, although she had her first article in Etude, the music magazine, at age ten.

Mrs. Smith's book, St. Martin's Summer, has drawings by Ruth Hutton Ancker, formerly of Bloomsburg. The volume is divided into several sections, each developing a facet of her personal philosophy. The poems read very well and lend themselves to a rich understanding of man and nature. Her works show many romantic elements, such as the countryside with children of long ago. She captures in her landscape a certain medieval tone; yet, the reader finds himself in harmony with it. Her couplets are particularly fine, and she frequently uses varied rhyme schemes which are vitally alive in their effectiveness.

In an age when we are captives of a mechanical civilization, we deem it a pleasure to read the works of Eleanor Sands Smith, for she has managed to transcend the superficiality of today's industrialized word in order to lead us back to the beautiful world of nature so beloved by Wordsworth, Keats and Shelley.

(Editor's Note: The following letter was written by Alfred Chiscon to President Andruss shortly after the death of Fred Del Monte.)

Dear Dr. Andruss:

I was deeply shocked to hear of the death of Fred Del Monte. The fact that he died is really nothing. All men do, and they gradually prepare for it. That he died when he did is the sad, remorseful thing—for Fred was just preparing to live again. Now the world must add one more check mark to the things it has missed and cannot regain.

There are many who leave teaching and seek other fields. The profession is better without them. What set Fred apart from the rest was his choice of leaving a prosperously budding job to—of all things—learn to teach. He packed into a few short months what all too many at B.S.T.C. after four long years have not even begun to assemble.

He was a student to his classmates, an intelligent adult to the faculty, and an unrecognizable combination when the two were brought together. College Council was the best illustration of this. He brought to it a smooth, experienced know-how that made all arguments seem rather pointless and left all further discussion hinging on his final observation.

Fred was one of those day students that everyone is always complaining can't exist at Bloom. He had a wife, car, long commuting distance, three presidencies of large student organizations, innumerable committee chairs, plus a near three point average based on an overloaded schedule. Yet there was always time for a long discussion on any chosen subject or problem.

The Class of '54 was a superlative one. That we inherited Fred through his own acceleration and shared with him our service keys, Who's Who nominations, and diplomas was an honor completely ours.

I wrote in the Maroon and Gold once upon a time that those who leave Bloomsburg forever really still remain. They are just a little further up on the hill. And "far above the river winding" Fred is looking down—hoping that others will teach as he so much desired to.

Sincerely,

J. Alfred Chiscon

Clarence A. Ruch '30

Clarence A. Ruch, forty-eight, of Berwick, one of this section's most prominent and public-spirited men, died suddenly Tuesday, July 5. Death, caused by a heart attack, occurred while he was on a business trip and while he was conversing on insurance matters in the offices of Sprout-Waldron Co., at Muncy.

Mr. Ruch had for many years been one of the most active residents of the community. He had been president of Berwick Hospital since June 20, 1949, and had previously been secretary of that board, had been a director of the Community Chest, director of the Chamber of Commerce, director of the Berwick Industrial Plan, chairman of the C. of C. Industrial Committee; an active worker in the recent hospital fund drive, a director of The Berwick Bank, a past president and one of the organizers of the Berwick Lions Club, a lieutenant commander in the Inactive Reserve of the U. S. Navy, and a teacher of the First Methodist Sunday School Young Adult Class.

Mr. Ruch had enlisted in the U. S. Navy in 1942 and had served as a lieutenant in the European Theatre until after the end of hostilities. He was a member of the Elks, the Knapp Lodge of Masons, the Royal Arch Chapter, the Commandery of the Knights Templar and of the Berwick Golf Club.

Mr. Ruch was a native of Berwick and was a graduate of B.H.S. and B.S.T.C. He was active in athletics at both schools and played varsity football at each place. After becoming a teacher of social studies at Berwick he became assistant coach to both Junie Bream and later to Joe Coviello, in football and basketball. He was also an able tennis player.

On his return from the Navy, Mr. Ruch had left the teaching profession to become a representative of Connecticut Mutual Insurance Co. He had been markedly successful in that field of work.

Mr. Ruch was the son of the late Gilroy and Elizabeth Crouse Ruch.

Surviving are his wife, the former Geraldine Hess, and two brothers, Paul R. Ruch, Pittsburgh, and Glenn Ruch, Port Chester, N. Y.

The following tribute to Mr. Ruch as an athlete and citizen appeared in "The Fanning Column" of The Morning Press:

It wasn't surprising that Clarence Ruch, Berwick civic leader whose untimely death occurred this week, was active in things that would benefit his community.

He was that kind of a fellow throughout his life. A graduate of the Teachers College, we last talked with him in May when he was attending the twenty-fifth year reunion of his class.

Clarence was a fellow who kept in pretty close touch with the school, and he was one of the men that was responsible for moving one of the Husky football games to Berwick each fall over a period of many years. He was anxious to have the series revived, firmly convinced it was mutually beneficial, and was talking about it in our last get together.

Ruch was one of those fellows who, if there was a job to be done, was right on hand to help. He played football throughout his four years on the hill and played well. That was back in the time when the Huskies had a good sized squad if they had as many as thirty out for the team and they were well fortified in material if they had two reasonably well qualified for one position.

He was a fullback. He made the team at that position and was just starting to go to town when there were some injuries up front and Thornley Booth, the coach, had no center.

Ruch said he never played center but the coach wanted him to give it a try. He developed into a fine pivot. His eagerness got him into some trouble in the early games but he didn't make the same mistake twice and before he had his diploma he was one of the best centers of that era on the hill. Certainly none played harder or did more for team morale than the always willing Ruch.

There are going to be many who will miss him. Fellows of his type are always too few in any community. He was one who didn't lose his enthusiasm. If he said he would do a job you didn't have to worry. It got done, whether it was football or heading a civic project.

Mrs. Marian H. Miller

Mrs. Mirian H. Miller, eighty-nine, widow of John K. Miller, died recently at the Masonic Home at Elizabethtown, where she had resided since her retirement as head of the Department of Music at B.S.T.C. in 1941.

Until her recent illness, she had been organist and in charge of all music at the home. She also gave lessons to children in the Masonic orphanage. She became ill about two months ago.

Mrs. Miller came to the local college in 1904 as instructor of violin and was a member of the faculty under Dr. Waller. She served for many years as teacher of piano, violin, organ and theory. Her husband, now deceased, was county superintendent for two terms.

Funeral services were held at the Miller Funeral Home, Elizabethtown, with interment at the Masonic Home cemetery there.

SUPPORT THE ALUMNI

'Saucered and Blowed'

E. H. NELSON "11

A quiet, unassuming alumna sent a check for $500.00 the other day with this notation:

"The enclosed check is for those needy students of whom Bloomsburg must have many. Please permit me to remain an anonymous donor."

One reads a message like that, gives the check a friendly pat, and firmly resolves to keep active in the Alumni Association forever and ever.

The potential of an organized alumni group is almost beyond comprehension. It can make its Alma Mater known and revered throughout the world and keep students knocking at her doors, anxious to be a part of the living force that projects itself into a pattern of worthy living. To honor those who have made Bloomsburg great, we should be devising ways and means to keep their ideals and standards a part of teacher training. Such names as Waller—Bakeless—Wilner—Haas—Dennis—Aldinger—Sutliff—Litwhiler and many others came quickly to mind when reviewing Bloomsburg and her accomplishments. Many who read this will say "Why didn't you mention—and—and—." My answer is, why don't you mention them to me in a way that will necessitate attention to their contributions? But I hasten to add this statement:—One who has gone from the halls of the Normal School or College and achieved in good works, forgetting entirely one source of his or her strength, can hardly expect loyal sons and daughters to continue when the mother is forgotten.

Teacher Training Colleges in Pennsylvania start the 1955-56 year with record enrollments. This is not time for complacent inaction, but rather for a constant improvement and the promotion of better understanding between undergraduates and alumni. Nothing can be more detrimental to any form or presentation of school loyalty than a graduate who neglects to credit an institution that honored him with a diploma. First and foremost is continued ACTIVE membership in the Alumni Association and then follows missionary effort to have others join with you. If a teacher makes a school, it is the Alumni who reflect its strength and worth.

FIFTEEN YEARS ARE FINISHED -- 1940-1955

BUILDING PROGRAM (OVER $2,000,000)

In 1940 the first General State Authority Building Program was not completed. It is true, we had a new Gymnasium, Junior High School, and Maintenance and Heating Plant Buildings, but they were neither usable nor completely equipped.

For instance, the Heating Plant had three boilers dating back to World War I, one unit dating back to 1930, and one new unit which was operable less than one month each year of the following decade.

During the war period, the college was able to put over $300,000 into plant repairs in an attempt to make women's dormitory space available for men, and change from dining to cafeteria service. Most of these funds were drawn from Federal Contracts in connection with the training of Army and Navy Flyers and Navy Deck Officers.

In the last five years over $1,000,000 have been spent on the college plant, over 80 percent of which has been provided by the General State Authority to reconstruct the Heating Plant, and to construct a proposed College Dining Room Building to cost in excess of $450,000.

Some of the internal changes have been brought about by the renovation of the Waller Hall (Old) Gymnasium to be used as a Lounge for students and house a College Book Store and Snack Bar. The first floor corridor of Waller Hall has been changed from office space to lounge space for both students and faculty, and administrative offices for the social deans.

These plant changes are of the type that can be noted by the returning alumni or the college visitor. Other unseen improvements which have resulted in economies of operation and renovation of space for modern instructional uses should be noted even though not easily discernable.

Underground electrical lines and transformers now give the college the lowest relative electric cost among the State Teachers Colleges. Rewiring of the Waller Hall Dormitory not only removes a fire hazard, but provides conduction for electric current necessary to operate modern electric appliances, and provides more light for study.

Although few see it, we have one of the most modern and economical heating plants in this section of Pennsylvania, and of sufficient size to provide for future growth.

Practically all buildings have been reroofed and the interiors repainted.

The general impression of our grass plots and plantings causes many favorable comments from casual visitor.

If we look at the fifteen year period, we can, in addition to the million dollars spent on construction, discover that expenditures for major repairs have been about three-fourths of a million, and the purchase of equipment and machinery one-fourth of a million, so that the grand total for building construction, contracted repairs, and equipment and machinery will exceed $2,000,000.

ENROLLMENT TRENDS

For those who are interested in figures, college enrollments are significant. First, the number of graduates. Two thousand one-hundred eighty-five degrees have been granted in the fifteen year period from the college year 1939-1940 to an including the college year 1953-1954, the largest number of graduates being two-hundred sixty-three in 1950 and the smallest being fifty-nine in the year 1945.

It will be remembered that 1945 was in the trough of the enrollment during World War II and prior to the return of any veterans in 1946, and that 1950 was the high tide of G. I. enrollment.

While a restudy of this group is being made, if we take the placement report of the graduates available for employment (taking the total number of graduates and subtracting the number of people who went into the Armed Forces or enrolled in graduate schools directly after graduation) we find that 83 percent taught the year after graduation and 13 percent were employed in gainful occupations, making the total employment 96 percent of those available. The remaining 4 percent includes married women who did not teach, graduates who could not be reached, and the unemployed.

During the post war period the teacher education students numbered only 178 in 1945 and reached 834 in 1950. However, during the war period from 1943 to 1946, the figures in full-time teacher education students was offset in a large measure by War Program students. For instance, in 1944 we had a total enrollment of 1,140 students during the year, of which only 313 were teacher education students.

During the four-year period of War Programs we taught 1,000 to fly, had 500 Navy Officer Candidates, housed 2,000 students for Engineering Science, and Management War Trainees, and offered courses to nurses from Bloomsburg Hospital. This enabled us to offer employment to our faculty, maintain our college plant in times when material was available only on priority, make a substantial contribution to the war effort, and develop our Aviation Program.

In the war time when other colleges were at their low point in enrollment, at the height of World War II we had an enrollment of 1,600 students in 1944.

During the last five years, the enrollment of the college has averaged somewhere between 800 and 900 students, being limited by our dormitory capacity and seating in the dining room and auditorium.

For seven years, from 1946 to 1951, we operated extension classes in as many as five or six towns located within a forty mile radius of Bloomsburg.

For three years, 1947 to 1949, we accepted two sections of about seventy-five Liberal Arts Freshmen who had matriculated at Pennsylvania State University, and after completing one year at Bloomsburg became Sophomores on the Penn State Campus.

In 1955 there are more than 900 full-time teacher education students on campus, with a Freshman Class of over three-hundred fifty.

Over this period of time the Business Department has in some years had the largest enrollment of any one of the three divisions, and this seems to depend on the proportion of men students. The ratio of men to women after World War II was two to one, and after the Korean Conflict is now about five to three.

INSTRUCTIONAL GROWTH

With an enrollment range of from 800 to 900, the number of full-time faculty has varied between 45 and 50. Part-time instructors have been employed to teach extension and classes for part-time student, and the number of co-operating teachers off-campus has waxed and waned with the number of Seniors in the practice teaching field.

Since 1950 the college has been visited by committees representing the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools (a regional accrediting association) and the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (until recently a National accrediting association for teacher education), and has received a superior rating.

Faculty growth is evidenced by the improvement in the degree holding status, namely, over twenty percent have earned the Doctor's Degree, and a sizeable percent of the faculty have continued to pursue graduate courses. Present faculty ranking shows 10 Profes-

B.S.T.C. ENROLLMENT SHOWS INCREASE OF THREE HUNDRED

B.S.T.C. enrollment shows an increase of over 300 students with the newly enrolled Freshman class, according to figures made available by Mr. Hoch, Dean of Instruction. This brings the total college enrollment to an excess of 925 students, the largest body in the history of the college.

In addition to the 638 returning students, the college will educate and train for the teaching profession 243 new freshmen, 38 former students who have recently returned from military service, and 21 transfers and others. The last group includes school nurses and dental hygienists.

As a result of the large enrollment, the Freshman class will be divided into six sections in which they will take courses basic in teacher training. Later, they will specialize, with an estimated 107 students majoring in Business Education, as compared with 75 and 61 in Secondary and Elementary education, respectively.

There were so many applicants for college admittance this year that the office of the Dean of Instruction was compelled to close enrollment in mid-April. Mr. Hoch estimates that over 500 prospective students had to be turned away because of lack of facilities to accommodate them. As it stands now, college facilities will be used to their maximum in order to house and train the present influx of students.

Several interesting facts have been made available by Mr. Hoch. For example, for the first time since World War II, women outnumber men in an incoming class. The Freshman class, this year, includes 142 women and 101 men. The reason for the upswing in the number of women admitted is the simple fact that women applied earlier. Many men were turned away, not because they failed to qualify, but because they applied too late. However, the overall college figures are slightly in favor of male enrollment for all the college.

Because of the increase in the number of women at this institution, thirty spaces in Waller Hall dormitory normally reserved for men will be occupied by women instead. Over 150 men, both freshmen and seniors, have taken rooms in private homes in Bloomsburg.

Incoming freshmen can anticipate stiff competition in classroom work since the greatest number of freshmen have unusually good high school academic records. As a matter of fact, only 31 persons were admitted on the basis of entrance examinations. The remainder fulfilled the qualification of being in the upper half of their high school classes.

Another interesting fact comes to light when we note that more students seem to be entering the Business Education field than either Elementary or Secondary fields. The college is considering quotas to correct this because of the possibility of a serious placement and student teaching problem in the future, should this business trend continue.

What can the college expect in the near future as far as enrollment is concerned? Already, the enrollment for January, 1956, is so great that it too has been closed. The office of the Dean of Instruction also has on hand numerous applications for September, 1956. Mr. Hoch reports that, as a result of this steady stream of applicants,

RELIGION-IN-LIFE-WEEK

Religion-in-Life-Week was held at B.S.T.C. during the week of November 14. On Tuesday, November 15, at 10 a. m. The Right Reverend Monseigneur Robert J. Maher, Superintendent of Schools, Diocese of Harrisburg, spoke to the student body.

Monseigneur Maher was born in Shamokin, Pennsylvania, and educated in the parochial schools there. He was awarded the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts in the philosophy of history at St. Vincent College. His post-graduate studies in Education were pursued at the University of Chicago.

The Reverend G. Blair Hemans, who is pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Williamsport, was the speaker at the Vesper Service on Wednesday evening, November 16. He has had pastorates in Brockenridge, Jeannetta, Harrisburg, and Williamsport. At the present time he is lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserve, and he also instructs a course in Air Force administration for officers.

During the regular assembly period on Thursday, November 17, Rabbi Irving Koslowe delivered a keynote address to the student body. Within the walls of the Sing Sing prison Rabbi Koslowe ministers to the needs of men waiting for execution in the death house. He has learned something about how the criminal mind works. He is also Rabbi at the West Chester Jewish Center at Mamaroneck, New York, which is one of the most outstanding congregations in the New York Metropolitan area.

An informal discussion period was held each of these evenings at 7:00 o'clock in the Navy Hall Auditorium. The main questions discussed were the following three in the order given: "What part does God play in your life as an individual, as a student, as a citizen?"

At the Tuesday assembly, Victor Michael, the chairman of Religion-in-Life-Week, presided. The Vesper Service on Wednesday evening had as its chairman, Nancy Homsher. Mary Jane Miller was at the console. Douglas Boden, President of the Student Christian Association, presided at the Thursday assembly which had Rabbi Koslowe as its speaker.

Students of the Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish faiths helped plan these programs to stimulate a greater interest in religion. Those actively working in connection with Douglas Boden, president of S.C.A., and Mr. Clayton Hinkel, Faculty Advisor. For the committees in Religion-in-Life-Week were Victor Michael, General Chairman; Mary Faith Fawcett, Refreshments; Joanne Specht, Publicity, and Peggy Gearhardt, Hospitality.

FLOATS, BANDS AND QUEENS PRESENT SPECTACLE

The annual parade held on the eve of the Bloomsburg-West Chester game, got underway in full swing to the music of the Bloomsburg High School Band. Directly following the band came the Business Education Club float with its theme, "Slam the Rams." Waller Hall's Third Floor Women entered their float as, "Open Season on the Rams." The girls sported their hunting outfits, and aimed at the Ram on top of the float.

The Phi Sigma Pi cars were next in line. They brought along their "sweetheart," Ishie Deibert, to push our team on to a victory.

The Dramatic Club float, "We the Plain and Fancy Folk," certainly was original. Their Amish-type carriage portrayed the plain while Alysia Racht showed how the fancy live. Varsity Club cars proudly showed off their nominees for Varsity Queen. The girls were Tina Valente, Sally Stallone, Dolores Stanton, Mary Jane Barnisky, and Jan McLin. The Danville High School Band then added a bit of marching music as they passed the judges' stand.

Bloomsburg's Day Women entered into the spirit of the evening as they carried large signs encouraging members of the football team.

North Hall's Third Floor men were very well regimented as they marched in the parade.

The "Penthouse Rowdies" of Waller Hall's fourth floor presented "Scalp the Rams." The entire football squad was represented—Indian style, by the squaws of Waller Hall. The idea was very clever and made a good impression on the judges, as it took first prize.

Part of the wrestling squad appeared in full dress and encouraged our team to "Strangle 'Em." The first floor of North Hall brought along their "Queens." The boys certainly couldn't have selected better queens than Mr. and Mrs. Blair's sweet little daughters. Last, came our own Bloomsburg band.

enrollment for the September, 1956, class will be closed as early as February 1 of that year. The problem, once again, is not so much available living conditions, as lack of sufficient classrooms and laboratories to meet the need of anything but a sharply curtailed enrollment.

GRANDMA'S DAZE

AT OLD B.S.T.C.

As seen by a present-day B.S.T.C. student. From the "Maroon and Gold.")

Ever wonder what Bloomsburg State Teachers College was like when grandmother or auntie came here? If she were a student during the 1880's or 1890's, she had an entirely different social life from today's coeds.

To begin with, she was to be present and prompt to all meals unless special permission had been obtained beforehand. Of course, as it is today, table etiquette was practiced.

With school beginning at 8:30 a. m., she was required to be present at the morning devotional exercises. All classes had to be attended unless permission was granted from the teacher before the hour of recitation or sickness was reported to someone of authority.

On Friday afternoon Rhetorical Exercises were held. These exercises consisted of composition, declamations (making speeches), and recitations interspersed with music provided by the pupils. As usual she was not excused from participating.

Between the close of afternoon study hours at 4:30 p. m. and the dinner hour, Grandma enjoyed walking in the neighborhood of the school. However, permission was not given to walk, ride, or correspond with the gentlemen of the college.

After the required evening Chapel exercises, all students retired immediately to their rooms for study. The study hour ended with the ringing of the first retiring bell at 9:45 p. m. During this study time, visiting of rooms and loud talking were forbidden; students were not allowed to leave their floors without permission of the teacher in charge.

Tobacco in any form was not allowed in the buildings or anywhere on the school premises. Violators of this law or any of the other rules were subject to appear before the Student Senate who would determine and administer punishment.

Several rules do stand today almost as they did when Grandmother or auntie came to Bloomsburg State Normal School. "Nothing should be thrown from the windows. Students will be held responsible for any damage to their rooms or furniture. No nails are to be driven into the walls without permission of the steward. No change of rooms is to be made without permission of the principal. Rooms will be frequently inspected."

College life was quite different in grandma's time, but it kept her in a daze and she was just as proud of her alma mater as we are today. Bloomsburg began as the "friendly college on the hill" and it remains the same today.

DR. ANDRUSS SPEAKS TO BUSINESS TEACHERS

The Delaware Business Teachers Association, meeting in Wilmington, Delaware for its annual convention, was addressed by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, on the subject of "Vocational, Economic, and Social Competencies in Business Education."

The theme is taken from Chapter I of the Business Education Manual of Pennsylvania, and from a chapter in a book known as "Better Business Education," both of which were written by Doctor Andruss.

During the past decade the state meetings of business teachers of Connecticut, New York, Ohio, Virginia, Michigan, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Illinois, as well as Pennsylvania, have invited Doctor Andruss to give similar addresses.

That the student must be trained to be an efficient employee and at the same time have some understanding of the responsibility of the employer, and that the business that employs him must add something to the sum total of human welfare and benefit society, has been the general theme of these messages of the President of the local Teachers College.

WORK BEGUN ON

NEW DINING HALL

Low bids for the new dining hall and kitchen at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, opened at Harrisburg, are about $11,000 under the estimate and have been accepted.

The total is $437,947. The appropriation for the new structure to be erected at the site of the old tennis courts and across the highway from Waller Hall from where the dining room is now located, was $450,000. There is also a $10,000 appropriation for loose equipment with bids for this to be secured later.

Work has started. It is possible to have the work completed by homecoming of next fall.

The S. H. Evert Company, Bloomsburg, submitted the low bid for the general contract at $257,400 and Edwards Electric Company, Bloomsburg, was low for the electric work at $40,866.

Other low bids were John Miles, Kulpmont, heating, $43,900 and plumbing, $27,500; Grindell Company, Scranton, elevator, $6,981, and Mervin and Kretchmer, Mountaintop, N. J., kitchen equipment, $63,200.

This will be the first new construction at the local institution since 1939 and is under the present General State Authority. Under an earlier and similar authority there was added to the plant of the local institution the Centennial Gymnasium, Navy Hall, the maintenance building and the new power plant.

There was spirited bidding on the dining hall contract. Twelve submitted bids for the general contractor, seven for heating, six for plumbing, seven for electrical work, four for the elevator and a dozen for kitchen equipment.

FRESHMAN PARENTS' DAY

The second annual Freshman Parents' Day held at B.S.T.C. Sunday, October 12, was a big success with more than 250 parents attending. More than 450, including freshmen and faculty members, enjoyed dinner at the college dining room following attendance at church services.

At a convocation at Carver Hall auditorium, members of the administrative staff were introduced and President Harvey A. Andruss extended greetings.

A panel discussion on general college problems was presented with John Hoch, Dean of Instruction, as moderator. On the panel were Dr. Andruss, Miss Mary Macdonald, coordinator of guidance services; Miss Beatrice Mettler, college nurse; Paul G. Martin, business manager, and Dr. Ernest Engelhardt, placement director.

Parents of dormitory men and women held a meeting with Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, Dean of Women, and Jack Yohe, Dean of Men. Topic for discussion was "Problems Incident to Campus Life."

Floyd Tubbs, '12

Can you remember what happened forty-five years ago? I can. I can remember what happened about 10:00 a. m. on October 10th, 1910. I was in Psychology Class at Bloomsburg, Pa., State Normal School (now Bloomsburg State Teachers College) when a knock came on the classroom door. When Professor Bakeless opened the door, there stood a clerk from the school office who said, "Mr. Tubbs is wanted in the office."

I accompanied Nevin Engelhart to the office and when we entered there was Prof. Jenkins, the registrar; also my great-uncle, Charles Whitesell, and his son, Oscar Whitesell.

After the usual greetings, Prof. Jenkins said, "Oscar is coming to school here." I assure you anyone could have "knocked me over" with my English grandmother's proverbial featner because, you see, Oscar Whitesell is blind.

During the next two years I was to see and learn many things that even to me, as I think about it now, seemed next to impossible.

Oscar Whitesell was born in the year 1892 and is just three months older than I.

As a child it was quite apparent there was something wrong with his eyes, and then at the age of eleven he met with an accident while at play near his father's home. As a result of the accident he lost the sight of one eye at once, and then gradually the sight of the other eye weakened until, despite the efforts of the best doctors in the best hospitals, he became entirely blind.

As one of a big family of cousins (mostly boys) I learned to play all the rough boy games — and I mean rough — and I assure you the roughest and readiest was Oscar. There was one game in which he could not take part and that was his greatest love — baseball. He was the very successful manager of his home baseball team for years. Since the only way he can "see" a baseball game is to have someone explain to him every play, he can get more from the radio description of a game than most people get from watching a game. And don't question any statement he makes about batting averages, home runs, etc., of major league teams or you will find out what a wonderful memory he has.

Oscar's younger brother had a bicycle and I have seen Oscar get on this bicycle at his father's house and ride it down the hill to a stone arch bridge, go between the stone "wingwalls" of the bridge, and then up the hill on the other side. Later they had a tandem bicycle and many were the rides Oscar and I had around the town of Bloomsburg.

Oscar Whitesell graduated from Overbrook School for the Blind near Philadelphia in June, 1910, and then returned in September for a post-graduate course; and that is when the heads of the school advised him to go to a "seeing" school.

During the next two years, everyone at B.S.N.S. became accustomed to Oscar's and my going about the campus, into the dining room, and to and from classes with his books under his arm. I should say book not books because one book made an armful since they were in Braille and were about 16" x 16" by 2" thick.

Oscar roomed alone the first year and with his brother the second year but all his studying was done with me and my roommate in our room.

One of the things that impressed me most was the way all the pupils, boys and girls alike, accepted Oscar as one of them. The professors and others in authority did everything possible to help us through some most difficult situations; we were allowed to eat at the same table just inside the dining room door for two years; all examinations were taken on his typewriter and special examinations were given at special times.

At Overbrook School for the Blind, Oscar had been an outstanding athlete and at Bloomsburg his record was continued. In the interclass track meet he always took first or second place in the shot put and standing broad jump. In gym exhibitions he always performed on the parallel bars.

One night, when we were supposed to be studying, I was working off some surplus energy by putting the palm of my hands on the foot board of our bed and jumping up with my feet between my hands without raising the palms of my hands. The next morning Oscar said to me, "Floyd, do you know what you were doing last night? Well, when I got to my room, I tried it and I jumped clear over on the bed; the springs went down on the floor and I had to sleep that way all night."

One night in the fall of the year as we left the dining room after the evening meal, the lights went out and I said to Oscar, "We had better stay here." He answered, "Come on; I'll take you up to your room." As we reached the fourth floor and started down the long hall, I could see a faint light through the window at the end of the hall, but before we reached this Oscar made a sharp turn to the left and started down the connecting hall. I said to him, "How did you know when to make that turn?" He said, "I don't know." A couple of days after that he said to me, "I've been wondering how I knew when to make that turn in the hall, and today I found out. There is a slight rise in the floor just before you reach the turn."

One day while walking down Main Street in Bloomsburg Oscar said, "The other day you asked me how I knew what kind of store we were passing. Well, I am sure you can recognize this odor." I certainly could since we were passing a wholesale candy store.

After leaving school Oscar Whitesell for a time operated his father's general store where he had the price of all articles marked in Braille.

Since he studied piano tuning at the Overbrook School, he now makes a living tuning pianos. He and his wife drive as far as Binghanton, New York, where he has a number of pianos to tune.

One day before he was married, he was telling me an experience he had. He would go down to the barn, hitch the horse to the buggy, and drive a number of miles to see his friend (now his wife). He said, "The other night I was coming home and since I had been out quite late for a number of nights, I went to sleep. I don't know how long I slept but when the horse stopped, I awoke and I didn't know where I was. I got out and walked up to the horse's head and I ran into a pile of lumber. I knew at once where I was because the horse had turned into a side road leading to an old sawmill. I took the horse by the head, turned him around and came on home."

When Oscar's parents would come to our house to visit he would say to my grandmother, "Aunt Lib, is the organ in the same place?" He liked to play our old reed organ and so he would make his way to the room where it was and go straight to the place where the organ happened to be.

When asked to read from one of his Braille books and the room was rather dark, my grandmother said, "Wait Oscar, I will get you a light." He said, "Oh I don't need any light."

The most important thing about most of these incidents I have tried to describe is not the almost uncanny things that Oscar could do, but the natural, unassuming way in which he did them so that people like my grandmother were apt to forget he was blind.

And now I have saved until the last the telling of what to me was the culmination of our two years together at B.S.N.S. Many honors are received at schools and colleges but the greatest is that given by the Faculty. So the Class of 1912 at B.S.N.S., of which Oscar Whitesell and I were members, will always be proud of the fact that Oscar Whitesell who is blind was the Valedictorian.

92 PERCENT OF '55 CLASS

NOW TEACHING

Graduates of the Teachers College really go into the teaching profession. Ninety-two percent of the class of 1955, who were available for teaching positions, began their duties with the opening of schools in September. The annual follow-up survey of graduates has just been completed by the placement service of the institution. According to Dr. Ernest H. Engelhardt, director of placement, all members of the class of 1955 have replied to the annual followup letter.

Last year's class numbered 154. Of these, two are in graduate schools and twenty-one are in the armed services. Of the remaining 131 available for employment, 120, or ninety-two percent, are teaching school.

Only five members of the entire class chose to go into gainful occupations other than teaching. Five women graduates are married and busy at homemaking. One graduate is unemployed at the present time.

The class of 1955 has also lowered the trend to out-of-state placement. Of 108 beginning teachers, eighty-five are teaching in Pennsylvania and twenty-three out-of-state. Percentages figure seventy-nine percent in Pennsylvania and twenty-one percent out-of-state. In 1954, the percentage for Pennsylvania was sixty-six percent, and in 1953, it was seventy-three percent. The improved holding power of Pennsylvania is probably due to a slight increase in salaries paid beginning teachers.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, in commenting on the placement report, observed that pending legislation providing for regular increments of $200 and additional increments of $150, totalling $350 per year, will undoubtedly help to hold presently employed and recently graduated teachers in their home State of Pennsylvania. However, as long as Delaware and New Jersey offer $500 more per year to the beginning teacher than is paid in Pennsylvania, and the school populations in the anthracite coal regions continue to decline, young graduates of State Teachers Colleges coming from Lackawanna, Luzerne, Schuylkill, and Northumberland Counties will, if they cannot return to their home communities, tend to be attracted to out of state positions, he added.

MISS HARRIET LINK

AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Harriet Link, a junior from Coopersburg, Pennsylvania, was awarded a three hundred dollar scholarship by the Columbia County Chapter for the Mentally Retarded. The award was made on the basis of her interest, work, and academic achievement in the field of special education. Mr. Frank Whitmire, vice president of the local unit of the organization, presented the award in assembly on November 8.

"Pennsylvania is not shouldering its responsibilities toward youth—either in school buildings or teacher training," Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of B.S.T.C., told those attending the father's night meeting of the Benjamin Franklin P.T.A.

Ninety-six parents and teachers heard Dr. Andruss expressed his belief that it was the responsibility of P.T.A. units and the school boards to protect the future of education in this state. He also stated that he felt that there should be non-partisan balloting for school directors and that the job of state superintendent of schools should not be political.

A covered dish supper was enjoyed preceding the meeting. Husbands of the P.T.A. officers were in charge of the business session.

Football - 1955

The Bloomsburg Huskies closed their 1955 football season with a record of five victories, two defeats, and one tie. Four games were placed with teams outside of the conference, with a record of two games won and two games lost. In the Teachers' College Conference, the Huskies defeated Mansfield, California, and West Chester, and played a scoreless tie with Lock Haven, thus achieving a record of three victories, no defeats, and one tie, and winning the Conference Championship.

The following summary of the past ten seasons is quoted from the "Fanning" column of The Morning Press:

'When the referee tossed the ball into the air on College field to signify that the "battle of the blizzard" was over and Lock Haven and Bloomsburg had battled to a scoreless tie, most of the some 500 partisan fans assembled were disappointed. None made any attempt at a demonstration.

One reason, of course, was that many of the Bloomsburg fans believed that we had to have a win to take the title. It was sometime later that it was learned this was not so. We were the kingpins.

Bloomsburg had won the State Conference football crown by twelve points. The final rating was: Bloomsburg 237.5; West Chester 225.5.

But we wonder how many of the fans, festooned in snowflakes and with ice cold foundations, despite overshoes or galoshes, realized that the Huskies had completed a decade of football without a losing season.

That was something that most of the more optimistic folks who follow the Huskies didn't think was possible when the College revived the sport back in '46. But it has happened.

It's just another of those instances, though, that when you get something you aren't satisfied. You want something more. Saturday the one thing that would have made the folks happy was a victory. And we didn't get it.

Yet after the New Haven game, when the Huskies stood at three wins and two losses, most of the folks would have settled for two wins in the remaining three games. There were some who figured we wouldn't win any of them. After we escaped defeat in the three and rose to the heights against West Chester, we got all gloomy because of a tie.

The only worthy aim, of course, is to play to win. Disappointed as were the fans, the team felt the sting of the tie more than the fans. And we aren't amiss when we give Lock Haven some credit. The Bald Eagles played a superb game.

But now that we have had a little time for sober reflection we certainly can see that this campaign of '55 was a success — one well above what was contemplated at the start.

They have had a Teachers College Conference for five years. In that time we have had the undisputed title for two seasons and a piece of it a third. No other Teachers College has had it more. West Chester alone has done as well.

Further, we have to realize that when we stay in our class we aren't going to win all the time. No club does. And while some of the folks may not believe it, a team that wins all the time also loses fans.

This Husky team of '55 was drawing its best crowds after it had a couple of close shaves. It attracted two near record throngs for the West Chester and King's games and we're sure it would have set a new high mark had the weather been as fine as it was the preceding weekend.

When we gave up football prior to World War II things were drab. We didn't have much manpower and what we had couldn't handle things.

The administration brought the sport back in '46. The late "Lefty" Danks was brought over from Milton to coach. He suffered a heart attack and died before the season opened. The present dean of instruction at the College, John A. Hoch, was Danks' assistant. After "Lefty's" untimely death Hoch was made head coach for the year. The squad unanimously requested this.

Every school was loaded with returning GI's. We opened with a tie with Mansfield and then dropped three. The scores were close but defeat was our lot. Then we won the next four, including an upset at East Stroudsburg, and turned in a winning season of 4 wins, 3 losses and a tie. We were on our way.

Bob Redman came here in the fall of '47 to start a highly successful five-year regime. He lost the first one at Kingston to Mansfield Teachers, 7-6, and then his club rolled along. Shippensburg upset us in a homecoming game at Athletic Park, 19-12, after we got a 12-0 lead, but that was the only other black mark. The season finished with a 6 won, 2 lost record.

Then came 1948 and the Huskies turned in an undefeated season. Wilkes upset us in the opener of '49 but then the boys got going again and shortly thereafter Redman brought out another undefeated team.

Bob's now turning out winners at East Orange. Jack Yohe, a Lock Haven alumnus who was right hand man to Glenn Killinger at West Chester, for many years, came here four years ago to take over.

He hasn't had any undefeated teams but he has had all winning combinations. In the worst under him we won five and lost three.

Somewhere along in the present college year the Alumni and students should get together and commemorate an achievement of a decade of winning football teams.

Mansfield scoring: Touchdown—Linker (1, center).

Bloomsburg Teachers unveiled their 1955 football model before some 500 fans at Mansfield on Saturday afternoon, October 1, and performed satisfactorily for an opener, winning 27-6.

The Huskies weren't extended. They scored each of the first two times they gained possession of the pigskin, then moved ineptly about until jarred out of their lethargy by a Mansfield touchdown at the start of the second half. After that they settled down to put together touchdown drives of 67 and 70 yards for touchdowns and held firm control of the game until the final whistle.

Jack Yohe started an all veteran team but used a number of sophomores as replacements as the game progressed and some of the replacements did effective work. In all thirty-seven of the Maroon and Gold saw battle.

Bloomsburg scoring: Touchdown—Lashendock (6, end run). Cortland scoring: Touchdowns—Radzviez (28, end); Powell (16, pass from DeRonda). PAT—Powell (placement).

Defeat came early to the Huskies in the 1955 football campaign.

Cortland, N. Y., Teachers, an institution that has increased its enrollment from 500 to 1,800 in less than a decade, turned the trick on their home field Saturday afternoon, October 8, 13-6.

They won it in the second period on an 83-yard drive culminating in a neat 28-yard end run by Johnny Radzaviez, a freshman halfback from Horseheads, N. Y., and a placement boot by Clarence Powell, a senior from Yonkers.

Their second score was the product of the situation. Bloomsburg, which scored in the third period on a 4-yard drive after Harry Hughes, a junior, Williamsport, recovered a fumbled punt, had failed to tie the count when a placement boot by Bob Rainey, a sophomore from Johnstown, went to the left of the uprigths.

Still striving to pull the game out of the fire Mike Lashendock, a senior from Keiser, went to a passing game. It wasn't clicking because of the rushing tactics of the Cortland line but he gambled on a fourth down long one that failed and Cortland took over on the Husky 16.

The Cortland attack had been entirely stymied after the early minutes of the second half, once after the home club got first down on the Husky 3.

Bloomsburg State Teachers College gained possession of the anthracite football trophy of the Kingston-Fort Fort Kiwanians when they swam to a 12-0 victory over Wilkes in Kingston High stadium Saturday night, October 15.

The football of hard coal may only be retained by a team until it is beaten by its opponent in the series, but the Huskies must have been sorely tempted to use it for fuel in an attempt to chase the cold after they had bathed in muddy water for more than two hours while five hundred of the dyed-in-wool fans watched and also got drenched.

Conditions were no reflection on the field. No turf could take a drenching such as the Kingston gridiron experienced and not have some water on it. And then it rained through much of the game and poured during the first half.

The game had been staged for the benefit of the underprivileged children's program of the up-river Kiwanians. The weather was a definite disappointment to them for a crowd of 10,000 had been the goal. While only five percent of that number turned out the total at hand was surprisingly good for conditions.

Bloomsburg scoring: Touchdowns—Boughner (30, end run, and 6 end run); Waseavage (30, pass interception). PAT—Johnston, Rainey (placements).

Just when it appeared that the Bloomsburg Huskies might drop their first Homecoming game since football was revived on the hill in '46, a couple of boys on the forward wall, Mo Morson, an end, and Joe Wascavage, a guard, combined to score a touchdown on a pass interception and Bob Rainey, a halfback, used his educated toe for the important point that gave the Huskies a 20-19 decision over Kings in a thriller.

The tide changed at 5:30 of the last period and after Kings trailing 13-0 at the end of the first period, had come back to take a 1913 lead as a result of the brilliant passing of Bernie Koval, a 155-pound sophomore from Kingstons.

The Huskies, who had used an umbrella defense against passes much of the afternoon and found many holes in the umbrella, switched to a six-man line in place of a four in the final stanza and it paid off.

Koval, who was threading a needle much of the afternoon, had possession in midfield. He was passing deep, often 20 yards back of the scrimmage line.

This time it looked as though he was attempting a screen pass. As the ball left his hands as he was hit simultaneously from different directions and at different parts of his body by Husky forwards, Morson reached up and deflected the ball. It was snatched by the charging Joe Wascavage from Old Forge and, after he was sprung free by a timely block by the busy Morson, he outlegged the frantic Kingsmen to the goal line 30 yards away. Then Rainey got the all important extra point and the largest gathering of alumni for a Homecoming in recent years if not in history was left in a happy mood.

A crowd estimated at between 3,000 and 3,500 massed under perfect football weather to watch a game in which the tide changed as the contest progressed. They watched the Huskies move to two quick scores in the first period and then saw a plucky band of Monarchs come back under the talented pitching Koval to dominate play for much of the afternoon and throw a scare into the ranks of the Huskies that will not be soon forgotten.

Koval, who was injured in the play that led to the Husky triumph, did a superb job in hitting his targets, his aerial exhibition being one of the finest ever seen on Mount Olympus.

This Kings team was a top unit and while the Huskies played well they had a mighty job on their hands.

Bloomsburg Huskies got their offensive rolling too late at New Haven, so that two touchdowns in the last period were not sufficient to turn the tide and the undefeated Badgers won, 25-21.

A Husky team in which there were many replacements operating, scored two touchdowns in the last six minutes but by that time the New Haven club had sufficient cushion to withstand the late rally.

It was a surprising game inasmuch as the New Haven boys, who in three previous meetings, had been definitely air minded, did all their damage with a running game and the Huskies, previously weak in the overhead game, made it click for more yardage than their running game.

But for the educated toe of Johnstown's "Bo" Rainey the Vulcan spoilers from California State Teachers College would have done some more spoiling here Saturday, November 5.

Because of "Bo's" place kicking ability the Huskies eked out a 7-6 decision to remain undefeated in Teachers College conference play and still in the running for state honors.

It was one of those tight ball games where if it had not been for any one of a series of things the tide of battle would have turned the other way.

Among the more noticeable contributions to the Husky victory was a determined goal line stand by the Maroon and Gold line in the second period and "Truck" Malczyk's blocking of Byron Bakewell's attempted placement boot in the dying minutes of the contest. Had Blakewell gotten the kick off it probably would have knotted the count for it had plenty of carry and was headed in the right direction when the fullback from Newport Township came barreling through and used his head in more ways than one to thwart the attempt.

It was hard football all the way. Each club scored a most deserved touchdown, the results of a 72-yard march by the Huskies in the third period, with the hard running Bob Groover from Watson-town scoring from 4 yards out, and a 48-yard attack by California in the last period.

Bloomsburg Huskies on Saturday afternoon, November 12, played to perfection the role of a gridiron David to West Chester's Goliath.

The local collegians won, 17-7, before some 3,000 fans and moved within one victory of a clear-cut Pennsylvania State Teachers College gridiron crown.

A Bloomsburg team that has threatened since the start of the season to put on a great performance did so against the Rams, outplaying the Killinger crew most of the way and never faltering in purpose although there were a few occasions when their own shortcomings again created greater havoc to the Husky cause than did the opposition.

The Huskies moved to a quick and clean-cut 68-yard five-play score in the second period. Mike Lashendock sneaked the final inches after scintillating Jimmy Browning had done a twinkle-toes dash to the threshold of the goal. "Bo" Rainey, the old reliable with the educated toe, converted.

A fumble by Lashendock early in the third period was grabbed by Ray Kanter, Ram guard, 20 yards away from paydirt. Johnny Harrington, West Chester quarter, knew what to do with it. He chucked to this end, Jim Kormarnicki, on the first play for a score. Eli McLaughlin booted the placement that tied it up.

All that did, however, was make the final quarter more dramatic. Bloomsburg went 76 yards for the clincher. It took nine plays. Browning did a masterful piece of tip-toeing through the West Chester tulip patch for the final 10. He went over standing up. "Bo" Rainey did his specialty and then a few minutes later stood back on the 18 and calmly split the uprights with a field goal that made it sure for Bloomsburg.

Bloomsburg's line, the question mark at the start of the season, was superb. Always good on defense, it turned in a top offensive job against the Rams. West Chester's running game was held to a net of 22 yards. The Rams couldn't make a first down by any method until five minutes of the second period had ticked away. And when it came to attack the forward stalwarts in maroon and gold tore holes in the Ram line — a line that is rated as one of the best in some years at West Chester.

The Husky backs, getting this type of cooperation up front, ripped and tore all afternoon. They were halted at times when scores seemed certain but rolled with relentless purpose on enough occasions to win and to clearly establish their superiority in so doing.

Bloomsburg State Teachers College won the 1955 Pennsylvania State Teachers College Conference Football title in the "battle of the blizzard" Saturday, November 21, but it couldn't defeat the Lock Haven Bald Eagles. The teams battled to a scoreless tie.

Weather conditions held attendance to an estimated 500 or so whereas, had the conditions been as ideal as the previous Saturday, the crowd would probably have been a record breaker.

Those who turned out watched two teams put up good games under conditions but found the weather too much of a handicap for the gridgers when it came to offense.

Miss Edna J. Barnes, a member of the faculty of Bloomsburg State Teachers College, left San Francisco on June 24 to participate in the first round-the-world tour sponsored by Western Illinois State College. Miss Barnes teaches college geography and supervises student teachers at the training school. Thirty-six teachers from six states participated in the tour.

Those present from the College were Dr. Nell Maupin, Miss Edna Hazen, Dr. Ralph Herre, Warren Johnson and Howard F. Fenstermacher.

Mr. Fenstermaker brought greetings from the College, and spoke of the high enrollment, the large number who could not be admitted because of lack of facilities, and the high caliber of the present Freshman class.

He also spoke of the recent improvements to the physical plant, the improvements soon to be started, and the necessity of further expansion.

He urged those present to maintain their support of the Alumni Association, in order that it may help more worthy students through the granting of scholarships.

NORTHUMBERLAND

COUNTY ALUMNI

Northumberland county alumni of the Teachers College reorganized at a meeting at the Auman's restaurant, Paxinos, Thursday evening, September 8, that was attended by fifty-nine graduates.

Frank VanDevender, Shamokin, class of 1939, was chosen president; Joseph Curilla, 1946, vice president, and Mrs. Oliver Mourey Green, Sunbury, 1952, secretary-treasurer.

John Carter, assistant county superintendent in Northumberland, gave the address of the evening on "Our Pennsylvania Heritage." Dr. Nelson introduced all of the graduates present. Dean John A. Hoch spoke on behalf of the College, representing President Andruss who was unable to be in attendance.

The enjoyed meeting was arranged by Charles Boyer, Lewisburg, president of the West Branch Alumni.

MONTOUR COUNTY BRANCH

The Montour County Alumni Association of Bloomsburg State Teachers College voted Monday evening, November 21, to continue its scholarship to a Montour county student to attend the local institution.

Decision was made at the annual dinner held at the Mausdale Church with 100 attending.

Present holder of the scholarship of fifty dollars is Peggy Barges of Danville.

Dr. Kimber Kuster spoke on scholarships and grants-in-aid and Prof. Howard Fenstermaker spoke on alumni activities. Also representing the college were Miss Edna J. Hazen, Dr. Nell Maupin and Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the institution. Dr. Andruss spoke on a new publication, "Years of Progress at Bloomsburg State Teachers College." Montour county students at the college, Jeanette Deibert and Robert Dalton, were also guests at the meeting.

Musical entertainment was provided by Carmine Pennella, accordionist; Joan Baer, vocalist; Shirley Lubold, accompanist; and Filomena Crocomo, pianist. Richard Bittner was master of ceremonies.

Fifty per cent of the college's Montour County Alumni attended the meeting during which current officers were reelected. Lois Bryner is president of the organization.

The association's progressiveness is largely attributed to the efforts of Fred W. Diehl, Montour county superintendent of schools and president of the B.S.T.C. board of directors. The event is traditionally held the first day of Teachers Institute and teachers attending that function are invited to the alumni gathering whether they are alumni or not. Many attended.

NEW YORK ALUMNI

The sixth annual meeting and dinner of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College Alumni Association of Greater New York was held at "Zig's" Restaurant, 589 Central Avenue, Newark, N. J., Saturday night, November 5th, 1955. Dinner was served to thirty-one members and guests.

Vice President Clive Potts, '12, gave the invocation.

President Michael Prokopchak, '35, introduced the honored guests, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Nelson. He then asked those present to introduce themselves, give their class and something they had done since graduation.

Dr. Nelson, guest speaker, gave us facts and figures of things being done on the campus.

The question was asked about the removal of the fountain at the entrance at the campus, it being replaced by a parking area. This shocked and and displeased many of us who had looked upon the "fountain" as much a part of B.S. N.S. and B.S.T.C. as the "tower." We just can't see the removing of one of Bloomsburg's "land marks" as progress.

Dr. Nelson assisted by George Kepping, '50, showed us some very interesting colored films of scenes and events on the campus. These were enjoyed by all and we wish to thank Dr. Nelson for bringing them down to us.

A short business meeting followed at which time officers were chosen for 1956. They are:

President, Michael Prokopchak, '35, 233 West Passaic Avenue, Bloomfield, N. J.

Vice President, P. Clive Potts, '12, 24 Wellesley Road, Upper Montclair, N. J.

Secretary-Treasurer, A. K. Naugle, '11, 119 Dalton Street, Roselle Park, N. J.

The Editor has received a beautiful memorial booklet dedicated to the memory of Margaret E. Burke, who passed away in January, 1955. We are indebted to A. K. Naugle, '11, Roselle Park, N. J., Secretary-Treasurer of the New York Alumni, for sending us the booklet. We are pleased to print in full the tribute to Miss Burke.

IN MEMORIAM

MARGARET E. BURKE

The members of the Vocational High School Principals' Association of the City of New York deeply mourn the loss of their beloved colleague, Margaret E. Burke, and wish to pay tribute to the memory of her warm friendship.

She was a full-fledged elementary school teacher when she left her home town, Shenandoah, Pennsylvania, in 1913, to answer the lure of greater opportunities in the big city of New York. Nor was she disappointed.

Never counting the cost, but with sincere dedication, for over 50 years, as Classroom Teacher, High School Sewing Supervisor, Teacher in Charge and Principal, Margaret E. Burke gave of her unusual and boundless intellectual, spiritual, and physical energies so that the education of youth should reach a high state of development.

Teacher in charge of the Bronx Industrial High School in 1929, its Principal in 1931, Margaret E. Burke was a pioneer in the field of vocational education for girls.

Pioneer in curriculum analysis and programming, Miss Burke envisioned, planned and set up courses of study for girls which are still the basis for today's work. Pioneer in personnel, Miss Burke recruited and screened hundreds of able applicants from industry to enter the Industrial Teacher Training Courses, and examined them for licenses to teach. Pioneer in training women teachers for higher responsibility, she selected, counselled and inspired many members of her faculty to advance to administrative and supervisory posts.

The years passed and a new and bigger vocational high school for girls was required in the Bronx. With great and enduring enthusiasm, Margaret Burke planned, equipped and staffed this school.

In 1937 the new Jane Addams Vocational High School opened under her aegis. She was an able executive whose leadership was never obtrusive but yet it so permeated the school that during her one prolonged absence, in 1942, all activities continued to function effortlessly but efficiently. Her students loved and respected her, and everyone was loyal to her training.

Margaret Burke possessed a warm, radiant, beautiful personality. During all her years at Jane Addams, she was alert, reasonable, calm and humanly interested in people, youngster and adult alike.

Miss Burke was a constant reminder to us all, by living example, that responsibilities always accompany rights and privileges.

We relished her sense of humor and her delightful gift of story telling. We found her serenity a pervasive influence on many an occasion.

Well might these following lines have been penned to express our sentiments about our beloved friend, Margaret E. Burke:

The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength, and skill;
A perfect woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort, and command.

— William Wordsworth

This tribute was unanimously adopted at the monthly meeting of the Vocational High School Principals Association held on March Third, Nineteen Hundred Fifty-Five. It was ordered to be entered in the minutes of the Association. It was further ordered to be read at the Jane Addams Vocational High School Alumnae Meeting to be held at the school in the Spring of 1955, and to be forwarded to members of Miss Burke's family, to her fellow Principals, and to the members of the Board of Superintendents.

There were a few things marking the opening of another school year in Bloomsburg High School that are going to take a little time to get adjusted to and one of these was not to see Mrs. Harriet Hartman Kline on duty instructing in senior English.

Mrs. Kline retired at the close of the last school term after an outstanding career of many years on the faculty. We imagine that it was rather difficult for her, too, to not answer the call of the school bell.

An excellent teacher, she at one time was instructor in biology but for most of her term of service in the local schools she concentrated on English.

A capable teacher, she was also a keen judge of the capabilities of her pupils and worked tirelessly with the individual to bring out all the latent talent. Her aim was to have the best the particular student was capable of doing and no less.

She held the belief that all young people should leave high school with a thorough knowledge of English fundamentals and the rules of correct sentence structure. She taught outlining, paragraph writing and correct letter writing; developed creative writing on the experiences of the young people; taught how to set up a research project correctly and present it interestingly, and worked constantly to have young people interpret and evaluate the printed page.

Mrs. Kline helped many youngsters to appreciate the great heritage of literature and to evaluate the person responsible for the work and recognize the philosophy of the age in which he wrote.

One of the keystones of her course was to do all possible to see that pupils learned how to act and what to say in the various situations in which they would be placed through life.

The entire area well remembers the school productions which she directed for many years and which ran the gamut from farce comedy to Shakespearan drama, and also the many delightful class night productions which were built by her. For many years she also coached the student commencement speakers.

She long taught demonstration lessons before visiting teachers attending secondary conferences at the Teachers College. The recognized value of those demonstrations was shown by the number of teachers who returned for these demonstrations over long periods.

B.S.T.C. ALUMNI ASSOCIATION NEEDS YOUR SUPPORT

'Saucered and Blowed'

E. H. Nelson, '11

In a few days it will be my pleasure to represent the Alumni Association in making some scholarship awards to worthy students at the College. This is always a happy occasion. It makes one feel that it is an honor to be actively interested in student life in a definite, concrete way. And I believe too that the undergraduates get a feeling of pride to know that those who have been graduated want to have at least a small part in promoting that facet of school life which we call the "Spirit That is Bloomsburg."

This is the feeling that prompted a friend of the College through many years to say in his will, "I give _____ dollars to Bloomsburg State Teachers College Alumni Association. These funds to be expended at the descretion of the Governing Body of the Association for such purposes as it may see fit." This means help and cooperation in building a bigger and better Bloomsburg. Bigger in the sense that her influence may be ever increasing in training teachers to promote good citizenship and understanding in this State, Nation, and World. For Bloomsburg graduates are everywhere. Australia, South America, The Philippines, Japan, Germany, and other distant areas have all been represented in mail that came to this desk during the last six months. And the reason is interest in their Alma Mater, — interest that serves as a bit of that undefinable something that makes it easier to meet the problems of living in this changing world.

There stands a short distance south of Waterford, Penna., and a little to the west, off the highway, what is known as the Washington Sentinel Tree. It is a very large tree and has a life expectancy of many more score years. Waterford people preserve the tradition that Washington once climbed the tree to get a look over into the palisaded French Fort where the Flag of France waved for six years. This was a significant opening gesture that precipitated the French and Indian War. If Washington's vision had ended in dismay, there probably would not have been a United States of America.

Hundreds of students have climbed College Hill in quest of a vision. From Long Porch, from dormitory rooms, from Mt. Olympus, and many other vantage points, — along with inspirational and devoted teaching and teachers, — these hundreds have caught the vision of service and loyalty so that today we boast of Bloomsburg's proud heritage and enviable position in teacher education.

sors (Doctor's Degree), 9 Associate Professors (two years of graduate work including Master's Degree), 25 Assistant Professors (at least Master's Degree), and 3 Instructors.

The number of Associate Professors indicates those people who have gone beyond the Master's Degree toward the Doctor's Degree, and represents in many cases additional education planned to relate directly to the instructional responsibilities of the particular faculty member taking it.

The quality point system was inaugurated in the early part of this fifteen year period, and along with the appointment of a Coordinator of Guidance Services, the continuance of the giving of Placement Tests to all Freshmen, with the social and economic questionnaire, and the increasing use of the trait sheet for all students formerly applied only to Seniors, are some of the devices by which improvement in faculty-student relationships is sought.

Admission procedures have been revised to include an interview by two college officers. With the larger number of applicants and larger number of students seeking admission who graduated in the lower half of their high school class, a correspondingly larger number have been refused admission. Continuing guidance and counseling have been made available through the Directors of the Curriculums in Business, Elementary, and Secondary education, along with the Social Deans and their assistants.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

With the construction of the Junior High School and its use as a classroom building for the Department of Business Education and certain science classes, it has been possible to make classroom space in older buildings available for social and lounge purposes for students.

The large classroom on the second floor of Noetling Hall, formerly used for the Sixth Grade when this building was a Model School, and afterwards used for an Accounting Classroom in Business Education, was made available to Day Men, with much the same facilities as have been available for Day Women on the first floor of the same building over a period of twenty-five years.

The putting of the Centennial Gymnasium into use, allowed the conversion of the Old Waller Gymnasium into a general student recreation center—on one side a balcony lounge was located in the bleacher space, and on the other the bleacher space was leveled off as a location for a student book store.

At one end a fireplace and lounge space was made available, and with the removal of the balcony at the other end, once a part of the circular running track, the main floor once a basketball court is used for weekly student dancing, card playing, and the like.

The classroom adjacent to the Alumni Room, formerly used as offices for the Physical Education Staff, is now a faculty lounge, and by removing the overhead stairway to the Old Library, we now have space in what was formerly a hall for three student offices.

With the increase in the size of the lobby entrance to the dining room to include the space formerly occupied by the Business Office, we would now seem to have more than adequate lounge, lobby, and waiting space for students and college visitors for the student-body of the present size.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Changes in habits of the American people since World War II have caused us to change the kind and number of our contacts with our surrounding communities and service area. Some of the older events have been continued, such as Homecoming for the younger alumni, and Alumni Day for the Reunion Classes, the Basketball Tournament, and the continuation of the Spring Contest for Business Students.

We now invite service club representatives from three or four surrounding communities to a dinner preceding our Annual Sales Rally. The dinner is served to from 100 to 200, and the Sales Rally attendance varies from 700 to 800.

A fashion show precedes the Business Contest and the Future Teachers of America invite interested high school students to come to the college for a day in the Spring.

Our most effective channel for contacting prospective students is through the services of twenty or more interested members of our faculty who have in some recent years visited as many as 175 high schools. This visitation is many times preceded by an invitation to the high school principal to give the names of high school students who may be likely prospects for the teaching field.

Hiring officials receive an annual placement brochure which contains the pictures and description of the teaching fields of each graduating Senior.

With the publication of the catalog every two years, a larger amount of supplementary picture material is placed in the hands of prospective students.

ATHLETICS

While "wins" and "losses" are not necessarily a good criteria to apply to the success or failure of an intercollegiate athletic program, since many times sacrifices have had to be made in academic standards and administrative favoritism has to be shown to certain groups who participate on teams, it is, however, the most objective measurement of team prowess.

The period from 1929 to 1945 was, of course, one in which intercollegiate athletics was curtailed or terminated, and finally revived on a limited basis using war program students (Navy Flight Instructors and Officers Candidates).

For a fifteen year period beginning in 1930 it would seem to be fair to say that our track and baseball teams were outstanding, basketball was above average, and football teams were below average. In fact, in some years our record was poor.

With the turn in the balance of enrollment in 1938 in the direction of a large number of male students, and with the two to one ratio of men to women following World War II, it seemed desirable to reorganize our staff of Coaches. This was done on the basis that

1. Physical Education instructors could not be expected to coach all college sports in that
2. No Coach can be an expert in more than two sports, so that
3. The coaching duties were assigned on a broader basis to a larger number of faculty members, many of whom were not a part of the Physical Education instructional staff.

The results speak for themselves as we summarize the following intercollegiate sports.

Beginning in 1946 the Husky Gridders compiled an excellent record of 61 victories, 16 losses, 2 ties. The 1948 Club was the only undefeated and untied college football team in Pennsylvania, and our team was declared one of the co-champions of the Teachers College Conference.

This Football achievement was repeated in 1949 when the Huskies lost only one game in nine starts.

Whereas, in 1951 with the organization of the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Athletic Conference, Elcomsburg Huskies were victorious, winning all of their games, and in 1952 finished second. This is the greatest football record in the history of the college.

The high point in basketball was reached in 1953 when Bloomsburg won the conference championship with ten wins and two losses. The record for the ten-year period is 95 wins and 71 losses.

One undefeated Baseball Season in 1949 represents the first undefeated season since the days of Danny Litwhiler in 1935. Our record is 70 wins and 33 losses 1 tie (weather).

Track, once our most outstanding intercollegiate athletic effort, has not been as successful as in former years.

Early in the post-war period Soccer was a part of the college athletic program and was finally deleted from the list of activities. After a lapse Wrestling as a varsity sport was begun in 1955.

Intramurals for men have been popular, particularly the Spring program in which from 20 percent to 30 percent of the college men participate.

Intramurals for women have attracted a relatively smaller proportion of women in activities that center around a weekly open-house program in the Gymnasium.

This fifteen-year period covers the administration of

O. H. BAKELESS, 1858-1933

Professor O. H. Bakeless, remembered by older graduates as one of the most distinguished and beloved members of the Faculty of the Bloomsburg State Normal School, was born at Shamokin Dam September 6, 1858. He was the son of John C. Bakeless, a contractor and builder. The family is of French extraction, and his great-grandfather, Philippe Beauclercic, was a French refugee.

Professor Bakeless was educated in the schools of Shamokin Dam and at Professor Noetling's Normal Institute at Selinsgrove. Following his graduation, he taught for several years before entering Bloomsburg State Normal School, from which he was graduated in 1879.

His first teaching position was at Laurelton. Later he taught in Catawissa, and then entered Lafayette College, from which he was graduated in 1890.

He later became a teacher at Milroy, where he met Sara May Harvey. They were married in 1892. In that same year, Professor Bakeless went to the Carlisle Indian School to become Head of the Academic Department. He directed the work of the academic faculty and traveled extensively throughout the United States to see that Indian young people in white homes were accorded fair treatment.

In 1902 he returned to Bloomsburg as Head of the Department of Pedagogy, and continued as a member of the faculty until he retired in 1929.

Always a firm believer in Latin and Greek as fundamentals for an education, he taught classics in the Normal School during the first association with the institution, and maintained a keen interest throughout his life in that phase of education. Although he kept abreast of educational developments, he never wavered in his belief that classical education was the only proper foundation.

Following his retirement in 1929, Professor Bakeless continued to be very active in the affairs of the Alumni Association, of his community, and of his church. He passed away in September, 1933, in the First Methodist Church of Bloomsburg, where he was suddenly stricken while conducting the mid-week prayer service.

One of Professor Bakeless' pet projects was the Alumni Room. He served as treasurer of the fund that was raised to furnish the room, and was active in the selection and purchase of the furnishings of the room.

After Prof. Bakeless' death, Dr. Francis B. Hass, then President of the College, suggested that the Alumni Room project be carried to completion, and that it be named the Bakeless Memorial Room. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees, by unanimous action, expressed its deep sense of loss in the death of Professor Bakeless, and voiced its sincere approval of the effort to complete the Alumni Room, and to dedicate it as "The Bakeless Room." This suggestion was adopted by the Alumni Association, and the room was dedicated on Alumni Day, 1934. The dedicatory address was made by Prof. Charles H. Albert, who had worked on the faculty with Prof. Bakeless for many years.

In his address Professor Albert said:

"We have met at this hour to do honor and to pay tribute to one of our beloved Alumni: Osear Hugh Bakeless, a Christian Gentleman. One of the ladies of Bloomsburg, on hearing of his sudden death while conducting a mid-week prayer service in the Methodist Church, said: 'Professor Bakeless went from that prayer meeting straight to Heaven!' Some will call that a bit of sentiment, but it illustrates the esteem in which he was held by the good citizens of Bloomsburg.

"It was my good fortune to be associated with him from my early childhood until the time of his death. For four years we were close friends in the splendid Summer Normal School conducted by Professor William Noetling in Selinsgrove, prior to his coming in 1877 to the faculty of the Bloomsburg State Normal School. On the same morning that Dr. Waller, in 1877, came as Principal of the School, there came also, as members of the faculty, Prof. Noetling, Prof. Wilbur, and Prof. Curran. Osear Bakeless and I came to the school as students on that same day.

"We were chums throughout all our Normal School life. At different times we taught the same schools in Columbia and Union counties, and then, after several years of separation, we came together again as members of the faculty of our Alma Mater.

"He was a good classroom teacher, logical, concise, and definite. In all his pedagogical interpretations, he was sane, sound, and sensible. He had the wisdom and the rare good judgment to retain all there was of good in the old and to accept only what was good in the new. Every student who came under his tuition, and really wanted to learn, was inspired by his simple honesty of purpose and his enthusiasm for, and intense interest in, all that looked toward higher and better things.

"He had the rare ability to know what to teach and how to teach it, and the still rarer ability to induce his students to make mental contact with the mind of the teacher, and so step by step, direct the growing minds of his students into an appreciative comprehension of the problems under discussion, and how to apply their final solution to the affairs of everyday life.

"He spent nine years as Superintendent of the academic work at the Carlisle Indian School. Colonel Pratt, who was then in charge of that great school, said that Professor Bakeless had done more for the real uplift on Indian youth than any other teacher in any of the Indian schools.

"He was always doing something for somebody. Scores of worthy young men and women have been helped financially by his generosity, and, as I happen to know, even now after his death, agreements made by him prior to his passing from among us are to be faithfully kept until such beneficiaries of his kindness have completed their work.

"Again I say he was a Christian gentleman. John Ruskin said: 'The treasures of true kings are the streets of their cities and the gold they gather, which for others is as the mire of the streets, and changes itself for them and their people into crystalline pavements forevermore.' And so Professor Bakeless was ever hoping, aiming, and striving to make better and more beautiful every environment by which he found himself surrounded.

"Practically all the pictures and works of art that now grace the walls and corridors of our buildings, together with the beautiful glass windows, are the result of his endeavors. He had a hunger for things beautiful, and his ambition was that every student who came to the Bloomsburg State Teachers College should be greatly influenced in his mental and moral development by surroundings that were at once clean and wholesome and beautiful.

"The idea of the Alumni Memorial Room came to him years ago. But not until Dr. Haas came as our President, did this take definite shape and go forward to a final completion. He gave of his time and money without stint, and his ambition and hope were that he might live to see the room free from all encumbrance, and be really owned and controlled by our Alumni Association. This he was not permitted fully to realize, but today we are met to dedicate this beautiful room as a memorial to the memory and life work of our friend and fellow alumnus, Osear Hugh Bakeless."

"Teaching is a profession with an unlimited ceiling. In a true sense, a good teacher is, at one time, many things to his students. Teaching is the profession that encompasses all the interests of human beings," declared Dr. Eugene P. Bertin on Wednesday, January 24 in an address at the mid-year graduating exercises in Carver Auditorium at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. Dr. Bertin, who has served education for more than 30 years, is at present Assistant Executive Secretary of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

The well-known educator also pointed to specific remarks made in the past and present by our nation's leaders emphasizing the importance of education in preserving a free and prosperous democratic society.

Following the commencement address, Mr. Earl A. Gehrig, class advisor, presented Carl Meyer and Joseph Kwak to Dr. Andruss, who awarded them a service key and a gold football, respectively. The key was rewarded for meritorious service to the college community, and the football represented three varsity awards in that sport.

John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction, presented the class of 24 members to President Harvey A. Andruss, who conferred upon them the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education.

Those who received degrees were: Shirley Andre, Westfield; John Chrune, Wilkes-Barre; Harry Coleman, Bloomsburg; Robert Dalton, Danville; Earle Fetterolf, Bloomsburg; Barbara Laubach, Berwick; Karol Ruppel, Reading; Clement West, Berwick.

Elementary—Mrs. Laura Graham, Bloomsburg; Carl Meyer, Plymouth; Margaret Miller, McAdoo; Mrs. Shirley Thomas, Berwick; Edward White, Wilkes-Barre.

Secondary—David Benscoter, Bloomfield, N. J.; Alvin Davis, Wilkes-Barre; Howard Hall, Hazleton; Joseph Kwak, Wilkes-Barre; Robert Lyon, Riverside; Gilbert

Neibauer, Shamokin; Jean Robison, Bloomsburg; Milford Shelhamer, Mifflinville; Anne Swortwood, Ashley; Jack Thomas, R. D., Bloomsburg; John Trimble, Jersey Shore.

Dr. Ernest Engelhardt, Professor of Education and Director of Teacher Placement, presented the speaker to the audience and outlined briefly his distinguished career in education. Dr. Engelhardt began his teaching career under the supervision of Dr. Bertin.

Dr. Bertin, a member of the P. S. E. A. Headquarters Staff since 1947, has a record of more than thirty years of distinguished service to education. A native of Lycoming County, Dr. Bertin was educated in the rural and city public schools of the Commonwealth. He completed the undergraduate requirements for law at Bucknell University, and later received a master's degree in Comparative Literature and the English Language from Harvard University. He continued his graduate work, earning the Doctor of Philosophy degree in Educational Administration at the University of Chicago.

The well-known educator served as teacher and administrator in public schools, teachers' colleges, and the Department of Public Instruction before joining the P. S. E. A. staff eight years ago. During that time he has written hundreds of articles, many of which have been published by education journals, newspapers, and medical and historical publications. In one year, Dr. Bertin spoke at 268 meetings, travelled 50,000 miles by car, and visited 87 towns and cities, a testimony to his statement that he likes to travel, and enjoys meeting and talking with people. He has many hobbies, and holds membership in more than thirty-five organizations, representing a wide variety of civic, military and fraternal interests.

BUSINESS EDUCATION CONTEST

The Twenty-Third Annual Business Education Contest will be held at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College on Saturday, May 5, according to an announcement by Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of the Department of Business Education. The annual event, temporarily interrupted last year when the College served as host to the Annual Conference of the Pennsylvania Business Educators Association, will include competitive examinations in bookkeeping, business arithmetic, Gregg Shorthand, typewriting, and business law.

In addition to the competitive phases of the event, several other activities have been planned for those who visit the campus. On Friday, May 4 at 8:15 p. m., the Tenth Annual Fashion Show will be presented in honor of the visiting teachers and contestants. An annual activity of the Business Education Department, the Show, directed by Mr. Charles Henrie, Assistant Professor of Business Education, features as models, students from all departments on the campus.

In other years, both contestants and teachers have shown considerable interest in the Office Machines Show and the Textbook Exhibit in Navy Hall Auditorium. This Show and Exhibit, scheduled for Saturday morning, May fifth, will include displays of business education textbooks and demonstrations of numerous business machines commonly found in offices and schools.

Enrollments in previous contests have sometimes exceeded two hundred students representing more than thirty Pennsylvania high schools.

SECOND SEMESTER

ENROLLMENT

Second semester classes at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College began with an enrollment of 910, including forty new students and eighteen others who are returning servicemen or transfer students from other colleges.

The forty new freshmen students represent a reduction of about seventy-five under the number of new entrants admitted in January, 1955, according to John A. Hoch, dean of instruction. The decrease reflects the college's lack of class room, dormitory, and laboratory facilities, and is in keeping with the general trend of last year in reducing enrollment. Dean Hoch said the institution was forced to turn away about two out of every three students who applied, a repetition of the trend of September, 1955.

The new enrollment figure sends the number of Korean veterans, studying on Mt. Olympus, beyond the 225 mark. The total enrollment of 910 is a slight decrease from the 936 who registered last September.

Women's and men's dormitories on the campus are filled to capacity and about 150 male students are being accommodated in private lodgings in town because of the lack of housing on the campus.

The college has employed two new faculty members for the current semester. Mrs. Janet W. Engelhardt will teach classes in English and general literature, and Mr. Edwin M. Barton will instruct classes in European history.

COMPLETION OF SNACK BAR

In 1939, B. S. T. C. celebrated its one hundredth anniversary. At this time they had $5.52 in their bank account and still owed several hundred dollars on the organ in Carver Hall. The book store profits were used to pay the balance owed on the organ and also as a reserve for shortages in the budgets or athletic injuries not recovered by insurance. All of the unused balances were put into a reserve fund.

Through planning and careful husbanding of resources derived chiefly from the profits of the Retail Book Store and the surpluses which have accumulated over the past fifteen years for the enlargement of the college book store and the inauguration of a snack bar. The expenditure of these student funds is governed by the College Council and the Board of Trustees upon recommendation of the President. The whole unit will be known as the Husky Lounge.

The complete installation of this project will probably cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. Included in this is $3,000 worth of booths. It will provide lounge recreation and light lunches for all students of B.S.T.C. The State contract provided room for this installation, but did not provide for any of the equipment necessary for the operation.

The bookstore profits were also used to purchase the station wagons. The future earnings from this operation will be used, as in times of past, to replace the station wagon, as a fund to be distributed to students in scholarships and grants, to match funds given by classes, individuals, or groups, and for any other worthy purpose the College Council and Board of Trustees agrees upon. Any remaining profits will be used to build up a reserve to start another project.

The Husky Lounge is under the capable management of Mr. Horace Williams; and Miss Beatrice Eyerly will continue as Manager of the Store, with the addition of such regular employees as Mrs.

TRIBUTE PAID MRS.

KREAMER

Former pupils, fellow teachers and other friends gathered at the Madison Township school to pay tribute to Mrs. Ralph Kreamer—affectionately known to hundreds of former pupils as Miss Helen—who retired last spring after an outstanding teaching career of forty-two years. All but one of those years was spent in Columbia county schools.

She was presented with a beautiful chair by pupils, former pupils, teaching associates and friends.

Walter J. Lewis, Bloomsburg, was the able toastmaster. The invocation was by T. A. Williammee, supervising principal of the Millville Area Joint Schools. John Watts, principal at Madison, presented the toastmaster. Mrs. Thomas McGonigal led the singing. During the program there was a poem of tribute to Mrs. Kreamer that was written by Miss Bessie Mordan.

Colored slides of past years at the school were shown by Lewis. John Watts made the presentation of the gift. Joining in the tribute to Mrs. Kreamer were Mr. Williammee, Mr. Watts; County Supt. Ray M. Cole, Asst. Supt. Paul L. Brunstetter, County Treasurer Edwin M. Kreamer and William Diehl, one of the six original bus drivers at Madison. Four are still operating Madison buses. Mrs. Kreamer happily responded.

SALES RALLY

The Tenth Annual Sales Rally was held Thursday, March 8 at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

Two of the nation's outstanding sales personalities headlined the program in the auditorium. "Wally" Powell, Director of Merchandising for the Hoover Company of Canton, Ohio, and Steve Conroy, President of E. Stephen Conroy Associates, Inc., of Detroit, Michigan, continued the pattern of demonstrating dynamic sales techniques which have been so effective in retail selling. Powell, who recently wrote an article explaining the secret of his selling successes, claims that enthusiasm is the key to effective selling. The article "Get Excited About It," was published in the January, 1956 issue of Specialty Salesman, the magazine of modern direct selling.

Elmer Robinson, president of the Business Education Club at the college, extended greetings to the audience, and Mr. Earl V. Wise, Sr., president of Wise Potato Chip Co., Inc., and a member of the college board of trustees, introduced the two speakers.

Area Rotarians met in the college dining hall for a pre-Rally dinner at 6:30 p. m. Mr. Fred W. Diehl, Superintendent of Montour County Schools, President of the College Board of Trustees, and Past District Governor of Rotary International, presided. The invocation was offered by the Rev. Samuel W. Strain, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Berwick, and President Andruss welcomed the group to the college. District Governor Arthur Henninger, of Pottsville, brought greetings from Rotary International.

The facilities of the new Husky Lounge and Snack Bar were made available to the audience after the rally.

"Generate a sincere and genuine enthusiasm for the product you are selling or get out of the business," "Wally" Powell, director of merchandising for the Hoover Company, Canton, Ohio, advised more than 1,000 at the annual Sales Rally.

Salesmen have an important relationship to the national economy and one reason we are prosperous is that we have many good salesmen both here and abroad, declared Steve Conroy, president of E. Stephen Conroy Associates, Inc., Detroit, Mich.

These two personalities of salesmanship were the featured speakers at the highly successful spring-time event.

Elmer Robinson, president of the College Business Education Club, told of the history of the rallies, directed by Charles H. Henrie. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, extended greetings and introduced Earl V. Wise, president of Wise Potato Chip Co., Inc., Berwick, and a member of the board of trustees who in turn presented the speakers.

Powell spoke on "Let's Get Excited," and said it is necessary to be enthusiastic about the product if you are going to do a good job selling. In order to improve salesmanship he advised making more and better calls, having better prospects in a better frame of mind and being in a good frame of mind yourself. He considers first impressions important and that demonstrations are also of value as a sales approach. Powell plugged for creative selling, asserting "plan it but don't can it."

All people are not salesmen, said Conroy. Salesmanship requires a number of things including education, training, knowledge and apprenticeship. The best salesman is one who has trained himself or is trained by an organized training program. Trained salesmen, he continued, are a necessity for customers today are smarter than ever before.

He believes high pressure is important because the American people expect it and are disappointed if it is not used.

FRESHMAN CLASS RANKS

HIGHEST IN HISTORY

The results of the freshman placement tests at the Teachers College show that the 1956 entering class was the most academically superior class that has been admitted to the college up to the present time.

In comparisons with 151 other colleges and universities the freshman students ranked above the upper third in the psychological and English examinations, in the upper 24 percent in social studies, and in the upper fifteen percent in natural science and mathematics, while the knowledge of contemporary affairs was significantly outstanding in that they ranked in the upper seven percent of the 152 colleges making reports for Freshmen.

This progress represents what the students bring to college, and if they continue to achieve at the same rate, four years hence the teaching profession will be received into it better trained minds than ever before from the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

In the last ten years approximately 1,300 students have been given entrance examinations. Of this number 198 have not been accepted. During the last half of this five-year period from 1951 to 1955, inclusive, 178 have not been accepted.

Until the State provides more money for more buildings and more instructors, the Bloomsburg State Teachers College will not be able to admit more students than its present capacity, which is approximately 1,000, even though the number of applicants for admission is two or three times greater than the size of the freshman class which can be admitted.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

Fifteen students of the Teachers College were awarded scholarships and grants, Thursday, December 15, totalling more than eight hundred dollars, during the assembly program in Carver auditorium. Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, chairman of the faculty committee on scholarships and grants, explained the nature and source of the funds and introduced the individuals who made the awards.

President Harvey A. Andruss presented the President's Scholarship to Sandra Raker, East Smithfield, and a gift of the class of 1951 to Miriam Miller, St. Clair.

Dr. E. H. Nelson, president of the Alumni Association, made the following presentations: the R. Bruce Albert Memorial Scholarship to Marjorie Myers, Lansdale; general Alumni Association scholarships to Joseph Johnston, and Oscar Snyder, both of Sunbury; gifts from the classes of 1950, 1952 and 1954 to Annette Williams, Hanover Township, and Donna Mattocks, Troy, respectively, and the Montour County Alumni Association award to Patricia Pollock, Danville.

Jane Anne Smith, Wilkes-Barre, was given a grant by Boyd Buckingham on behalf of the College Faculty Association, and Ruth Maurer, Shamokin, received an award from Donald Beck, president of the Day Men's Association.

The Columbia County Alumni Association presented grants to Mary Galathia, Hazle Township, Walter Hutz, Jenkins Township, Margaret Wilkinson, Mt. Carmel and Mary Ann Wahl, Milton.

In addition to Dr. Kuster, the faculty committee includes John Hoch, Dean of Instruction; Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, Dean of Women; Miss Mary Macdonald, Assistant Dean of Women; and Jack W. Yohe, Dean of Men. The awards were made at the last session of the student body prior to the Christmas vacation.

Miss Margaret F. Waldron, Assistant Professor of Mathematics and Assistant Dean of Women at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, retired at the end of the first semester. Miss Waldron's retirement terminated more than three decades of teaching in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island schools and colleges, including ten years of service to the local institution.

A native of Muncy, Pa., Miss Waldron was a graduate of Well-sley College. She earned a Master of Arts degree at Columbia University and did additional graduate work at Harvard, Brown and Bucknell Universities, and the University of Southern California. Her teaching career included service in the high schools of Lock Haven and Williamsport, the Rhode Island College of Education, and Lock Haven State Teachers College prior to her tenure at Bloomsburg.

In addition to active participation in the American Association of University Women, Miss Waldron traveled throughout the world. On many occasions she has given illustrated lectures to groups, describing her visits to various parts of the United States, Canada, Alaska, Mexico, Bermuda, Europe, Egypt, British East Africa and Kenya.

Although she plans to move to her residence in Muncy to devote some time to gardening and community activities, Miss Waldron has indicated that she may continue to do some traveling in this country and in foreign lands.

Miss Thurlie Judith Myers, daughter of T. Justin Myers, Hughesville, became the bride of Victor August Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor J. Michael, Milton, in a ceremony performed recently at Trinity Lutheran Church in Hughesville.

Mr. Michael is a student minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Bloomsburg, and Mrs. Michael is a student at B.S.T.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael will reside at 72 Iron Street, Bloomsburg.

MISS ZINN JOINS FACULTY

The appointment of Miss Edith G. Zinn as assistant dean of women and assistant professor of English was announced by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. Miss Zinn has assumed the duties of Miss Mary Macdonald who has become dean of day women, succeeding Miss Margaret Waldron who retired at the end of the first semester.

A native of Huntingdon, Pa., Miss Zinn was graduated from Juniata high school and earned both the bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees at Pennsylvania State University. Her graduate work also includes study at Columbia and Syracuse universities.

The new assistant dean of women has completed more than two decades of teaching and personnel work in public schools. She has held teaching positions in Altoona and Sunbury and has served as residence hall director or assistant dean of women at Syracuse University, Penn State, East Carolina College at Greenville, N. C., and Meredith College at Raleigh, N. C.

During her teaching career, Miss Zinn has travelled in Mexico, the British West Indies, and Eastern and Southern Europe. She is a member of the National Association of Deans of Women and the Pennsylvania Association of Deans of Women, and she holds honorary membership in Alpha Lambda Delta and Chimes. She served as national advisor to the latter organization from 1947-1948. Miss Zinn taught and continued graduate work in art for a number of years before starting her personnel work. Her skill and her continued interest in art have made it her chief avocation pursuit. Miss Zinn will make her residence in Waller dormitory.

Internationally-known fashion authority, Louise Adams Trescott, discusses the perennial feminine problem of "What To Wear" on the Woman's page of The Morning Press. A former resident of Berwick, Mrs. Trescott is the wife of Paul H. Trescott, at one time a member of The Morning Press news staff and now on the editorial board of The Bulletin, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Trescott interprets good dress in terms any woman can understand and apply. Not only does she offer advice on the selection of new clothing, but she presents many interesting suggestions for the remodeling of old clothes as well.

Designed to help all women with their wardrobe problems, the column is aimed primarily at the follower of fashion trends who often finds it difficult to make apparel decisions.

Mrs. Trescott's background, which includes many years of experience in fashion art and design, qualifies her to counsel any woman on how to dress.

A B.S.T.C. and art school graduate, she has had extensive training in dressmaking and has instructed in that field. Her teaching career also included a course in the "History of Costumes." She was later employed by a major department store, where she instructed salespeople in fashions. Add to this, fifteen years in retail fashion consultant field, a period during which Mrs. Trescott was associated with buyers and designers from Paris, Rome and New York.

These are the credentials of an authority in the analyzing and remedying of women's costume difficulties. Mrs. Trescott's "What To Wear" is the only newspaper column that gives qualified attention to the apparel problems of individual readers. She answers all inquiries.

'Citizen of the Week'

Charles K. Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Jacobs, of Old Berwick Road, and a native of Bloomsburg, recently was named "Citizen of the Week" at Ambler and was given the following write-up, with photograph, in The Ambler Gazette:

So there you are, and here we go into the life of the president of the Ambler Junior Chamber of Commerce. Charles Kenneth Jacobs.

Mr. Jacobs, who is assistant purchasing agent at the National Aeronautical Corporation, Ambler, was born and raised in Bloomsburg, Pa., where his family still lives. He took advantage of the fine educational system in Pennsylvania, for he graduated not only from Bloomsburg Elementary and High Schools, but also from Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

While in College Mr. Jacobs married the former June Keller. They have three children, Paula D., 5, Charles Jeffery, 2, and Allen Randall, 10 months. They live at 330 Highland Avenue, Ambler.

While at Bloomsburg State Teachers College Mr. Jacobs studied courses in retailing, social studies and business, which have stood him in good stead in his work at Narco.

Mr. Jacobs also went to Temple University where he studied Business education for a period.

Before working at Narco Mr. Jacobs taught school in the small south Jersey town of Millville. There he taught courses in distributive education, a plan whereby the students study their lessons in the morning, and go out into the city to work for the various merchants in the afternoon.

Jacobs was the charter secretary for the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and was elected last year to his post of president. His term expires in April of this year.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce started in December 1953. One of Mr. Jacobs' pet projects has been the new building on Pickering Field. He also has had a keen interest in organizational problems.

The aim of the Jaycees is to help build the leaders of tomorrow. Unlike other civic organizations whose members may not have time for such activities, the Junior Chamber of Commerce sets their sight on a project and gets it done themselves. The best example of this being, of course, the Pickering field building.

Mr. Jacobs is a member of the Elks, The Blue Lodge, and Con-sistory.

During the war he was a radio operator and gunner, and helped train other men.

His work at Narco consists mainly in making purchases for the Company.

With his wife and family, when ever they get a chance, Mr. Jacobs likes to play golf.

Bethany EUB Church, Berwick, was the setting at seven Saturday evening, December 31, for the candlelight ceremony uniting Miss Jayne Holloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenroy Holloway, Berwick, to Donald D. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peterson, Berwick.

Both the bride and groom graduated from Berwick High School. Mrs. Peterson is employed in the office of the ACF. Her husband, a graduate of B.S.T.C., is teaching at Berwick High School.

They are residing in their newly-purchased home at 140 Park Boulevard, Park Place Village.

HUSKIES LIST

7 GRID GAMES

Bloomsburg State Teachers College has added Delaware State to its 1956 football schedule which now lists seven games and Jack Yohe, head football coach and director of athletics, is still on the look-out for one more contest that can be staged either September 22 or November 17.

After the Delaware game was listed the Great Lakes, Ill., Naval Training Base offered the September 29 date to the Huskies on either a one or two-year arrangement but had no other dates open that Bloomsburg could work into its program.

There is one other opponent for 1956 that was not on the slate during the past season when Bloomsburg won the State Teachers College crown. Shippensburg is back. The Cumberland Valley School had agreed to play here in 1956 but efforts will be made now to shift the game to Shippensburg on October 20 and thus have the Raiders here for a Homecoming Day attraction in 1957.

Not on the schedule this year are Lock Haven and Wilkes, which withdrew, and New Haven, Conn., Teachers who were eliminated because of the distance between the two institutions.

Returning to the schedule are Cortland, N. Y. Teachers, Mansfield, Kings, California and West Chester. Mansfield, which has provided an early season game most of the time since the sport was revived an early season game most on October 13 in the Homecoming Day Game.

As the schedule now stands Delaware State, Cortland and Mansfield will be met here at the start of the season and the Huskies will then take the road for the balance of the campaigns, meeting Shippensburg, Kings, California and West Chester away in that order.

The schedule as it now stands: Delaware State, September 29; Cortland, October 6; Mansfield, October 13; at Shippensburg, October 20; at Kings, Wilkes-Barre, October 27; at California, Novem-

COMMUNICATED

June 1, 1954, I learned from a friend about a classmate, Lawrence Cortright. I communicated to him by mail. I received a brief but newsy letter from L. C. He said, "he was glad to hear from me." No more replies to my letters from L. C.

His address at the time follows:

"Sharon Hill Management, Inc.,
35 North Fortieth Street,
Philadelphia 4, Pa."

Lawrence stated — "I have been here about 3 years now. I was operated on for varicose veins. I now walk about fairly well. I only remember a few of my old school mates."

Note: I can understand that.

That is so true of so many graduates. They forget the school that did so much for them. That would not happen if he kept in touch with the Alumni of B.S.T.C., like my good friend Rev. J. Edward Klingaman.

L. C. taught two years at Shickshinny, then he came to Philadelphia and entered the Post Office, retiring on a pension after forty years of service.

About a year later, that is early in 1955, I enclosed a copy of L. C.'s letter to Rev. J. E. Klingaman. Sometime later he wrote to L. C. and received a reply from the home stating: "I am sorry to tell you Larry died June 22, 1955."

Parents' Magazine Book Club for Children. Published by William Morrow and Company, New York, in 1948, with illustrations by the distinguished American artist, Edward Shenton, it has become one of the most popular books on Boone for teen-agers. It is based on Dr. Bakeless' equally popular adult biography, Daniel Boone: Master of the Wilderness, published by Morrow in 1939. This volume was unavailable for some years, but was reissued, with great success, in 1955. Morrow's first printing of the reissue was snapped up within a month of publication, and a second printing (twice as large as the first) had to be rushed through the presses.

Necrology

Elizabeth Hammond O'Brien, '99

Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond O'Brien, a teacher for thirty-two years, and an instructor of retarded pupils in the Hamilton School, New Haven, Connecticut, for twenty-three years, died December 11 at her home in New Haven. She is survived by her husband, two sons, two daughters, two sisters, and eight grandchildren.

Mrs. O'Brien, born and reared in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., taught for two years in Kingston Township, Pa., and six in Fort Wayne, Ind., before going to New Haven. First employed as a substitute there, she interested herself in the problem of slow learners, and spoke to principals and teachers about them.

"The opening of a room for slow learning children at Hamilton St. School was the opportunity I had long wanted," Mrs. O'Brien recalled some years afterwards. "Most of the children found reading and writing hard. Often they had an aptitude for manual training."

The first classroom had children of all ages, and Mrs. O'Brien found that the most important factor in teaching was patience. "Some children run fast, but that didn't mean that the slow runners couldn't run," she explained. "The slow learners needed sympathy. They were the ones who couldn't keep up with standards of an average elementary class and required special help."

The teacher visited homes to get co-operation from parents, helped organize a PTA, and served as its president for three years.

The idea behind her teaching was always to fit education to the needs of the child, and so in addition to reading, arithmetic and the other academic subjects, she taught music, domestic science, woodwork, chair-caning, raffia weaving, rug weaving, shoe repairing, washing, ironing, knitting and needlepoint. She had to take special courses to teach many of the subjects.

Mrs. O'Brien felt that the slow learners should be taught in special rooms, since the children lost the feeling of insecurity and fear of competition they had in regular classrooms. Though none of them became geniuses, they had good service records, got good jobs, married and raised families.

Mrs. O'Brien retired from the New Haven school system in 1950, but through all her years as a teacher, and afterwards until her death, former pupils continued to call on her to discuss personal affairs, and to invite her to weddings, showers and anniversary celebrations.

"They come to discuss their personal affairs, a habit formed some years ago," Mrs. O'Brien said at the time of her retirement. "Now I find myself in the role of adviser about such things as business, romance, weddings, automobiles and life in general."

Even after her retirement, she found she wanted to help the community with the skills she had learned over so many years, and so Mrs. O'Brien for some time taught Americanization and adult education classes three nights a week at Wilbur Cross High. Many of her pupils were DP's somewhat slow in learning the American way of life. Mrs. O'Brien referred to her Americanization students as "Delayed Pilgrims."

Mrs. R. Bruce Albert

While ailing and under the care of a physician, Mrs. Albert was able to be about daily and her death came as a profound shock to her family and a legion of friends.

She was the widow of R. Bruce Albert, long prominent in town affairs and whose death occurred ten years ago.

Mrs. Albert was born in Scranton April 20, 1887, and was the former Blanche Tripp. She was a graduate of the Scranton Technical High School and a secretary for Scranton Pump Company until she married Mr. Albert. Since that time she made her home in Bloomsburg.

She was a devout and active member of St. Matthew Lutheran church and of the Belle Straub Missionary Society of that congregation.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Gertrude Kyte, who resided with her; a brother, Holden I. Tripp, Camp Hill; a nephew, Donald T. Kyte, Washington, D. John K. Adams

The Rev. John K. Adams, West Third street, Bloomsburg, ninety-one last November 10 and one of the most widely known men in the area, died at the Ipher Nursing Home, Orangeville on Monday, January 10, 1956.

The Rev. Mr. Adams, a retired Reformed pastor, resided in this area most of his life and was always active in the religious program. In later years in the ministry he started the Berwick Reformed church. He was a teacher in the Bloomsburg High School through the years of World War I.

Throughout his life he was interested in many civic affairs and active in their promotion.

At the time of his death the "Passing Throng" column of the Morning Press had the following comment:

Death claimed at the ripe age of four score years and ten one of the most remarkable men who has ever resided in our midst.

The Rev. John K. Adams, who died Tuesday, would protest such a statement with a quiet smile but a firm voice. But those who took the trouble to know the man and to enjoy his company are convinced that it is true.

A professed Christian, he also practiced his faith. He operated on the Biblical premise that it is more blessed to give than to receive; that the only way we can obtain is to give, and that every man should use the talents God gave him.

We first met the Rev. Mr. Adams during the years of World War I. There was a shortage of male teachers in that period of crisis and he joined the local high school faculty.

Prior to that time he had been active for some years in the ministry and was the inspirational leader in his denomination in Berwick and a few other places in the area.

He had been away from teaching for some time. It was quite an adjustment to make and we helions of that day didn't make it any easier for him.

The reason was that in the face of great provocation Mr. Adams never lost him temper; never forgot the admonition of the Scriptures to "turn the other cheek." Some of us who gave him the most trouble at the start were beneficiaries of his kindness and his consideration. You can't act up in a fellow's class with a clear conscious if, the same day, the teacher goes out of his way to do you a favor. That's what Mr. Adams did.

We don't know of any fellow who got more out of living than the Reverend. He didn't ask much materially. He never got discouraged. We never heard him complain. We do know that he sustained some adversities that would have caused many of us to lament and quite a few to quit. He kept right on plugging.

His church was his life and included in the program of the church are humans. He found much enjoyment in associating with people in all walks of life. And he always made you feel right at home.

He got a joy out of helping others. We recall well that this quality was an inspiration to many during the drive for funds that built the present Bloomsburg Hospital.

Mr. Adams at that time was clerking in a store at Lime Ridge. He was traveling to and from his home by trolley. He didn't get back into Bloomsburg until early evening. Because he was of retiring nature he was not known to many around here. But that didn't make any difference to Mr. Adams. He wanted to help and he did. He would start out about mid-evening and he would keep going for hours. And he did well, too, because people appreciated his sincerity.

In recent years the County Sabbath School Association sessions haven't been quite the same for us for Mr. Adams wasn't in physical condition to attend and bring in the resolutions which he always drafted. And we have missed, too his visits to the office through the years to bring in the wedding of some youngster, generally a past student or son or daughter of a past student or parishioner. He was always careful to get the details and to carefully arrange them in the report.

No one got more enjoyment out of the Sesqui than the Rev. Mr. Adams. He was so early in starting a beard that there were some who figured he had reached a point where he needed care. The Reverend got quite a chuckle out of that.

Well along in the eighties, he had some trouble with the sewer line at his home. Some excavation was needed. He said he could do it; that the exercise would do him good. And he did, too. A frail appearing fellow who probably never went over 125, the Rev. Mr. Adams was all man.

Mrs. John Patterson Archibald

Mrs. John Patterson Archibald, eighty-one, the mother of Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss, died Saturday evening, February 25, in the Bloomsburg Hospital of complications. She had made her home with the Teachers College President and Mrs. Andruss since 1954.

A graduate of the Indiana State

Teachers College, Class of 1896, Mrs. Archibald also attended the Mount Pleasant Academy for Girls and the Slippery Rock State Teachers College.

Prior to her marriage, she was vice-principal of the Union Street School, Johnstown, Pa. The Pittsburgh Branch of the Indiana State Teachers College Alumni Association made her an honorary member. She was also a member of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, by reason of being a descendant of John Hart, a signer of the Declaration of Independence; the Dolly Madison Chapter of the Daughters of 1812; and the East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

Her late husband, John Patterson Archibald, was a member of the board of trustees, Indiana State Teachers College, and a school superintendent for many years in Western Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Archibald is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss, Bloomsburg and Mrs. Earl Wright, Harrisburg; a son, William F. Archibald, Chicago, Ill., and a grandson, Harvey A. Andruss, Jr., Sioux Falls, S. D.

B. S. T. C. ALUMNI ASSOCIATION NEEDS YOUR SUPPORT

PROSPECTS FOR 1956-1957

While the plant and instructional personnel of our office is geared to an enrollment of 700 or 800, we shall have had over 1,000 students attend on a full-time basis during the current college year 1955-1956. It does not seem that we shall be able to increase this number greatly, even though the applications for admission at the time of this writing are twice the number that we can accept in the Freshman Class of September, 1956.

Those who have not visited the campus recently may immediately have this question raised in their minds. "Why hasn't all this building, renovation, and improvement had any seeming effect on the size of the enrollment?" The answer to this question can be broken down as follows:

- 1—The construction of the new dining room, located on the site of the old tennis courts, is now beginning to make its appearance above the ground level and will seat 800 to 900 students. Food service in a double cafeteria line will reduce the length of the luncheon period so that students will have less difficulty in getting to one o'clock classes on time certain days.
- 2—The old dining room space, when vacated, will be used for Library purposes, with the book stacks being located in the kitchen and food preparation area.
- 3—The present Library space on the second floor of Waller Hall will be used for dormitory space, but will increase the capacity by not more than 35 or 40 students.

The General State Authority Building Program includes as first on our list of needs a Men's Dormitory to be located between the Centennial Gymnasium and the private residences along Second Street. This building will accommodate approximately 200 men, whereas we have 125 men now living in the Town of Bloomsburg, and the transformation of North Hall into a central campus storage and garage center would cause the transfer of all 70 students to the new men's dormitory. In other words, we have more than enough men now living in the Town of Bloomsburg and in North Hall to fill the 200 student capacity of the new men's dormitory without taking into account the 100 odd men who are now living in Waller Hall in space which we shall need for the increasing enrollment of college women.

Without increasing the enrollment, we still have a continued need for an Auditorium to seat at least 1,500. We should be able to seat our entire student-body, including the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School pupils, faculty, and a reasonable number of Town people or parents. Otherwise, we shall eventually have to give up the assemblies which have been so characteristic of life in small colleges.

Increasing enrollment without considering its effect on our ability to secure adequate instructional personnel is a process of going from one building bottle neck to another. First feeding, then housing, and finally assembly space.

Up to the present time, we have had an adequate number of classrooms, although they are not well located nor fully equipped, but undoubtedly this will become a fourth bottle neck, and for that reason a classroom building, including Science Laboratories, and Library building, have been included in our list of plant needs for the next five years.

In view of the growing pressure for admission to college, which will continue for the next generation, will you please understand some of the problems which admission officers have to face and be a little patient with your Alma Mater, if you find it cannot accept someone whom you have recommended?

On the other hand, we shall welcome your continued support in making our needs known to your local members of the House of Representatives and the Senate at Harrisburg for 1956-1957 and the following years which are bright, so far as enrollment are concerned.

There are some problems which you can help to solve, and your support will be welcomed by your college and its President

E. H. Nelson, '11

It is my proud privilege to tell you that an anonymous donor has sent a check for $2500.00 to start the O. H. and S. H. Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund to aid worthy students. To the many hundreds who knew and loved those inspirational teachers, this will be good news, I am sure. Early in her career Sarah Harvey left her position in the model school to assume the role of wife and mother in the newly created Bakeless household, but her influence through the years was reflected in the devoted leadership Professor Bakeless gave so generously in the field of teacher training.

"Ideas or objects that have been before consciousness at the same time, and hence apperceived in the same mental state, tend afterwards to suggest each other." Remember that? Or perhaps—"Consciousness is that indefinable characteristic of mental states which causes us to be aware of them." For further consideration, "Consciousness is incapable of definition." Be that as it may, we are all aware that the Bakeless era was one of untold value in the development of the teacher training program and character building at our Alma Mater.

As stated above, one has already expressed appreciation with a generous contribution. We think this fund should develop quickly to a $10,000.00 status. All that is needed is your reflection of value received in the form of dollars. Send your contribution to the

O. H. and S. H. Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund
Bloomsburg, Penna.

A list of contributors will be published in future "Quarterly" issues. Credit will be given by classes also. Be a booster. The class of 1911 will start with $50.00. Top that and you will hear from 1911 again. Editor Feustemaker remarks that 1912 is yet to be heard from. So is the 1911 rebound. What will your class do? Select a class chairman and away we go. "Attention is the mother of Memory, and Interest is the mother of Attention." Your interest is your appreciation in the form of a contribution.

Come back for Alumni Day May 26. Already we have reservations from Florida and California. The Wiluers will be here from the Philippines. Come and find, "a likeness between new ideas and old ones." Therein lies the happiness of joyous living.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

PROBLEMS AND PROSPECTS

Our enrollment was over 1,000 last year. There was a time when this was a mystic number. A goal to be attained. A signal that we had arrived at some notable level of achievement. Along with the prospects come problems. How many students are we going to accommodate next year?

Yearly enrollments are larger than the maximum enrollment at any one time. While 1,033 different students attended Bloomsburg, some of them on a part-time basis, we find that when the total numbers are adjusted to a full-time basis that the total enrollment is the equivalent of 1,003.

In order to accommodate 1,050 students in September, 1956, of which over 300 will be entering college for the first time, it will be necessary for us to crowd dormitories, require students from Columbia and Montour Counties to live in their own homes, and house over 200 men and 30 women, who are doing student teaching, in the Town of Bloomsburg.

Until the College Commons (new Dining Room, Kitchen, and Storage Building) is completed early in 1957, it will be impossible to provide dining service for those students who room off campus in the Town.

We have not admitted a section of Freshmen students in the 1956 summer sessions. It is likely that a freshman section will not be admitted in January, 1957, at the beginning of the second semester of the present college year.

What are the prospects? With the completion of the renovation of the first floor corridor of Waller Hall and the Old Gymnasium as the Husky Lounge, (Snack Bar and College Book Store), we are continuing the refurbishing of the exterior of the old part of the plant by painting orick as well as the wood trim on the side of Noetling and Waller Halls facing front campus. An Architect will soon be appointed to draw plans for the renovation of the present dining room space for Library purposes, the present Library space for Dormitory purposes, and will explore the possibilities of providing more classroom space in the basement area of Noetling Hall.

Senate Bill #1077, increasing the borrowing capacity of the General State Authority provides that $25,000,000 shall be spent on the State Teachers Colleges, with the list of buildings at Bloomsburg State Teachers College to include Men's Dormitory for 200, Auditorium to seat 1200, and a classroom building to include Science Laboratories. Tentative plans have been made looking toward the selection of an Architect for the classroom building of fourteen rooms, of which six will be Science Laboratories on the second floor and eight classrooms on the first floor.

The planning and construction of the other buildings are delayed on account of local requirements and insufficient funds to build structures of sufficient size to meet current needs.

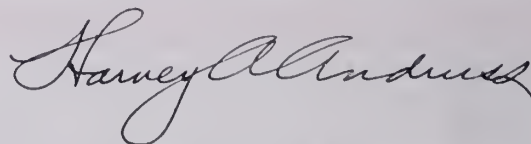

Faculty salaries have been increased under the provisions of Act 485 so that the salary of Professors will range from $5,500 to $7,500; Associate Professors from $5,000 to $7,000, and Assistant Professors from $4,500 to $6,500, with ten mandatory increases of $200. after a probationary period of three years. Provisions are also made to pay Deans, Directors, and Department Heads additional amounts not to exceed $500 a year under certain conditions.

Public school experience for Teachers College faculties has been reduced to two years, and other academic requirements and experience qualifications are set forth in the Act, which is a result of the cooperative effort of the Teachers College Faculty Association, the Board of Presidents, the Department of Public Instruction, and the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

The greatest instructional need of the College is the provision of Library space and more equipment in this space to shelve more books, with adequate room for students to sit down and read the books and magazines which the College will provide when space is available.

The greatest housing need of the College is a Men's Dormitory for not less than 200 men, so that they will have the opportunity for campus life at lower housing rates than exist in the town of Bloomsburg.

These are the immediate objectives for the next biennium as seen by the Board of Trustees and

COMMENCEMENT, 1956

A class of 148 received Bachelor of Science Degrees at the Commencement Exercises in Carver Auditorium Sunday afternoon, May 28, 1956.

They were told in the commencement exercises that "You have in your hands the means for mass destruction; but you have also in your hands the power to bring all mankind to a better living."

And in the morning baccalaureate the graduates were admonished, "The only experience which will give real meaning to all our work and study is our relationship with God."

The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Calvert N. Ellis, president of Juniata College, and the sermon was delivered by Earl M. Honaman, Bishop Suffragan of the Diocese of Harrisburg of the Episcopal Church, and former minister at St. Paul's, Bloomsburg.

Dr. Ellis took for his theme, "Noblesse Oblige" and Bishop Honaman's message was "The Foolishness of God."

There was a good attendance at the baccalaureate and an overflow audience at the commencement exercises. Both were held in Carver Hall auditorium.

At noon there was a luncheon for the class and parents in the College dining hall.

During the commencement one of the class, Daniel Thomas, was presented with his commission as second lieutenant in the Marine Corps, with the presentation by Capt. Utley.

Bishop Honaman told the class

there is only one experience in life that can give meaning to what you do and that is your religious faith.

He said Christian faith is not a system of ethics or a moral code. "It is the assertion of what we know Almighty God has done for us. The only experience which will give real meaning to all our work and study is our relationship with God."

"Man cannot save himself from his own evil and from the results of his own sin. The problems of the world can't be solved by humans. The Christian faith is in the realm of the spirit rather than in material things."

"Through the truth that comes from God mankind shall be free. Man is free if he surrenders completely to God."

Dr. Ellis said nobility of learning carries responsibility for community living. Whoever calls himself noble should conduct himself nobly.

He pointed out what is owed to others and then told the class how they can repay that indebtedness. The educator said that it is in moments of insight that we are conscious of our indebtedness to others.

"If we are to repay our debt, we must exert ourselves to give as much as we receive. No student can pay for what he gets in any dedicated institution of higher learning, but every graduate can pay his debt in service to God and humanity."

"No one has a larger opportunity than a teacher to invest what he receives. 'Noblesse oblige'."

means living by the standards that you know. One becomes noble by the nobility of the soul. This cannot be bought. It is a life achievement.

"The most important single thing a college can do is to expose a student to human excellence. The challenge before you is: Will you make this your code of life, will the best be your standard, and will your soul grow in nobility?"

"In college you have caught a vision of the best, and with less than that you will never be satisfied. Our institutions are being copied all over the world; it is our obligation to serve, with the best we have, the people all over the world.

You have in your hands the means for mass destruction, but you have also in your hands the power to bring all mankind to a better living."

COLUMBIA COUNTY ALUMNI

Donald Rabb, Benton, has been reelected president of the Columbia County Branch of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College Alumni Association, when the organization was held in the College dining hall. Other officers renamed were Miss Lois Lawson, Bloomsburg, vice-president; Mrs. Margaret McCorn, Benton, secretary and Paul Martin, Bloomsburg, treasurer.

Martin reported that $156 has been received thus far in contributions to the scholarship fund and more is expected. The association gave the officers the authority to determine how much is to be given to the College for scholarships during the coming term and in what category these scholarships are to be. At the close of the dinner and business session the group joined the College committee in Carver Hall auditorium to witness the presentation by a professional cast of "The Corn Is Green."

COLLEGE ORGANIZATIONS CONTRIBUTE TO BAKELESS MEMORIAL LOAN FUND

In a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, President Harvey A. Andruss recommended that the Florence Cawley Fund, represented by a $1,000 interest bearing bond, be transferred to the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association as a contribution of the Board of Trustees to the Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund.

The College Council, composed of students and faculty members, have set aside $500 for this fund out of any surplus which may remain in the bank account of the Community Government Association at the end of the present College year. The Senior Class of 1956 contributed $200 and the Faculty of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College has pledged $500 to be paid over a two-year period.

In addition to the $2,200 either paid or pledged to date, the Oscar Hugh Bakeless Chapter of the Future Teachers of America will canvass all college organizations beginning in September, 1956, to raise additional funds. The amount of the initial gift of $2500 by an anonymous donor to the O. H. and S. H. Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund will be doubled.

With more than $5,000 in sight, it is expected that individual Alumni and Alumni Branches will be invited to contribute to the Loan Fund, so as to double its present size, which is approximately $15,000. This loan fund is non-interest bearing until after graduates have secured employment, and in past years has been limited first to Seniors, then to Juniors and Seniors, and now with an increase in size may be extended to members of the Sophomore Class.

It has been almost twenty years since the Alumni have had an opportunity to aid their Alma Mater by contributing to the Loan Fund. The last drive was made around 1935 by the late Bruce Albert, who was then President of the Alumni Association.

ALUMNI DAY ACTIVITIES, 1956

Bloomsburg State Teachers College now has 995 listed for enrollment next fall, with a little room left for former students who will be returning from the service, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, told alumni at the annual session of the graduates here. The limit in enrollment for the 1956-57 term will be 1,000, the largest in the history of the college.

The new dining hall at the institution is expected to be ready for use by the Christmas holiday, the educator said.

The College hopes to share in the $25.5 million dollar building program for the Teachers Colleges. The first amount presented was $29.4 but this was slashed.

Bloomsburg's share under the larger figure was to include a men's dormitory, a classroom building with a new science laboratory and an auditorium to seat 1,200.

The Carver Hall auditorium is so limited in size that seniors cannot be accommodated for the assembly sessions.

The library is to be removed from its present quarters on the second floor of Waller Hall to the area now occupied by the dining hall but in five years the college will need a library and than a new women's dormitory.

Dr. Andruss declared that the Teachers Colleges must be expanded in size "if we are to have enough teachers for babies who are already born."

He asserted some of the graduates are going to other states to teach and gave two reasons. One is that many come from the anthracite regions where the population is decreasing and where the demand for teachers, therefore, is less. The other is that when people have to leave their home communities they go to the place where the salaries are highest and many times the best salaries are offered outside of the state. Pennsylvania, he added, is doing better with regard to the salary scale.

He said he is not interested in size of institution, but he is interested in seeing that in the enlargement of the college "we do not lose the spirit that is Bloomsburg." He told the graduates this is the challenge of the next decade.

Mention was made of the changes through the year and he said it is definite that the institution "is now in a period of change whether we realize it or not."

Dr. E. H. Nelson, president, presided at the meeting and the graduating class, marching into the session at its start, was received into membership.

Directors re-elected for three years terms were Miss Elizabeth Hubler, Gordon; and Hervey B. Smith and Dr. E. H. Nelson, town.

The board reorganized at a luncheon later, re-elected Nelson president; Mrs. Ruth Speary Griffith, Wilkes-Barre, vice president; Mrs. Vera H. Housenick, secretary, and Earl A. Gehrig, treasurer.

Gehrig reported that the alumni loan fund stands at $14,623 and the total in all funds is $18,335.67.

Alumni were urged to support the Husky Fund and also to contribute to the fund in memory of Prof. and Mrs. O. H. Bakeless. The latter, which will be added to the loan fund, was started by a $2,500 anonymous gift. The graduates and College plans to build this to $10,000.

Howard F. Fenstermaker, editor of the Quarterly, has rounded out thirty years of service in this post and was given an ovation for his services which he declared "entailed considerable work but was fun, too."

Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff was introduced on the floor of the auditorium and escorted to the stage to join the honor class, that of 1906.

All of the classes in reunion reported and then the alumni luncheon was held in the College dining hall. Many of the reunion classes met off the campus.

BISHOP AND MRS. WILNER RECEIVE CITATION

Bishop Robert F. Wilner, a member of the class of 1909, and his wife, Alfaretta Start Wilner, a member of the class of 1912, were awarded the Meditorious Service Award of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College Alumni Association.

They were the first husband and wife team honored since the award was instituted nine years ago. Since then twenty-three have received the award, with no more than three in any one year.

Life memberships in the alumni go with the certificates of honor.

Fred W. Diehl, a director of the Alumni Association, president of the board of trustees of the College and superintendent of schools in Montour county, made the presentation, referring to the long and fruitful service of the retired bishop and his wife in China and the Philippines.

The award to Bishop Wilner was to "an outstanding educator, missionary and churchman" and to Mrs. Wilner as a "faithful wife, understanding mother and devoted Christian missionary."

Both delightfully responded, speaking of some of their experiences in the mission field.

Referred to by Mr. Diehl in the presentation was an article which appeared earlier this year in the Scranton Times. It was written by Stanley A. Caughey of the Times staff, and follows:

Adventure, danger, war, imprisonment, excitement and romance in foreign climes often are the portion of the globetrotting soldier of fortune. These same things may mark the career of a devoted clergyman in foreign missionary work.

One man of the cloth who found this to be true is Suffragan Bishop Robert F. Wilner of the Anglican Episcopal Church, now enjoying retirement with his wife, Alfaretta, at their home, 32 Wyoming Ave., Tunkhannock.

For 38 of the 40 years between 1916 and 1955, Bishop Wilner served his church and its people in China and the Philippine Islands. Through most of these years Mrs. Wilner served at his side.

Internment by the Japanese Army during World War II, observance of the establishment of the Republic of the Philippines, marriage in Shanghai, rearing a family in strange lands, education of primitive natives—all these and many other things helped fashion the kaleidoscopic career of Bishop and Mrs. Wilner.

A native of Forty Fort, Robert Wilner moved with his family to Plymouth at an early age. He left there Jan. 1, 1916, for Shanghai, China, where he was employed as a lay clerical worker in the Episcopal mission.

Alfaretta Stark, the young woman he had met while both were attending Bloomsburg Normal School, left her native Tunkhannock the following year to marry her college sweetheart. Episcopal Bishop Frederick R. Graves officiated at the wedding in Shanghai, April 10, 1917.

Two sons and a daughter were born to the Wilners during the early years in China.

Isabell, a graduate of William Smith College, Geneva, N. Y., is now a childrens' librarian at Maryland State Teachers College, Towson.

Robert graduated from Wichita (Kan.) University after serving in the Army and now is an aircraft technician in Wichita.

George, called to service in the Army while attending college, was killed in action in Belgium during World War II.

After 10 years in Shanghai and later in Hankow, Mr. and Mrs. Wilner returned to the United States and Mr. Wilner enrolled at the Episcopal Divinity School in Philadelphia. He was ordained a deacon at St. Peter's Church, Plymouth, in 1928 and left immediately with his family for the Philippine Islands to enter mission work again.

After a year at Manila, Deacon Wilner was ordained a priest and assigned to educational work among the natives of Mountain Province. These simple people, known as Igorots (mountain dwellers), were illiterate and backward, but welcomed a chance to learn.

Igorot children came to Easter School near the town of Baguio, where Father Wilner was headmaster and Mrs. Wilner principal. Operation of a kindergarten and seven elementary grades posed knotty problems for Father and Mrs. Wilner, but with the aid of kindly native teachers they served successfully for nine years.

Consecrated a suffragan bishop by Episcopal Bishop Gouverneur Frank Mosher at Manila Cathedral Jan. 25, 1938, and assigned to traveling mission duties, Bishop Wilner moved his family to Manila again.

En route by car to Mountain Province Dec. 21, 1941, with money for several missions, Bishop Wilner was taken prisoner at the town of Bontoc by the Japanese Army which had invaded Luzon a few days earlier. He was interned at Bontoc mission compound and later at Camp Holmes prison in Baguio with other clergymen. Back in Manila, Mrs. Wilner was unaware of her husband's plight.

In early December of 1943, a prisoner exchange sent Bishop Wilner to the infamous Santo Tomas prison in Manila. In the exchange the Rev. Robert Sheridan of Chicago, a Catholic Priest, was sent to Baguio. Father Sheridan today is novice master of the brothers novitate at the Maryknoll Fathers Home in Brookline, Mass.

Under severe Japanese restrictions in Manila, Mrs. Wilner saw her husband for the first time in more than two years during a brief one-hour visit to Santo Tomas Dec. 31, 1943. After being interned at Los Baños prison for several months, Mrs. Wilner was transferred to Santo Tomas and reunited with the Bishop in October of 1944.

Bishop and Mrs. Wilner were among the thousands who hailed the liberation of Santo Tomas by the U. S. Army February 3, 1945. Bishop Wilner, weakened by malnutrition, had been ill for many months, but a return to a well balanced diet soon restored him to good health. The Wilners sailed for home on an Army transport soon after, staying in Tunkhannock for several months. Bishop Wilner returned alone to Manila in November, 1945, to resume his duties.

July 4, 1946, was a day of great rejoicing, as the Republic of the Philippines was established. Bishop Wilner was among the many dignitaries present, giving the invocation at the historic program.

Mrs. Wilner rejoined her husband in October, 1946, and the couple was assigned to Bontoc. There Bishop Wilner served as pastor of All Saints Church and he and his wife operated the church school.

The Wilners wound up their mission work last August. Enroute home they attended the general convention of the Church in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Reaching Tunkhannock last October, the Wilners settled down to live a quiet, normal American life for the first time in many years. For a while Mrs. Wilner found it strange to use modern electrical appliances and labor-saving devices, most of which she never had during the long years of mission work.

In the home where Mrs. Wilner lived as a girl, the couple now resides with memories of the career they have shared. The house abounds with colorful mementoes of the years in foreign lands. Paintings, metal-work, wood carvings, handwoven articles, weapons, domestic utensils and costumes made by Philippine natives make the house a showplace.

Bishop Wilner's retirement became effective January 1, just 40 years from the day he left his Plymouth home for China.

The rewards of such a career of devotion and service to others? Certainly not financial gain, but immeasurable in another sense.

Says Bishop Wilner: "We take deep personal satisfaction in having been able to give many young people the education and opportunities they otherwise might never have had. Our reward has been watching those with whom we have worked grow up to become intelligent, faithful Christian men and women."

ALUMNI DAY AS SEEN BY A RETURNING ALUMNUS

Those who have been active in the Alumni Association for years will tell you that it is pretty difficult, and at times almost impossible, to get graduates interested in the alumni activities until they have been out ten years or more.

That has been a noticeable fact at the functions through the years. Call the names of fifty and the forty and the thirty year classes and there is a great response. But when the numerals designating the classes of one through ten years are announced there isn't too much of a roar in answer. At times there isn't a whisper. Or at least that has been the ease.

It was not different the last weekend in May. The general alumni organization is now operating the most active branch program in years. In some areas it is the best ever.

And the big reason for this pick-up has been the participation of recent graduates. They had a meeting in Luzerne county not long ago and half of the assembled were youngsters who had been out less than five years. And they were not only present but taking an active part. Just about the same thing is happening in Washington, D. C., and in a number of other spots.

Dr. E. H. Nelson has worked long and tirelessly in building the graduate body into a do something organization. It was under his leadership and that of the late Bruce Albert that the graduate body got clicking and that activity has increased. Now if the youngsters start falling into line and doing things Bloomsburg State Teachers College Alumni Association will be ready to stand up and go places.

The memory of Prof. O. H.

Bakeless, one of the beloved "Old Guard," was honored at the 1956 session. There has been $2,500 given toward a Bakeless Memorial to the loan fund and considerable ground work has already been done in an effort to build that up to $10,000.

"O.H.," as he was referred to by students—although never to his face—was a kindly soul but one who had his convictions. And he stood squarely on them.

We'll wager that the first thing that pops into the minds of most of his former students when his name is mentioned are three words, "Introduction To Teaching."

Professor Bakeless figured there was no calling on earth that was higher than that of the teacher. He operated on that premise and his dedication to the field won other converts.

We were on the hill in the period when the multiple choice tests were just getting steam ahead. In that freshmen course on "Introduction to Teaching" there was considerable reading to be done. And the reports had to be handed in. We never fell in love with John Dewey and some of the others and we never did much of the assigned reading. We did get lucky in the tests and passed the course but it always disturbed the Professor that we had missed consulting the words of wisdom of great educators. Maybe we should do that sometime. And maybe many other grads should do the same. Prof. Bakeless certainly did a great deal for all of us, although in most instances this wasn't recognized until some years after we had traveled down diploma lane and been cast out into the hurry-scurry world.

The money which is being raised as the memorial to both the professor and his wife will be added to the alumni administered student loan fund. This is now around $15,000. A successful completion of the Bakeless project will send it to over $25,000. The money is sorely needed. There was a period immediately after World War II when requests for loans were in-

"With the guidance we have received and with the help of God, we shall not only be staunch supporters of education and a free world, but we shall be constructive participants in those most worthy causes," declared Michael Homick, Hudson, a member of the 1955 graduating class at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. Homick, elected by his classmates to deliver the annual Ivy Day oration, had said previously, "The skills and knowledge we have acquired here in Bloomsburg must not be allowed to be dormant. A failure to put to use what we have gained is to admit that we are incompetent to meet our obligations. We are not incompetent. We shall attack our responsibilities with the utmost of confidence."

The Ivy Day exercises, one of the oldest traditions at Bloomsburg, were held in Carver Auditorium due to inclement weather. William Bitner, Lemoyne, class president, presided during the ceremony. Bitner presented the spade, used in the planting of the ivy, to William Pohutsky, Old Forge, president of the Class of 1957.

During the program, Elisabeth Adams, Selinsgrove, and Joanne Dauber, Berwick, presented a piano duet. The class sang "Halls of Ivy" and the Alma Mater. Nelson Miller directed the group singing.

Co-chairman of the Ivy Day exercises were Edward Siscoe, Forest City and Robert Groover, Watson-town.

Mr. Earl Gehrig is faculty advisor for the Class of 1956.

frequent. But all that is changed now. There are more worthy requests than can be taken care of from cash at hand.

We're sure it would please the professor to know something more is to be done to aid those who want to teach to prepare to do so. We're pretty sure we'll take a big step forward in that project this coming Alumni Day.

(E. F. S.)

Class Reunions

Big feature of Alumni Day at the College, as is always the case, were the festivities of the classes in reunion. Many of the programs opened on Friday evening and continued through Saturday night.

There was a splendid turnout of members of the older classes. Heading this contingent were Mrs. Annie S. Nuss, Bloomsburg and Mrs. John J. Jones, Scranton, class of 1888.

Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff, 1891; Mrs. J. S. John, 1895, and Miss Gertrude Rinker, 1899, were also among those on the campus and recognized at the general alumni meeting.

Harry S. Barton headed a contingent of six representing the class of 1896 who were in sixtieth year reunion, and sang the song of the school when he was there. That noted the colors of the institution as "the lemon and maroon." Now they are maroon and gold and Major Barton demanded, "Who changed those colors?"

There were four back from 1898, five from '99, six from '00, two from '02, one from '04 and three from '05.

The following members of the class of 1896 were present for the 60th reunion dinner on Friday, evening, May 25th:

Bertha Lamareaux, (Mrs. Anderson), Elizabeth Miller (Mrs. Eyer), Bessie Vance (Mrs. DeMott) and Charles I. Boyer. All of the members except Mrs. DeMott were joined on Saturday morning by Florence Lins (Mrs. Arndt) and Harry Barton at the general alumni meeting. After the alumni luncheon Mrs. DeMott, Mrs. Arndt and Charles I. Boyer met in room F, in Noetting Hall for a short time.

Mrs. Arndt taught for 31 years and retired in 1950. She has 3 children, two sons and a daughter, 5 grandsons and 2 granddaughters. Her daughter is married and lives in Bellefonte. One son works for the American Anilin Dye Corp. and the other one has a news agency in West Conshohocken. Mrs. Arndt reported that she had learned that Jane Rosser had passed away in a convalescent home in New Jersey in 1945.

Mrs. Anderson taught 12 years in Pennsylvania before marriage and 2 years in Oregon. Her husband was a real estate man and orchardist in Medford, Oregon. After her husband died in 1951, she came east to live with her sister, Miss Ruth Lamareaux (1906), at Shaverton.

Charles I. Boyer taught for 8 years, graduated from Bucknell University in 1902, and entered the civil engineering profession. He was engaged in private practice in Atlanta, Ga., when the first World War began. During the war he served with U. S. Housing Corp. as field engineer on the Erie, Pa., housing project, and after the war he served for seven years as Borough Engineer and Supt. of water works at Ridgway. He resigned his position at Ridgway in 1927 and went into business. He has a son and daughter. The daughter is head of the Home Economics department in the Milton Joint high school and he and his son are partners in the Western Auto Associate store at Lewisburg. He has one grandson and three granddaughters.

The class of 1901 in fifty-fifth year reunion had ten back for a busy weekend which started with a dinner in the College dining hall on Friday evening.

Class of 1906

The class of 1906, the honor class of the reunion, had members back from California, Florida, New Jersey, Maine and all parts of Pennsylvania.

Coming the farthest were Helen Herrington Griffith and Myrtle Longenberger Messersmith and husband Chauncey. Mrs. Lillian Irish, teaching in Camden, N. J., has been president of the Philadelphia branch of the Alumni Association for twelve years.

Dr. Homer Snyder has been a practicing physician in Scranton forty years. Mrs. Grace Frantz had the distinction of the longest teaching career of any of the class in attendance, fifty-two years. Of that forty-five was in Camden, N. J., thirty-six as principal of a school there. She has not been out of school any one year since she was a child of six.

Many communications were read from members unable to be present. Among those was one from Susie Rayos Marmon, Lagunas, N. M.

The class, having the best attendance of any golden reunion class in many years, spent the weekend in reminiscences of the old days at "Old Normal." The members were seated on the platform for the general ceremonies.

Members contributed $116 as an addition to the R. Bruce Albert Memorial Fund of the College. Albert, first president of the class of 1906, was long president of the general alumni and did much to unite the graduates of the institution into a going organization.

Attending: Grace Fenstermaker Frantz, Merchantville, N. J.; Marion Groff Spangler, Reading; Ethel Henry Natress, Sunbury; Lillie Hortman Irish, Camden, N. J.; Helen DeWitt Terwilliger, Bloomsburg; Nellie Durbin Batey, Kingston; Edith Shuman Grimes, Catawissa; Myrtle Longenberger Messersmith, Boca Raton, Florida; Aleta Bomboy Englehardt, Dr. Homer H. Snyder, Dr. O. A. Allen, Elizabeth Steiner Mitteldorf, Hazel Owen Schuchart, W. Raymond Girton, Nellie Evans, Florence M. CHILLING BREEZES GREET BSTC MAY DAY REVIVAL

In spite of chilling breezes and a temperamental sun, a record crowd turned out on Wednesday, May 9, for the Teachers College May Day festival, revived after a lapse of several years. Close to 300 BSTC students and children of the Benjamin Franklin School participated in the colorful affair on the college campus.

Miss Joan Christie, petite college senior from Shenandoah, reigned over the festivities. Miss Patricia O'Brien, Bloomsburg, and Miss Wylla Bowman, Berwick, were among her attendants. Other coed members of the court were Judy Stephens, Barbara Bennett, Dorie Krzywicki, Tina Valente, Joanne Hester and Jean Zimmerman.

As a prelude to the coronation, the college band directed by Nelson Miller, presented a concert which included "The Golden Eagle March," three sketches, "Hayride," "Spiritual" and "Barn Dance," Morrissey; "Trumpet Tune," Purcell; "One Beautiful Day," Hildreth; "Skyline," Morrissey, and the Alma Mater.

Senior women carrying the ivy chain and a procession of training school children preceded the queen and her attendants who were beautifully attired in pastel gowns and carried arm bouquets of spring flowers.

Acting as flower girls were Connie Wolf, Ann Graham, Susan Housenick, Susan Powlus, Suzanne Peters, Sandy Parks, Sally Klein, Sally DeWald and Ann Hinkel. Crown bearers were John Martin and Edward John. Carrying the queen's train were Edward Diehl, Tommy Warr, Larry Miller, Billy Miller, Tony Frazier, Tommy Glose, Larry Danner, Roddy Schleichner.

Presiding at the coronation was Robert Evans, president of the student council.

A kaleidoscope of scenes typical of summer which were staged by college students were well done and occasioned much laughter from the audience. Kindergarten children presented a "Yankee Doodle" number and fifth and sixth grade students sang "The Ash Grove," "The Night Herding Song" and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot."

College women took part in "Snow Storm," a special costumed dance number, which was followed by a hilarious barefoot Ozark dance routine by college men to "The Arkansas Traveler."

In a series of dance presentations, fourth graders performed the "Farandole" and an old French number; the third grade took part in "The Lady Anne," a Spanish-American dance routine, and the second grade, in costume, presented a square dance to "Old Suzanna."

To the tune of "Greensleeves," 200 college women performed an original dance created and taught by Linda Firmstone and Sue Osborn. The finale and highlight of the May fete was the winding of the May pole by both the children and coeds.

Miss Lucy McCammon, who directed the show, was assisted by faculty members. Mrs. Dorothy Evans provided piano accompaniment.

Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Business Education at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, was one of the featured speakers at the annual convention of the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania Business Education Association on Saturday, April 28. Dr. Martin spoke to the section on General Business. His topic was "Basic Business—Business Education's Contribution to General Education."

The conference was held in the Central Bucks High School in Doylestown, Pa.

VISITATION DAY

More than 220 high school seniors accepted an invitation to attend the annual Campus Visitation Day held at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College on Saturday, April 21. The Oscar Ingh Bakeshop Chapter of the Future Teachers of America at the Teachers College sponsored the program and acted as hosts to the visiting seniors. Thomas J. Higgins, Sunbury, was F.T.A. president. Officers of the organization arranged a program which began with registration at 9:00 A. M. in the Waller Hall Lounge. At 9:45 A. M. the group went to Carver Hall Auditorium to hear Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the college, and to see a film depicting scenes of the college campus and college activities. John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, gave a commentary during the showing of the film. A panel of five students discussed various aspects of college life, including extra-curricular activities for men and women and various items of clothing and equipment that college freshmen would need to begin their college career. The panel consisted of Mary Grace Stroudsburg; Valetta Beeson, Glenside; Marcia Storm, Easton; Allen Nuss, Pottsville; Philip Waldron, Upper Darby.

Members who participated in a recent all-college talent show presented a half-hour variety show at 11:00 A. M., and this program was followed by a sight-seeing tour of the campus and dormitories. The group had lunch in the college dining room at 12:15 P. M., and toured the speech and hearing clinic at Noetling Hall at 1:00 P. M. The visiting seniors concluded their visit to the campus as guests of the college at the baseball game on Mt. Olympus between the Bloomsburg Huskies and the Bald Eagles of Lock Haven State Teachers College at 2:00 P. M.

The annual Visitation Day began some years ago in response to requests by high school students, their parents, and teachers, who felt that a preview of college life and activities would be helpful to

B.S.T.C. ALUMNI ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College Alumni of the Philadelphia Area was observed at a Silver Jubilee Dinner Meeting on April 28th at McAllister's Restaurant.

During the twenty-five years many graduates have been members. The late Mrs. Norman Cool was the organizer and devoted first president.

Miss Kathryn Spencer, '18, of Norristown, president, welcomed the group and introduced O. C. Palsgrove '31, who presided as toastmaster.

Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Andruss and Dr. E. H. Nelson from the College were present for the celebration.

Dr. Andruss and Dr. Nelson brought greetings and spoke of College news and activities.

Miss Esther Dagnell, '34, treasurer, read several communications from persons who were not able to be present but sent greetings and best wishes.

Among members attending were Mrs. Lillie Hortman Irish, of Camden, N. J., Honorary President and enthusiastic and faithful worker, who planned to attend her fiftieth reunion this year.

The association presented a gift of money to the Student Loan Fund in loving memory of Mrs. Mary A. Taubel, for many years an interested and loyal member.

The evening was an enjoyable one with renewing friendships or making new ones.

The Philadelphia Association will resume regular monthly luncheon meetings in October. These gatherings are held the second Saturday of each month, beginning at 12:30 at Gimbel's Store Club Women's Center, sixth floor. Any interested persons are invited to attend.

prospective college entrants. The program has met with an enthusiastic reception by those who have visited the campus in the past years.

ATHLETICS

BASEBALL 1956

An undefeated record of baseball activity in State Teachers College Conference competition was completed May 17 when the Bloomsburg State Teachers College Huskies defeated the Bald Eagles of Lock Haven. The charges of Coach E. Paul Wagner have an over-all season tally of eight wins and one defeat, and a conference record of six wins and no losses. Their closest rival is Indiana State Teachers which has a 4-2 log in conference competition.

Wagner predicted early in the season that his mound staff would make a good showing, barring injuries or poor support at the plate, and those predictions have stodd the test. Sophomore John Huda, Factoryville, heads the mound crew with an impressive 4-0 total; Huda racked up an enviable number of strike-outs, and posted a no-hitter in winning the four games against Lock Haven, Millersville, West Chester, and Kutztown. Jim Starr, Williamsport, defeated Lycoming College and Lock Haven, while Charles Kwiatkoski, senior from Plymouth, compiled a 1-1 record. Carroll Reichart, Light Street freshman, beat Wilkes College for the other victory. Bill Freed, sophomore from Pottsville, Bob DiPipi, junior from Old Forge, and Jim Joy, sophomore from Bloomsburg, provided some fine relief hurling to wrap up victories on several occasions. Starr and Kwiatkoski were the only seniors on the team.

Team statistics reveal that Wagner's charges were not idle at the plate. While the Maroon and Gold pitchers were limiting the opposition to twenty runs, the Husky line-up was battering enemy hurlers for sixty-five runs. Spearheading the attack was Joe Pendal, Beaver Meadows, who batted better than .500 most of the season—his first with the Huskies. Timely hitting by Pat Denoy, Mocaqua, Jonah Goobie, Hudson, Ed Shustack, Shenandoah, George

John Koch, Harrisburg, and Paul Peiffer, Lititz, both seniors, served as student managers for the team.

1956 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

The Huskies of Bloomsburg State Teachers College, 1955 Teachers College Conference gridiron champs, will open the 1956 campaign with games on three consecutive weekends on colorful Mt. Olympus, it was announced by Jack W. Yohe, Director of Athletics. Yohe added that the remaining four contests of the seven game schedule will be played on fields designated by the opponents. Mansfield's Mountaineers will climax the Huskies' home stand at the annual Homecoming Day on Saturday, October 13. Three changes were made for the coming season: Delaware State has been added for the next two years, Shippensburg State Teachers College has resumed gridiron meetings with the Huskies, and Lock Haven has been dropped this year because of scheduling difficulties. The Bald Eagles, however, have already been added to the Bloomsburg schedule for the opening game of the 1957 season, which means that the Huskies will return to an eight-game setup in 1957, with four games at home and an equal number away.

In addition to the fall sport, Yohe also announced a seventeen game lineup for Coach Harold Shelly's basketball charges. The only change in the court setup is the substitution of Shippensburg for Wilkes College on the Husky calendar. Coach Walter Blair's grapples face eight opponents in their next campaign, with Lycoming College replacing Wilkes College on the mat schedule.

Listed below are the schedules for the 1956-57 college year.

Members of the 1955 football squad of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College received awards and special recognition in an assembly in Carver Auditorium. Coach Jack W. Yohe praised team members for the fine cooperative and competitive spirit demonstrated in their successful bid for the Teachers College Conference Championship, and presented them with appropriate tokens for various years of varsity participation. Five members received gold keys for winning four letters in gridiron activities, while seven of the squad were the recipients of gold footballs, indicative of three years of varsity play. Sweaters, designating two years of service, were awarded to nine of the Huskies, and twenty-nine of the squad earned their first varsity letter.

An anthracite coal football trophy was received by the team from the Forty Fort-Kingston Kiwanis Club in recognition of their victory over Wilkes College last fall. The game was sponsored by the Kiwanians for the benefit of underprivileged children in the Wilkes-Barre area.

REDMAN ELECTED

PRINCIPAL

Robert B. Redman, former Husky coach, has been elected principal of the East Orange, N. J., Senior High School.

Redman will succeed Lewis H. Knight, whose resignation became effective at the close of the past school term. In assuming the duties of principal, Redman will retire as head football coach, a post he has held for the past four years.

Redman moved to East Orange after a successful five-year tenure at the local college in which he produced two undefeated teams in 1948 and 1951 when the Huskies were declared champions of the S.T.C. conference. During the five-year span Redman's teams lost four games in forty-two starts.

His East Orange teams have won a total of twenty-nine games, lost eight and tied three, and were co-holders with Montclair and West Orange high schools of the New Jersey state championship in 1953. Redman's 1953 team was picked by sports scribes as the outstanding high school team in the state and Redman was selected as the state's outstanding scholastic coach.

ACTIVITIES OF THE

On Saturday, February 4, the local chapter attended the All Pennsylvania College Alumni Association Luncheon honoring a distinguished Pennsylvanian, Miss Mary B. McAndrews, former Superintendent of Schools of Carbondale, Pa. A delicious luncheon was served in the Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D. C., and entertainment was provided by the Soldier's Chorus, a well-known choral group of the Military District of Washington.

Approximately twenty members of the group attended and were honored by the presence of Dr. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State Teachers College, and Dr. Nelson of the Alumni Association. Included in the group again was "our youngest member," Dr. Harry O. Hine, Class of '85. Dr. Hine was recognized as the oldest graduate of any Pennsylvania college to be present at the Luncheon.

Serving on the Executive Committee for this affair was Harriet L. Kocher in the capacity of Recording Secretary.

A Spring Tea social was held on Sunday, March 11, at the Washington Home for Foundlings, Washington, D. C. Approximately twenty-five members and guests attended and an enjoyable afternoon was had by all.

May 3, 1956

Dear Mr. Nelson:

This morning I have received the "Alumni Quarterly," for April, 1956. I have had the privilege of reading the very fine tribute to Professor O. H. Bakeless. I take it that he was of French descent. I was a great admirer of him though I only took a short course instruction under him in Latin after I had graduated, and when I was thinking of preparing to enter College to obtain the degree of B.A. I later switched to the study of medicine. However, the association of Professor Bakeless with France comes to my mind particularly this morning and I am especially impressed because last night the French Society of Philadelphia honored me at their annual dinner meeting, at which they presented to me a beautiful silver platter with the following inscription engraved on it:

Professor Charles H. Albert, who I think took a special interest in me, is quoted in reference to Professor Bakeless. I have always admired Professor Albert, and I would like to write him a letter if he is still alive. Since I am 82 1/4, I am assuming that Professor Albert is not living, but I do not remember any record of his passing. If he is still alive, please let me know.

In connection with the compliment paid to me last night, I am very much impressed by the compliment directly from France where the Antoine Beclere Centre has been organized in honor of Professor Antoine Beclere, whom I first met in 1905, and who has been a great teacher of radiology, and has always been helpful to those who had the honor of visiting him. He invited me to his home at a family dinner in 1905. He could speak no English, I could speak no French, but his charming daughter, Mlle Antoinette Beclere, spoke both English and French and acted as our interpreter. The Antoine Beclere Centre has been organized by his son, Claude, and he is one of the leading radiologists of Paris, and his sister, Mlle. Antoinette. They did me the great honor of awarding me the First Gold Medal from this organization in 1952. It was not practical for me to go over and receive this medal at that time, but it was presented to me by Mlle Antoinette Beclere in April, 1955, at the meeting of the Fifth Inter-American Congress of Radiology, held in Washington, D. C.

She brought with her the photograph of the office of this Centre with the names of the pioneers from all the various countries, showing clearly on the walls of this office. I am the only one of all these pioneers that is still living. In this I am very fortunate.

I treasure very highly and most sincerely the fine opportunity which I had when attending and receiving instructions at the Bloomsburg State Normal School. I had received many honors and appreciate them all very much.

I am sending herewith a reprint containing a most flattering account, prepared by one of my very good friends, Professor James A. Case.

With best wishes, I am
Yours very sincerely,
George E. Pfahler.

The following was recently received from Nellie Sherrif Dixon, 314 14th Street, N.E., Washington, D. C.:

Thank you so much for your kind invitation to be a guest of the School Alumni on May 25th.

I fear I shall not be there. It seems that the only asset, or qualification or requirement I possess to rank such an invitation is by great age and I just don't feel that old. I have a full time job with the Maritime Administration which I have held for fourteen years. I also direct the Maritime Bridge Department Convention of Maryland and a week later the Virginia State Department Convention at Staunton, Virginia. And the organization is not sending me because of my age.

During the year I have given eleven book reviews at various Washington, D. C., and Alexandria, Virginia, churches, Y.W.C.A.'s and other places. I have appeared before the House Armed Forces Committee at the request of our parent organization and have been received by The President on a committee.

Incidentally I have been received at the White House by all the Presidents since being in Washington. By Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Nixon six days after the inauguration.

At no time was I selected because of my extreme age.

Please excuse me this time. Wait a few more years and maybe I shall feel old enough to accept. Or invite me sometime during the year. I might have something worthwhile to tell the students.

If I might send a message to the students it would be this: "I was, perhaps, when I graduated from Bloomsburg one of the least promising of all my class, so to the least promising of the class of '56 I would like to say they can do a great deal in the next 55 years.

The following was recently received from J. A. E. Rodriguez, C.P.A., P.O. Box 708, San Juan 4, Puerto Rico:

I wish to congratulate you for your article on Professor Bakeless. I remember very distinctly how Professor Bakeless used to take time out during his free evenings, in Carlisle to help me with my first English lessons. He certainly was a wonderful character and he together with Professors Hartline and Albert have been an inspiration to me during the last 50 years.

I am beginning to save my pennies to see if I can attend my 50th year reunion at Bloomsburg next year. I am looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to see you and at least some of my classmates at that time.

Sister Margaret Mary R.S.M., whose name was Eleanor Ryan of the class of 1910 had the misfortune of falling in St. Gabriel's Parochial School, Hazleton, during the month of January. She has been a patient in the Mersey Hospital, Wilkes-Barre, with a compound fracture of the hip and right arm. Her address is: St. Gabriel's Convent, South Wyoming Street, Hazleton, Pennsylvania.

1911

Hazel Kester attended this year's class reunion. This is the first time in forty years. Her early teaching was in Columbia County. She has retired after teaching twenty-seven years at Hicksville, Long Island, and is residing at Millville, Pa.

1911

To the Class of 1911: Greetings and salutations from the bottom of the world.

We are almost opposite you on the other side of the earth. We are 11½ hours from New York, if we go East from here and 12½ hours, if we go West. We came through Europe and expect to return by the Pacific and visit our daughter who is with the Army in Japan. We are 5° south of the Equator.

Ten years ago, I took my doctorate at Cornell after starting to do so twice before. Raising and educating six children presents handicaps. The last one is a sophomore at Syracuse University. I am about through working for my children and can now begin to work for myself.

I worked in the Research Division of New York State Department of Education for two years. I taught school administration and supervision at Cornell University, Alfred University and Albany State Teachers College.

Three years ago I joined the U. S. Foreign Aid Program and was assigned to Iran (Persia) as Provincial Chief of Education for the two southernmost provinces on the Indian Ocean—an area three times as big as New York State without a mile of railroads or a single mile of hard surfaced road. We lived on a plateau over a mile high. It was quite pleasant. It is a desert area as barren as Sahara except for the oases that spot the area—unending miles of sand, rock and barren but rugged mountains. On the low lands the temperature in the early afternoon would go to +110° to 120° on the desert and drops at night to +60° toward morning. You traveled by night mostly on the desert under the most brilliant canopy of stars you could imagine. It is seldom very dark at night on the desert and when the moon shines you can almost read by it. You naturally study the stars on the desert. Once in a while it would elude over and it would be dark and in a sandstorm it was pitch black. You had to stop and find shelter until it blew itself out. It can be frightening.

There was a so called road in each province running north and south to the Indian Ocean and one east and west road running from the Persian Gulf to the Pakistan border. On the best parts of it you could not drive over 30 miles an hour but you would have to drop down 5 to 10 miles for hours on end.

Trucks can only negotiate these three main roads and some few short spur dead ends. The rest of the traffic is as it always has been by camel caravan—ranging from a half dozen to hundreds. For the short haul where cases are close together the patient donkey is the best friend of man I have ever seen. It can carry its own weight and more. I would say the camel and the donkey are 60 per cent to 70 per cent of the transport in the area. I served. Agriculture and trading is carried on as it was in the time of Christ.

We did a full program of education from elementary through senior high school in both general education and all the general branches of vocational education. Senior high schools are only found in the cities, junior high schools in the largest villages and elementary schools only in the great mass of villages. About half of the villages had no school at all. The people are pitifully poor and starvation rather prevalent. The tillable land nearly all belongs to a few very wealthy families who live in relative luxury. These are well educated, highly cultured and most hospitable. Many hold degrees from European universities.

In the small villages literacy is about 15 per cent but I have been in many in which I had to search diligently to find a single person who could read and write. In the cities, and there are a few, literacy would reach 30 per cent.

It was an interesting experience to match our wits and our program against the communists who were well organized and well directed from across the border in Russia. When the revolution came we found we had won but we were anything but sure for four days after it started. Wild mobs in their destruction can change their moods quickly and without much reason. You keep behind the walls of your home until the situation becomes clear. It is very satisfying to know you have come out on top in such a struggle. Communists are on the run in Iran now.

It was rough but rich experience.

The change from Provincial Chief of Education in Iran to Assistant Chief Education Officer in the national headquarters in Djakarta, Indonesia, is quite a radical change. It is a change from primitive conditions to living in a relatively modern city. In this city of 2½ million, we have many of the conveniences and attractions of any progressive city. Indonesia is probably the most advanced of any of the South East Asian countries. It is a change from the desert to lush vegetation. From a land of little or no rain to areas where 100 to 200 inches of rainfall is usual. A change from a dry comfortable climate to a continuously hot and humid one. We have no seasons and daylight hours are always the same. I don't like sticky heat. But most important of all it is a change from the front lines of operations where you are close to the people to a headquarters planning operation where you deal always with politicians and high government officials. It is paper work, red tape, and sensitive political negotiations. It can be frustrating at times. Often you wonder if you are accomplishing anything. In the East, time stands still. It always has and it still does. That can drive an active American wild. You simply have to reason yourself into the pattern of an entirely different culture.

Far be it from me to say our pattern of life of endless activity, of haste of rushing after material gains which we call progress is better than the easy going, slow rather dreamy contemplative scheme of living these people follow. They seem to be enjoying life more than we. We all know that all the great religions came out of this part of the world. Maybe it takes this way of life to produce clear concepts of religion.

It is a thrill for the first few times to deal with a cabinet officer and be introduced to the Prime Minister. But I am convinced our aid program must reach the people in the little villages who are the forgotten folk or we are not accomplishing what we set out to do.

In Iran we reached them. In Indonesia, we haven't reached them yet. I preach this gospel to any and all who will listen to me. I am hoping we shall soon realize it but the political atmosphere is sensitive. In the meantime it is hot. There are bundles of paper work. There are yards of red tape. We are slowly getting into step. There are satisfactions in this work.

The work with handicapped children that is carried on by Mrs. Miriam Welliver Funk, formerly of Bloomsburg, is told interestingly and at length in the Roswell, N. M., newspaper, with the article carrying four illustrations, one a closeup of Mrs. Funk.

An appended article alongside the main feature attracts the most local interest. Under the caption "Exceptional Class Teacher Had Early Start Toward Job" is set forth:

"Just fifty-six years ago Mrs. Miriam Welliver Funk, then only two, started on the road to Roswell as the teacher of exceptional children.

"Polio struck her then and left her lame of limb, but possibility inspired in her the strong spirit shown daily in her work with Roswell's Exceptional Child's School.

"From Bloomsburg, Pa., she moved on after experience teaching grades one through twelve and the acquiring of three bachelor's degrees, to special education work.

"Asking no special favors and teaching her handicapped students to accept their problems and live with them, she taught 14 years in special education schools. She had taught 35 years in the state of Pennsylvania when she was retired.

"A tour of the west to re-visit New Mexico, home of her artist husband Jay Lee Funk, convinced her that the west is for her. The climate and wide-open spaces lured, and the beauty of Roswell brought her services to the children now enrolled in her special education classes here.

"The Funks live at 507 South Richardson Avenue, where Jay holds art classes, but by day Mrs. Funk can be found at 'The Little House.'

"The Roswell community has helped greatly with the program, Mrs. Funk reports. The Roswell Assistance League, the Beaureant, Sheriff's Posse Auxiliary, and the American Legion Auxiliary have served. The latter group adopted a national program of aid to handicapped children.

"Many individuals have donated time, money and equipment to the school. A piano and plastic bells have been given to these children as well as money 'to be spent where needed'.

"If the parents of one of these children were to hire a physical therapist," said Mrs. Funk, "for their child, the money spent would not buy the services donated by the warm hearted organization and individuals of Roswell."

"Learning reading, writing, arithmetic and the other hundred or more skills and particular facts needed by today's citizens are not forgotten at 'The Little House'.

"But the approach must be tailored carefully to the abilities of each child, says Mrs. Funk."

The main article tells of the children in the work and the program that operates to aid them. Frank Taylor who wrote the piece, sets forth: "Ideas and methods of how and where to help the handicapped have passed the experimental stages in which Mrs. Funk helped during her early training in this field.

"Parents of the handicapped are learning to accept the handicap and to go forward in improving the child's lot at home, in school, on the job, anywhere. They are learning, along with the general public, that these children are here to stay—as are all of us—and that if they are helped to overcome their handicaps can become productive members of society.

"To leave them hidden 'in the closet' or to place them in an institution seems the kindest thing to do in the eyes of some. But we now know that 'the least of these' has a place in our world—and we are moving toward helping him find it."

"If each of you will go out into this new life and say to each person you meet, 'I can be your friend,' 'I enjoy working by your side,' or 'I can accept your orders and your discipline in good grace,' then you need never fear for your future and you need never worry about what people will think of you. The world will be a better place because of the contribution you are making."

That was the message of Glenn A. Oman to the graduating class of 109 at the sixty-fifth annual commencement of the Bloomsburg High School. Oman, president, International Correspondence Schools, Canadian Branch, Montreal, Canada, was a member of the class of 1927 at the local school. His theme was "Living With People."

(From the "Fanning" Column, The Bloomsburg Morning Press)

It has been almost a score of years now since Irving (Junie) Ruckel, Newport Township native and former Bloomsburg Husky basketball star, received his diploma from the 'Friendly College on the hill' and start out in a topsyturvy world.

Back in '38, you'll recall, the clouds that were to unlose a second world war upon us were gathering over Europe. It was the time when depression was still with us. Things didn't look too bright for college graduates.

But Ruckel got busy early and he's still busy. Fact is he's getting busier all the time and probably the most difficult job Oyster Bay, N. Y., had for the evening of Monday, April 9, was to get "Junie" to the banquet at which he was to be honored.

Sixty-seven organizations, clergy, businessmen and parents of Oyster Bay youth joined in a testimonial to the Bloomsburg College alumnus and on the dinner program was Mrs. Richard Derby, daughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

Ruckel was honored for his work with youth and certainly his record is evidence that the honors now being accorded him are richly deserved.

We lost sight of "Junie" after he left here. So did the College. The local institution had been holding, for want of a forwarding address, a lifetime pass to all Husky home games. That's an award which goes to all Bloomsburg four-letter men. "Junie" made his four years running in basketball here. He was one of the last to play for Bloomsburg in the old gym—now the Husky lounge. The present Centennial gym was under construction when "Junie" travelled the diploma route and departed.

Jack O'Keefe, editor of the Oyster Bay, N. Y., Guardian, in a letter to Dr. Harvy A. Andruss, president of the College, observes that "We in Oyster Bay are extremely proud that one of your graduates has done a tremendous job. In our community for five years, he has definitely established himself as the most popular man in Oyster Bay, and that goes for Len Hall, National Republican chairman, as this is also his home town."

In the shindig of April 9 Ruckel received the "Outstanding Achievement Award" of the community. And in the citation prepared these facts are noted:

In his five years at Oyster Bay there has been considerable reduction of juvenile delinquency and today it is lower there than any place on the island, being practically zero. He heads the Oyster Bay Teen-Age Club, 400 strong and drawn from two high schools, that has won national citizenship awards the past two years.

He is creator of "Community Christmas Decorating by Teen-Agers." Four hundred youngsters, working on 34 committees, do for $700 a job that formerly cost $2,500. The program has attracted interest all over the nation and is responsible for Oyster Bay being known as "Christmastown, Long Island." It has stimulated business there during the holiday season.

Ruckel has led a $110,000 drive to establish a community center at Oyster Bay and has set up many other notable civil projects such as decorating in the community and selling flags through teen-agers when President Eisenhower visited Sagamore Hill. He established at Christmas the teen-age project of "Santa Claus North Pole Line," operated all over Long Island by teenagers, and the Long Island Diaper Derby for National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis. A study is now being made of Pink and Blue Winter Diaper Derbies for the foundation. He has a unique summer program and has established a Community Recreation Council with 100 per cent membership of all organizations and groups.

He has been a recreation director for 16 years at Middletown, Lindenhurst and Oyster Bay, N. Y.

He was a successful basketball coach at Middletown but gave up coaching after leaving the U. S. Navy so he could devote more time to recreation.

He holds the Outstanding Achievement Award of the Phoenix Fire Company, Middletown, N. Y. He has been cited by the Oyster Bay Chamber of Commerce.

He is the first and only Protestant to receive the National Catholic Magazine Award for outstanding and unselfish help to parochial schools while working for a public school system. He also holds the Catholic War Veterans Achievement Award and the Community Service Award, Lindenhurst, N. Y., and has received citations from National Recreation Magazine, Chief Justice Ashton Williams, North Carolina, the late Chief Justice Vinson, America City Magazine, National Scholastic Magazine and Youth Magazine.

He is a member of Lions Club, Theodore Roosevelt Post No. 4, and Chamber of Commerce, Oyster Bay, N. Y., life member Phoenix Fire Company and honorary member of the Italian-American Club, Middletown, N. Y., honorary member of Lindenhurst War Veterans, former president of the Long Island Recreation Association and vice president of the Middle Atlantic Community Organization Association.

"Junie" could move pretty fast in his basketball days on the hill. It is apparent that he has speeded up since he left. And he's still adding to that pace. The school and the community are mighty proud of him and join Oyster Bay in saying "Good work. Keep it up."

Elma H. Nelson, '11

Reunions come and reunions go. Classes convene and disperse. The younger classes come back with wives, husbands and children—and hopes. The older classes come back with pictures of their grandchildren—and memories. Changes of course, in appearance and outlook. Changes in the physical plant of the college. The long tables in the dining room have changed to round ones. In a short time the dining room itself will move up on the old tennis courts, and the students will "go to the library" where once you gave attention to the chef's specials.

We ponder the questions "What has Bloomsburg DONE for me?" "What exactly, does Bloomsburg MEAN to me?" "Why do I continue to the INTERESTED in my Alma Mater?"

For just a minute, think about the interests you gained while you were at Bloomsburg. Remember the many, many times your college background has helped you to cope with problems. Think about the innumerable instances in business or social situations when you have proudly identified yourself with Bloomsburg. Measured also in dollars and cents, your Bloomsburg education has probably boosted what you have earned, are earning, and are capable of earning. These are some of the things Bloomsburg has done for YOU.

We continue to have a proud interest in our Alma Mater because it continues to contribute to society, through education and service, in a manner to justify our deepest pride. We are hoping that you are proud enough to want to share in the satisfaction of keeping Bloomsburg the fine school that it has been and is. There are scholarships to be awarded, the Loan Funds to be enlarged. You help with these projects when you write a check to "Alumni Funds" to be used as you designate — Bakeless Fund — Albert Fund — Husky Fund, etc.

How about it — won't you become an Alumni Fund member? Published elsewhere in this issue are the names of those who contributed Alumni Day and since. Is your class represented? Is your name written there? Don't you want to be a factor in keeping Bloomsburg abreast with the best in these changing and challenging days? Think it through AND THEN DECIDE.

Faithfully yours,

E. H. NELSON

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

SIGN POSTS OF PROGRESS -- 1956

ENROLLMENT

Buildings are bulging with students at Bloomsburg. Dormitories and classrooms are overcrowded, as you can well imagine, with a full-time enrollment of 1,080 students. Of this number, about 230 are living in homes in the Town of Bloomsburg and over 350 commute daily from their homes to their classrooms.

The accommodation of an enrollment which has increased two-thirds over the pre-war figure has created certain problems whose solutions lie in the foreseeable future.

Applications for admission number more than twice as many as can be accepted, and this is expected to continue at an accelerated rate. Larger high school classes are being graduated and a greater proportion of these graduates are applying for college admission.

Plantwise the College has two programs, one, the modernization of existing buildings and; two, the construction of new buildings.

Present enrollment figures cannot be greatly increased until additional building facilities are available. Next year we may be able to accommodate 1,200, and the following year about 1,400, but further expansion will depend on additional facilities and faculty. This means increased State appropriations.

MODERNIZING OLD BUILDINGS

During the summer months eighty dormitory rooms were repainted, chiefly in the men's section, and the exterior brick walls of Waller and Noetling Halls, facing the front campus, have been repointed and painted. This project will continue until all brick surfaces on the older buildings are of a uniform color.

Preliminary sketches have been developed by Schmitt and Lippi, Architects, Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, to convert the present dining room space for Library purposes, and the present Library space on the second floor of the Waller Hall Annex into dormitory space for men. This is expected to cost approximately $200,000.

If the new College Commons (Dining Room, Kitchen and Storage Building) is completed to the extent that meals can be served to students in January, 1957, then demolition can begin in the old dining room space and floors laid so that the Library can be moved to its new location in May, 1957, leaving the summer for the renovation of the second floor area so as to provide space for 30 men.

PLANS FOR NEW CONSTRUCTION

With the appointment of John A. Schell, Architect, of Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania, to draw a comprehensive campus plan for all buildings necessary to house an institution of at least 2,000 students, the first step is taken toward a long term building program.

This campus plan will locate all future buildings before a final decision is made as to the site of the new Classroom Building and the Men's Dormitory.

Since there are less than 900 seats in the present second floor Auditorium in Carver Hall, it is no longer possible to seat Seniors at regular weekly assemblies, and the original plans for an Auditorium to seat 1,200 will have to be reviewed so as to provide for future growth.

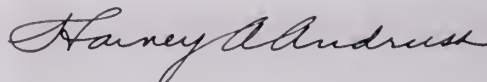

ACADEMIC RECOGNITION

Along with plant expansion, the quality of instruction has been recognized by the following accreditation agencies:

Pennsylvania Council of Education (State)

Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools (Regional)

National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (National)

President.

TRUSTEES APPOINTED

Carl H. Fleckenstine, Orangeville R. D. 2; Leo S. Dennen, Turbotvill R. D. 1, Northumberland county, and Harld L. Paul, Port Carbon, Schuylkill county, have been appointed membership on the board of trustees at the State Teachers College.

The announcement was made by Governor George M. Leader's office at Harrisburg.

Mr. Fleckenstine, a formed United States Marshal and long active in Democratic politics, fills a vacancy occasioned by the death, more than a year ago, of Reg. S. Hemingway, Bloomsburg attorney. Mr. Hemingway was serving as president at the time of his death.

Mr. Dennen succeeds W. L. Weer, Kingston, and Mr. Paul takes the place of Howard S. Fernsler, Pottsville. The terms of both Mr. Weer and Mr. Fernsler expired.

The appointment of Mr. Fleckenstine, a former register and recorder in Columbia county and long interested in the local institution, had been anticipated.

Mr. Weer and Mr. Fernsler both served for some years on the board. Mr. Fernsler is well known in this community as a result of his activities in Caldwell Consistory.

Trinity Evangelical and Reformed Church, Watontown, was the recent setting for the marriage of Miss Marguerite J. Bitler, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn H. Bitler and the late Dr. Sherman E. Bitler, to Harold B. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wright, all of Watontown.

After a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will reside at 222 Main street, Watontown.

Mrs. Wright graduated from Watontown High School and attended B.S.T.C. She graduated from Williamsport Hospital School of Nursing. Her husband, also a graduate of Watontown High School, served in the U. S. Army two years and is employed at McMillen's Clothing Store, Watontown.

BUILDING APPROPRIATIONS CUT AT B.S.T.C.

Decision by authorities that operational expenses such as architectural fees must come out of the grant for construction, has cut the amount available for new buildings at the State Teachers College, here, from $2.5 to $2 million dollars and has delayed for the present plans for the construction of a new auditorium.

Previously the GSA took care of the operational expenses. There were $25 million made available to the State Department of Public Instruction in May and $2.5 millions of this were allocated for Bloomsburg.

As things stand now there are indications that a classroom building, with eight classrooms on the first floor and four laboratories on the second floor, may be ready by the start of the 1957-58 college year. The estimated cost is a half billion dollars, with equipment additional, and the probable site is the present location of a battery of tennis courts near the varsity athletic field.

A men's dormitory with accommodations for two hundred will also be provided for under the grant. Just when this will be constructed remains uncertain due to the fact that a law was passed at the last session of Legislature standardizing dormitories constructed by the state. This law will have to be studied to ascertain if dormitories for Teachers College is covered. If this is so, then the restrictions will have to be followed in drawing the plans. It is believed construction will cost one million dollars and can start within a year.

With the reduction in the overall grant for Bloomsburg the amount remaining available for an auditorium would limit the size to 800. One of at least 1,200 is needed and if the College enrollment increases as anticipated it will not be many years until one of that size is inadequate.

The auditorium in Carver Hall, first building on the campus, accommodates 857. At assemblies now the seniors do not attend. In fact enrollment at the present is limited to underclassmen of a number who can be accommodated at assembly sessions, plus seniors.

The request for sufficient funds for an auditorium has been in Harrisburg for some time and it is believed that this request will get favorable consideration at the next session of the Legislature.

The College this fall has a record enrollment of over 1,075. If there were accommodations it could easily be 1,500. There were 250 applications for enrollment from persons who could easily qualify that had to be turned down. Probably as many more applied who could also have met the standards.

The Bloomsburg Chamber of Commerce has been especially active in giving what assistance it can to the institution to increase in size so that it can meet the student demand.

There is now ready for action a $100,000 project for the remodeling of the present dining hall into a library and the converting of the present library space into dormitory quarters. Funds for this have been taken from the operational budget of the institution.

The new dining hall is now under construction and it is hoped it will be ready for use by the first of next year or at least by spring. The objective is to have the plans ready for the new library quarters and the additional dormitory rooms so that there will be no delay in this work once the new dining hall is put into use. The dining hall cost is $450,000. There was $10,000 allocated for equipment but much more will be needed.

From the present two million dollar grant, $5,000 has been allocated for a campus survey for the selection of sites for buildings to be erected in the immediate future and for others needed. The utility lines will also be surveyed. Also taken from the recent grant will be $30,000 for utility connection to new buildings.

Once the new classroom building is completed and all laborator-

CONTRIBUTE TO BAKELESS LOAN FUND

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the college, President Harvey A. Andruss recommended that the Florence Cawley Fund, represented by a $1,000 interest bearing bond, be transferred to the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association as a contribution of the Board of Trustees to the Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund.

The College Council, composed of students and faculty members, have set aside $500 for this loan fund out of any surplus which may remain in the bank account of the Community Government Association at the end of the present College year. The 1956 Senior Class contributed $200 and the College Faculty has pledged $500 to be paid over a two-year period.

In addition to the $2,000 either paid or pledged to date, the Oscar Hugh Bakeless Chapter of the Future Teachers of America will canvass all college organizations beginning this month, to raise additional funds. The initial gift of $2,500 by an anonymous donor to the O. H. and S. H. Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund will be doubled.

With more than $5,000 in sight, it is expected that individual Alumni Branches will be invited to contribute to the Loan Fund, so as to double its present size, which is approximately $15,000. This loan fund is non-interest bearing until after graduates have secured employment. In past years it has been limited first to Seniors, then to Juniors and Seniors, and now with an increase in size may be extended to members of the Sophomore class.

It has been almost twenty years since the Alumni have had an opportunity to aid their Alma Mater by contributing to the Loan Fund. The last drive was made in 1938 and 1939 by the late R. Bruce Albert, who was then President of the Alumni Association.

ies located there, the space now devoted to two laboratories in Science Hall can be converted into four classrooms.

HARVEY A. ANDRUSS AT WYOMING CONFERENCE

Harvey A. Andruss, president of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, participated during the past summer in the school for executives of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education meeting at the University of Wyoming, Laramie.

The eighth biennial school of the Teacher Education Association brought 337 registrants from 104 colleges and universities to Laramie to discuss ways of producing more and better teachers for the public schools.

Harvey A. Andruss, Jr., son of President and Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss, and Miss Mary Ann Polomny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Polomny, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, were married Saturday, May 12, in the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Minneapolis. The Rev. Dr. Arnold Love, pastor of the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony performed in the presence of two hundred fifty guests.

The bride is a graduate of the School of Business of the University of Minnesota, and has been serving as secretary to the Vice-President of Multi-Clean Products, Inc., of St. Paul, Minnesota.

Mr. Andruss is a graduated of Mercersburg Academy, attended B.S.T.C., and received his Bachelor's degree at Yale University. He is a First Lieutenant in the Field Artillery Reserve, and is employed as Factory Representative of the Armstrong Cork Company, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

MORE RENOVATIONS PLANNED

With the appointment of Schmitt and Lippi, Architects of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, to draw plans for a new renovation contract to cover the changing of the present Dining Room into a Library and the present Library into additional dormitory rooms, the expenditure in excess of $150,000 is expected at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

In the report to the Board of Trustees, President Harvey A. Andruss gives the following details regarding the expenditure of over $2,000,000 which has or the following details regarding the expenditure of over $2,000,000 which has taken place or will take place over a five-year period ending in 1958:

GENERAL STATE AUTHORITY PROGRAMS

Renovation of Heating Plant	$385,000 (Completed)
Construction of Dining Room, Kitchen and Storage Building	460,000 (In process)
Construction of new Classroom Building	190,000 (Proposed)
		$1,335,000
Add 20% to cover Equipment, Architect's Fees, Inspection, Expense of Financing, etc.		267,000

PROPERTY AND SUPPLIES PROJECTS (Paid for out of College Budget)

Renovation of Carver Hall for Administrative Offices, including new roof, renovation of Infirmary, and Old Gymnasium	75,000
Renovation of Waller Hall, first floor corridor, completion of Husky Lounge project, New Entrance to Carver Hall and Waller Hall, Sun Porch at residence	152,000
Proposed project being surveyed by Schmitt and Lippi to cover change of present Dining Room to Library space, present Library space to Dormitory space, and possible classroom space in Noetling Hall	150,000	377,000
Payment of College's pro rata share of the construction cost of the Bloomsburg Sewer Disposal Plant		35,000
Community Activities and Book Store Funds Social and Recreational Facilities and Equipment, including Husky Lounge		30,000
		$2,044,000

The General State Authority will be requested to increase the allowance made for equipment for the dining room project, so this may be expected to be increased to $475,000 from $460,000, either from General State Authority or College sources.

The proposed construction cost for the Classroom Building of $450,000 will probably have to be augmented by at least $40,000 to equip Science Laboratories and Business Education Classrooms.

While the 20% overhead item on General State Authority contracts may sound high, we must remember that Architects are paid 8% to 10% and that an additional amount is necessary to carry the overhead of the General State Authority organization, including resident inspectors of contracts, financing of bonds, and equipment. Therefore, the $2,000,000 figure would seem to be on the conservative side.

EDDIE REMINISCES

(From the "Passing Throng" column of The Morning Press.)

Bloomsburg State Teachers College has launched its one hundred seventeenth year.

The institution that started in 1839 as the Bloomsburg Literary Institute and marked the centennial in '39 with the dedication of the Centennial Gymnasium and an address by then Governor Arthur H. James, is opening this year with the largest enrollment in its history. It is over 1,100 and there is no question but that the enrollment would be 1,500 or more if we had the room.

There were hundreds turned aside a year ago and more hundreds this year. A conservative figure is that 200 more students would have been accepted in the institution in both the fall of '55 and this autumn had there been facilities.

The institution, recognized throughout the area for its splendid work and with a national reputation for its business course, has come a long way since it was started as a local educational venture.

Through that period, then as a State Normal School and, since 1927, as a Teachers College, it has been fortunate in its leadership and in its dedicated faculty.

We don't know whether Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff, last of the beloved "Old Guard" strolled on the campus during the opening days of the term but we'll venture he did if he was able to do so. The institution is part of him as it has been of countless others from Dr. Carver, the first head of the institution on through Noetling Waller, Brill, Jenkins, Albert, Hartline and many more.

It's considerably different now. Times change and certainly the educational pattern has to be changed to keep up with this high powered age of the atom and power politics and all the rest of the things which go to make up the period in which we live.

Many of us can recall in the twenties when the requirement went through that to teach in the schools of the Commonwealth a teacher had to, by a certain date, have a Normal School diploma. If they didn't have one at that time they had to get an emergency certificate and they had a certain period in which to get the two year normal course.

It was in that period that the teachers who had gone into that field from high school came here in the summer and worked on credits. As we recall the summer school at that time had an enrollment of some 800.

They were working then for two years' education above that of high school just as the teacher today is working for the degree of master and for doctorates.

There will be some, of course, who will say there were some splendid teachers in that age of the past although formal education stopped with high school, and they are right. But it is also true that those same teachers would have been better teachers with additional preparation.

Through the years there have been few periods when there were enough teachers to meet the demand and never have there been enough good teachers. We're turning out more educators now than ever but we aren't keeping up with the demand and sometimes we get the thought that we never will.

Many who would do outstanding work in that field go on to other professions and vocations that are more lucrative. Many others could but teaching is their love and in that we are most fortunate.

It doesn't seem so long ago that Art Jenkins, Newport Township, completed a degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. He was the first student ever to receive a degree here. His thirtieth anniversary will be coming along next May and certainly the Alumni Association should do something about that.

In the first years, when the Teachers College had the right to grant degrees they also continued to have two- and three-year courses. For some time now, however, the courses are all outlined on a four-year basis.

Some of us were a little chagrined when we business education as the feature in our secondary field rather than physical education. But we have lived to see the day when we can term that circumstance a most fortunate one for Bloomsburg.

Of all that was said last Alumni Day the thing we liked best was this comment by President Andrus: "We need more room to serve our area and to do fine work but we never intend to grow or expand to such an extent that we will ever lose the spirit that is Bloomsburg."

St. John's Lutheran Church, Catawissa, was the recent setting for the marriage of Miss Barbara Ann Bucher, Catawissa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Chester Bucher, Metuchen, N. J., and Benjamin W. Lewis, Metuchen, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lewis, Paxinos.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Paul Trump.

The bride graduated from Catawissa High School and B.S.T.C. and is second grade teacher in Catawissa. Her husband graduated from Shamokin High School and attended Williamsport Technical Institute. He served four years with the Air Force and is employed by Ford Motor Company, Mercury Division, Metuchen, N. J.

1955-56 ENROLLMENT

Final reports for the overall enrollment of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College for the year ending June 1, 1956, have been filed with the Department of Public Instruction showing the total of 1,033 different people, of which 988 were full-time regular students and 45 were part-time day students.

The Business Education Division is the largest of the three divisions of the college with 365 students. This Department also had 176 of a total of 420 Freshmen.

When the total enrollment of different persons was adjusted in terms of full-time students, the enrollment of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College for the first time in its history reached 1,003.

Columbia County, with an enrollment of 190 students, was only slightly larger than Luzerne County with 188 students, closely followed by Northumberland County, with 155 students.

Counties having more than 25 students are Schuylkill, Lackawanna, Lycoming, Montour, Montgomery, while those having ten or more are as follows: Berks, Bradford, Bucks, Carbon, Dauphin, Delaware, Lehigh, Northampton, Snyder, and Union. Forty-five of the sixty-seven counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania are represented in the enrollment of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, with only four students enrolled from outside the State of Pennsylvania.

Richard Salatine, a former student of Bloomsburg, has been awarded a commission as Ensign in the U. S. Navy, upon completion of Pre-Flight training at the Naval Air Station, at Pensacola, Florida. Captain M. W. White, U.S.N., commanding officer of the Barin Field Auxiliary Air Station, Foley, Alabama, made the presentation.

Ensign Salatine is now assigned to the Whiting Field Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Milton, Florida, where he is undergoing primary flight training.

COLLEGE COMPLETES PAYMENT ON SEWAGE PROJECT

A check for $15,000 was presented recently by the Bloomsburg State Teachers College to the Municipal Authority of the Town of Bloomsburg in final payment of $35,000, the cost of construction assumed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania when the Municipal Sewage Disposal Plant was constructed. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College, announced that the $15,000, plus a payment made in September, 1954, completes the total payment. The college will continue to pay, according to the agreement, an annual rental to cover the expense of sewage treatment at the rate of $1,320.

The cooperative aspect of the building and operation of the disposal plant received its impetus a decade ago when the Department of Property and Supplies, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, engaged the services of the George B. Mebus Co., Glenside engineering firm, to determine the sanitary sewage needs of the college. On the basis of survey findings of sewage volume and full-time and part-time college personnel, it was recommended that the Commonwealth contribute approximately $20,000 toward construction of a disposal plant. An appropriation, not to exceed this amount, was provided later by the state legislature.

In the meantime, state legislation made it mandatory for towns and cities to provide for sewage treatment as a part of a program for clean streams and improved health conditions. In keeping with this, town authorities made plans for plant construction, and the Commonwealth, agreed to the $35,000 figure, on behalf of the college, to allow for increases in the cost of construction since the 1946 survey.

With the final payment of the $35,000, however, the annual rental and charges, paid by the college, will be reduced by $800 a year.

According to the agreement, this charge may be adjusted annually by the agreement of both parties to a formula which indicates that the per capita charge should be increased or decreased. The entire agreement between both parties was made for a period of thirty years.

B.S.T.C. ALUMNUS NAMED TO LUZERNE POSITION

Robert Jewell, Dallas, has been appointed by the Luzerne County Board of School Directors to serve as speech therapist for the Luzerne County Schools.

Mr. Jewell, who took his undergraduate work in speech at Bloomsburg State Teachers College and graduate work at Pennsylvania State University in that field, has acted for the past five years in the capacity of speech therapist in the Bradford City School System. While holding that position he initiated a speech correction program for the eight Bradford City Schools.

Franklin E.U.B. Church, Unityville, was the setting Saturday, September 8, 1956, for the marriage of Miss Ruth E. Peterman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Lawrence Peterman, Unityville R. D., to Robert Otto Diltz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Diltz, Stillwater.

The Rev. Warren A. Baker performed the double-ring ceremony by candlelight before 200 wedding guests.

The bride graduated from Sullivan Highland High School and has been employed by Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., Montoursville.

Her husband graduated from Benton High School and B.S.T.C. He received his elementary certification from Kutztown State Teachers College and his Master of Arts degree from Teachers College, Columbia University, New York. He was a member of Alpha Omicron fraternity. The groom, a veteran of World War II with service in Europe, is now on the faculty of the Carson Long Institute, New Bloomfield, Pa.

$6,000 ORGAN FOR COLLEGE

A new Baldwin organ has been purchased for the Teachers College and will be installed in a few weeks.

The organ is electrically operated but has a full pipe organ keyboard and carries the endorsement of the American Guild of Organists.

It will replace the Hammond organ which was purchased in 1936, largely from profits of the student book store. The late Dr. H. V. Hower, then president of the board of trustees, gave $500 toward the instrument.

The Baldwin, which will cost $6,000, is to be paid over a period of three years from profits of the book store.

Robert Sides, Williamsport, is the contractor. The organ is of the type which can be moved to the new auditorium when one is constructed on the campus.

Inasmuch as it has a full pipe organ keyboard, students who had pipe organ instruction before matriculating on the hill will be able to play the instrument without adjustment, such as was required when the Hammond was in use.

A large sound chamber is now being constructed over the auditorium to house the sound units of the organ.

Army Reserve Maj. Anthony J. Verhovshek, now residing at 1935 Derry street, Harrisburg, recently received two weeks of active duty training at Fort Lee, Va.

The training includes weapons firing and familiarization with the latest developments in Army Quartermaster procedures.

Major Verhovshek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Verhovshek, 718 Hudson street, Forest City. He is an office manager for H. B. Disinger, Incorporated.

Enclosed is a check for $12 to cover my dues for one year, and a contribution of $10 for the Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund. It is a wonderful plan, as it honors devoted teachers and will benefit future teachers.

Personally I have grateful memories of a kind teacher, and also the sound and helpful advice he gave me when I informed him I had received an appointment as teacher in the Indian service. In this connection I plan to contact 5 also honored during her period of service. When they erected a large elementary school in the Whittier area district in 1951 it was named the Ada S. Nelson school.

But let's touch a moment on that mentioned possibility of a B.S.T.C. alumni branch at Whittier. There are 103 teachers in the system. Thirty-two of them are from Pennsylvania and of the Keystone State delegation twenty are B.S.T.C. graduates. Mrs. Nelson has certainly sold the system out in California on Bloomsburg trained teachers.

Mrs. Nelson is a native of the Lime Ridge section and a sister of Mrs. Jane Baker, Espy, and Myron Shuman, Lime Ridge. A graduate of the local Teachers College, she also took extensive work in west coast institutions.

Upon the occasion of one of the dinners at which she was honored a telegram was received from Vice President Richard Nixon, a resident of Whittier in which he stated, "Of all those who have made friends and influenced people, it seems to me that the school teacher is easily the most influential. A lifetime of forty-four years spent as teacher and school superintendent has enabled Mrs. Nelson to make her influence felt—sometimes crucially—in the lives of thousands of persons. Something she has moulded in each of them will live on in them and their children's children. Mrs. Nelson should be a woman very rich in memories and in realization of a life well spent."

At the same dinner she received a certificate of merit from the supervisors of Los Angeles county. It was the only time in history this honor was conferred on one who had not served on the county staff. It set forth Mrs. Nelson "was instrumental in the organization and conduct of many civic and humanitarian activities in the Los Nietos district, including the Americanization program and the work of the Community Coordinating Council."

able career:

"Known for her skillful method of handling mixed groups and her pioneering devotion, Ada Nelson guided her district from an enrollment of eighty pupils to its present 2300. Built originally on a site now occupied by Fluid Pump Pack Company, the Los Nietos school was rebuilt in 1924 at its present location. The first school district in this area, Los Nietos school started with three teachers. Because Ada Nelson never harbored the word 'impossible' in her vocabulary the school will expand to 100 teachers this fall.

"The district now boasts of three additional schools, Ada Nelson, Santa Gertrudes and Frank Wiggins, with a fifth slated for construction this fall.

"The remarkable Mrs. Nelson started the first organized P.T.A. in Los Nietos in 1941. The forming of the needlework guild was also one of her valuable contributions to the community.

"A crusader for what is right, Mrs. Nelson spent many hours aiding Mexican residents to secure their citizenship; requesting aid for minors; bailing unfortunates out of jail and fighting their court battles. During the depression years she established soup kitchens, created jobs and secured clothing requisitions from local service clubs.

"Always with her well loved school district in mind, Mrs. Nelson traveled eastward regularly to recruit teachers, the majority coming from Pennsylvania. With her dedication so pronounced, no wonder so many prominent people dubbed her 'Mrs. Elementary Education,' a title she well earned."

Dr. Henry J. Warman, of Clark University, Worcester, Massachusetts, is the author of a very interesting article which appeared in The Journal of Geography in May, 1956.

The article, bearing the title "Telecasting Techniques in Geography" grew out of a College Credit T.V. Course "Why the Weather?" conducted by Dr. Warman. It contains some of the more specific preparations which are offered for the assistance of those who are contemplating or actually engaged in telecasting geographic material.

In a recent note, Dr. Warman says "I am trying to spread the 'good words' drilled into me by Dr. H. H. Russell."

'Saucered and Blowed'

E. H. Nelson, '11

Homecoming Day 1956 was splendid in all of its appointment, including the weather. Mansfield was beaten, doughnuts were eaten and folks were a meetin'.

The Class of 1936 convened for a 6:30 P. M. dinner at the Elks Club as an aftermath of a reunion resolution in May. It was a most enjoyable affair to which Mrs. Nelson and I were invited. Mention is made of it here because of something that developed at the meeting. Dan Jones offered the following as a "why not."

Schedule the reunion classes are now done i.e. 1907-1912-1917, etc. Schedule however 1906 and 1908 along with 1907; 1911 and 1913 along with 1912 and 1916 and 1918 along with 1917, etc., making the three classes a unit for the general meeting, with 1907-1912-1917, etc., the host classes. Separate class meeting to be scheduled in the afternoon. This would mean that once in 5 years your class would be host to the class just before and just after you. Twice in 5 years you would be entertained, once by the class just before you and once by the class just after you. Not so much entertained as a chance to fellowship with the people who were in school when you were. This plan works out to a result that you would return to the campus three times in 5 years, once as a host class. How about it. Let us hear from you. In other words, you have your 5 year reunion as usual, but also join with the class immediately before you and after you for tall story telling of days gone by.

Fifty years ago saw big changes at the Normal, as returning Alumni note changes now going on. Dr. Aldinger had left to go to New York City. The Athletic Field was taken over for the erection of Science Hall and a new Athletic Field (Mt. Olympus) was in the process of development, which later was to give way to the present Navy Hall and another move made necessary to the present location for Athletic contests. The "Quarterly" of March, 1906, says "Profs. Albert, Cope and Hartline and the Music teachers are no longer living in the present. Everything now dates from the time when their departments shall have accommodations in the new Science building." Dr. Welsh, the Principal was leaving to go to State College as its Vice President, which carried with it the minor offices of registrar, business manager, and director of the Summer Schools! Dr. Waller was to return to Bloomsburg for his second tenure as Principal having served 13 years previously. A training school youngster being asked the proper time for little boys and girls to clean their teeth responded "In the Spring" and Dean Sutliff was worried, for in spite of the very considerable relief afforded by the occupancy of the New Science Hall, the thronging students and teachers were demanding more room! No wonder prospective teachers take "Problem" courses in almost every phase of training and we have a distinctive character known as the problem child.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

STUDENT ASSISTANCE

Every year we have worthy students who need money to begin or continue college.

College costs and enrollments have doubled in the last twenty years. Assuming that we have the same proportion of worthy students needing assistance, there is an evident need for a combined loan fund of not less than $30,000. Increased costs of printing the Alumni Quarterly and other expenses of the Alumni Association now make it impossible for the Association to use one-half of the $2.00 Alumni Dues for student assistance, either in the form of scholarships or grants.

An increase in the Loan Fund will enable not only Juniors and Seniors to borrow up to a maximum of $200, but will enable worthy Sophomores to borrow from this fund, repayable after graduation without interest. With a $30,000 Loan Fund, the maximum amount loaned to any one student may be increased to $300. The Scholarship and Grant Committee has been making awards to Freshmen and Sophomores who are not eligible to borrow from the Loan Fund.

The present sources of student assistance are:

- 1—Employment by the college, chiefly in the dining room and Snack Bar, approaches $30,000 yearly.
- 2—Scholarships and Grants varying in the neighborhood of $30,000 depend upon the profits from the Husky Lounge, which amount to $2,000, the remainder made up by the Scholarships granted by the Alumni Association, Classes, and other interested organizations.

3—Loan Funds:

- 1—The Kehr-Ward Temporary Loan Fund of $500, repayable at the end of each semester.

2—Alumni Loan Fund consisting of

- a—Less than $15,000 which has been accumulated over a long period of time and was brought to its present level in 1939.
- b—The Bakeless Memorial Loan Fund initiated by an original anonymous gift of $2,500, which has been matched by an equal amount from the following College Groups:

Board of Trustees (Florence Cawley Loan Bond) ..	$1,000
Faculty Pledges ($285 paid)	500
Class of 1956	200
Community Activities (Surplus—1956)	500
College Organizations (Collected to date)	370

$2,570

It would seem that the General Alumni should be able to raise at least $10,000 in memory of Sarah H. and Oscar Hugh Bakeless, making the total of the Bakeless Memorial Fund not less than $15,000.

The basic assumption in the present policy is that a student should be encouraged to accept college employment and borrow from the Loan Fund rather than expect to finance a substantial part of their college expenses from nonrepayable scholarships.

For the first time in more than a decade and a half your Alma Mater needs your help. Individual Alumni, State, and County Area Branches, and former students are invited to send their checks to Mr. Earl A. Gchrig, 224 Leonard Street, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania. This is an opportunity of expressing your appreciation, or merely the repayment in part of the help you may have received while you were a student at the College on the Hill.

Bloomsburg Teachers College Huskies put on a good opening show on Mt. Olympus as they scored a 13 to 0 triumph over a tough Delaware State eleven before a good opening day crowd.

The Huskies did their scoring in the first and fourth quarters. Bob Rainey smashed over for the first tally on a slant from 3 yards out to end a drive that started on Delaware's 46. He added the extra point by placement.

Midway through the final period the Huskies were stymied on the Delaware 34. Asby went into deep punt formation and his magic toe sent the ball through the air and out of bounds on the 4-yard line.

On the first play Matthews was stopped. Then on a quick handoff the ball was snatched from the arms of the Delaware ball carrier and downed by a host of onrushing Husky linemen.

Malczyk carried on the first play to take the ball within inches of the double stripe and on the next play quarterback Oustrich went across for the tally. Casper's placement for the extra point was wide and the Huskies led 13 to 0.

Cortland, N. Y., Red Dragons eleven dealt the first defeat of the year to Jack Yohe's defending S.T.C. champions here in a 6 to 3 thriller on Mount Olympus.

The Husky offense appeared as though it would carry them to victory in the first half of the contest. In the opening quarter the local eleven started a drive that carried to the Cortland 9-yard line before the Dragons took over on downs.

Again in the second period the Huskies started a march that went inside the Red Dragon 7. After John Oustrich's third down pass fell incomplete Bob Rainey stepped back to the 12 where, with Oustrich holding, he booted a three-pointer squarely between the uprights.

In the latter part of the third quarter the Cortland Dragons climaxed a drive that started back on the Bloomsburg 49 as Don Guido, fullback, crashed over from the 2 to score what turned out to be the winning tally. The extra point kick was blocked by a host of Husky defenders.

Bloomsburg Huskies got faked out of a football game at Shippensburg on Saturday afternoon, October 20. The score was 20-3.

The faking was legitimate. In fact, it was a beautiful thing to watch if you were a Shippensburg fan or just a follower of football who likes to view fine play execution.

The fellow who did the gridiron version of the shell game — now you see me and now you don't — was Jack Connor, a senior out of Aliquippa.

Bloomsburg's play was best in the first half. After intermission, the game was dominated by Shippensburg.

Bloomsburg scoring: Touchdowns—Watts 3 (1 on pass from Rainey; 2 runs), Malczyk (run); PAT—Rainey 1 (placement). King's scoring: Touchdown—Charnichko (run). PAT—Gorman 1 (placement). Officials—M. Noonan, D. Noonan, Williams, Romanowski.

The Bloomsburg Huskies in their most sparkling performance of the season, racked up a decisive 25 to 7 victory Saturday night, October 29, over a top notch King's College eleven at Wilkes-Barre Memorial Stadium.

There was never a doubt as to the Huskies' mastery over the Monarch, who were playing before a homecoming crowd. The Maroon and Gold gridders reeled off 300 yards rushing and pushed across tallies in every period but the third.

The Monarch were able to score only once, that coming in the second quarter on a smash from the 2 yard line by fullback Nick Charnichko, climaxing a drive that started on their own 33. The big factor in the march was a 65-yard pass play from Dan Distasio to Jim Gorman.

King's had to play without their passing ace Bernie Koval who was sidelined by a knee injury. This didn't stop the Monarch from passing, however. They went to air 18 times with Dan Distasio and Don Zlotek doing the pitching.

West Chester Teachers Rams regained the Teachers College Conference football crown Friday evening, November 10, clinching the title on their own field and before a crowd of 3,500 as they bested the Bloomsburg Huskies, defending champions, 27-7.

It was the first losing season for Bloomsburg in football since the sport was reestablished on the hill in 1946. The local record this year was three wins and four defeats.

The Rams won on a ground attack despite the fact they went into the air frequently and scored twice on passes.

They opened their scoring in the first period but it was a ball game until the third quarter when Pete Mosteller started off right end and then cut back to go 68 yards for a TD on the first play from scrimmage following the intermission. His path was cleared by good blocking. That was the ball game.

All of the Ram scoring came before the Huskies were able to dent the West Chester goal line. In that drive Bloomsburg moved 90 yards. They combined a ground and air attack and Gerry Wood made the last 16 in drives through the middle. Bo Rainey added the extra point by placement. Only 1:30 of playing time remained.

Rita Dixon is one of forty-four students—graduates of 28 different colleges and universities—who have enrolled in the University of Pittsburgh School of Retailing, a one year graduate course.

The students come from 7 states, Canada and the Philippine Islands. All are planning to enter the field of retailing following graduation next June, when they will receive the master of retailing degree.

The School of Retailing offers a course of study that includes both classroom work and actual on the job training in Pittsburgh department stores. Each student spends about 12 weeks working in various departments of one of the Pittsburgh stores.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The Tenth Annual Conference for Teachers and Administrators was held on the campus of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College on Saturday, November 3. In the past decade, attendance has grown steadily, and last year's sessions were crowded to capacity, conference planners considered it the most successful meeting in the series, and plans were completed to include those features which were most outstanding. The conference featured demonstration lessons in the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School, the Bloomsburg Junior-Senior High School, and a lecture and demonstration lesson on the teaching of typewriting at the secondary school level. An address by Dr. T. M. Stinnett, Executive Secretary, National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, highlighted the general session of the conference at 11:15 a. m. in Carver Auditorium.

Registration of elementary teachers and administrators began at nine o'clock in the Laboratory School, followed by a number of demonstration lessons taught by the school faculty at 9:30. The lessons were built around the general theme, "Providing Opportunities for Teacher-Pupil Planning." Those attending had an opportunity to participate in the ensuing group discussions, which were led by: Miss Terry Schwarz, Pennsylvania State University; Miss Grace S. Beck, Sunbury; Miss H. Grace Worrall, Shamokin; Mr. Kenneth Roberts, Columbia County; Mr. Richard C. Williams, West Pittston; Mr. Clarence Rowlands, Bloomsburg; Mrs. Augusta Foose, Milton; Mr. Lewis R. Stauffer, Danville; and Mr. Boyd F. Buckingham, Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

Demonstration lessons in modern languages, social studies, mathematics, biology, and geography were taught by Bloomsburg High School teachers at 9:30 a. m., following registration at the high school on Center Street. Discussion leaders were selected from the faculty of the Teachers College.

Business Education teachers and administrators registered at Navy Hall at nine o'clock. Mr. Jerry W. Robinson, Associate Editor, South-Western Publishing Company, discussed up-to-date methods and techniques used in the teaching of typewriting, and then presented a demonstration lesson involving the use of methods and techniques discussed during the lecture.

Following the general session on the Carver Auditorium, a conference luncheon was held in the college dining room. Music was provided by the Brahms Trio of Williamsport.

ALUMNI DAY:

GREATER NEW YORK AREA

The Seventh Annual Meeting of the B.S.N.S. and B.S.T.C. Alumni Association of Greater New York was held Saturday, October 27th, 1956, at the Allerton Hotel, Lexington Avenue and 57th Street, New York City, with President Michael Prokopchak, '35, presiding. Mr. P. Clive Potts, '12, gave the invocation.

Luncheon was served to twenty-two members and friends.

The honored guests, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss and Dr. E. H. Nelson, were introduced by Mr. Prokopchak, after which he asked each one to stand and introduce himself or herself and give the class with which he graduated.

Among those present were Ira S. Brown, '90, who founded the "Education Group of Connecticut." Miles Kilmer, 1900, who has had a part in the construction of every major tunnel in New York City, and Mrs. A. L. Johnson, '17, wife of the late Dr. A. L. Johnson, one of New Jersey's leading educators, who was Superintendent of Schools of Union County from 1914 to 1955.

Dr. Andruss spoke on the progress of the building program at the College, student enrollment and brought us up to date on Campus activities. He then showed some very interesting pictures of campus scenes including the football game with the Mansfield team.

Dr. Nelson spoke on loyalty to the College and to the Alumni Association. He asked for the support of the Bakeless Fund and that the members pay their Alumni dues.

At a short business meeting the following officers were chosen for next year: President, Francis P. Thomas, '42; Vice President, Mrs. Francis P. Thomas, '42; Secretary and Treasurer, A. K. Naugle, '11.

It was decided that we meet the last Saturday in October as a permanent date, the place and other arrangements to be left to the officers.

The following classes were represented: 1890 (1), 1900 (1), 1907 (1), 1909 (2), 1911 (4), 1912 (1), 1916

(1), 1917 (1), 1923 (1), 1935 (1), 1938 (1), 1942 (2) and 1944 (1).

After a session of friendly conversations, we adjourned about 5 P. M., hoping to meet again in '57.

Respectfully submitted,

A. K. Naugle, Secretary

P.S. It is not very encouraging to say the least, to send out 250 or 300 letters and have such a few respond. It is, however, gratifying and heart warming to know that men, as busy as are Dr. Andruss and Dr. Nelson, give of their time and energy to be with us. To know this, makes it worth the time and effort. We thank you.

A.K.N., Secy.

CLASS WINS TROPHY

During the regular assembly held Tuesday, October 2, at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, a gold trophy, symbolic of the national shorthand championship, was presented by Dr. Thomas Martin, Director of Business Education, to Associate Professor Walter S. Rygiel, a member of the college faculty.

The inscription on the trophy, awarded by the Esterbrook Pen Co., is "Class Championship, Esterbrook National Gregg Shorthand Contest, Collegiate Class A. Awarded to Walter S. Rygiel, State Teachers College, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania, 1955-1956."

The trophy has been put on display in the Business Education Department Office. Mr. Rygiel presented Esterbrook fountain pens and certificates of merit to each of the eighteen members of his shorthand championship class. The pens and certificates, inscribed with each individual's name, were given by the Esterbrook Pen Co.

The group won the first place honors in the face of formidable competition from schools throughout the nation.

HOMECOMING DAY

College Homecoming on Saturday, October 13, was one of the largest and most enjoyed in the twenty-nine year history of this popular fall event.

Graduates and friends of the institution were back in number and there were around 3,000 at the football game, big feature of the day, in which the Huskies won over Mansfield, 38-6.

Many of the alumni returned on Friday evening and a number of the classes that will be in reunion next fall had large enough delegations to hold luncheon and dinner meetings at which reunion plans were advanced.

Especially well represented were members of the classes of the past five or six years.

Most of the visitors spent the entire day on the campus. They were present for the band concert of the morning, had luncheon in the cafeteria, attended the game and then finished off a busy day at the Homecoming dinner and dance.

The new building and the various improvements to old buildings were of much interest to the graduates.

The College was in gala attire for the day and the administrators, faculty and student body were all out to see the graduated and friends had a splendid time.

The weatherman cooperated fully. No Homecoming has been staged in more delightful conditions.

POWER PLANT RECEIVES AWARD

The Power Plant of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College has been awarded, for the third consecutive year, a Certificate of Meritorious Achievement for its operation and efficiency with fuel utilization. This Award, made by the Department of Engineering Research of Pennsylvania State University, is made in competition with sixty or more State institutions. These include the power plants of mental institutions, reformatories, penitentiaries, and hospitals, as well as State Teachers Colleges.

The College personnel directly responsible for the earning of this Certificate of Meritorious Achievement is as follows: Dewey Campbell, Chief Stationary Engineer, who supervises Bowman Roadarmal, Harry Fisher, William Hartzell, and Harry Smith, Stationary Firemen.

The Power Plant is under the general supervision of Mr. Jennings B. Knoebel, Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings, and the steam lines are the responsibility of Maynard Brown.

This Award means that the Bloomsburg State Teachers College is one of the institutions being recognized for saving the tax payers of Pennsylvania money in the field of economical operation and fuel utilization.

A forty-hour work week, for all non-instructional employees, became effective on October first at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. The current reduction in the work-week, announced recently by President Harvey A. Andruss, follows a previous adjustment made on March 1, 1954, and reflects the results of planning by college officials during the past two and a half years. Due to the cost of initiating the forty hour week, it was necessary to plan for a gradual change, in line with available funds and current operating budgets. Although the number of hours has been reduced, hourly rates have been adjusted so that employees' salaries will not be decreased.

In order to insure no curtailment in services now being rendered, it is anticipated that five full-time employees will be added to the non-instructional staff.

During the past six years, the number of all personnel employed by the college has risen approximately from 125 to 150. The increase reflects both the pattern of growth in enrollment and the reduction in working hours.

RELIGION-IN-LIFE WEEK

For the third consecutive year, the Student Christian Association secured the services of outstanding religious leaders and speakers for the annual Religion-in-Life Week activities which were held on the campus of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College on November 6, 7 and 8. The theme for the sessions was: "One Nation — One World — One God."

Dr. T. Z. Koo, Secretary of the World Student Christian Federation for fourteen years, represented the Protestant denomination; Reverend Martin N. Lohmuller, J.C.D., pastor Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish in Marysville, represented the Catholic faith; and Dr. Philip B. Bookstaber, well-known rabbi and author from Harburg, represented Jewish faith.

Each of the three speakers addressed the college community on separate days at 10:00 o'clock in the college auditorium. Discussions were held on Tuesday at 7:00 p. m., Wednesday at 4:00 p. m., and Thursday at 4:00 p. m. Local ministers and members of the faculty were invited to act as consultants at the informal group meetings.

Following a pattern established three years ago, a student committee of the association planned the entire series of lectures and discussions. Because of the widespread student interest in the past two years campus organizations, the administration, and the faculty made every effort to cooperate with the Student Christian Association in making this one of the highlights on the college calendar.

LACKAWANNA- WAYNE BRANCH

The Lackawanna-Wayne County Branch of the B.S.T.C. Alumni Association held a very successful dinner meeting Thursday, November first, in the Europa Lounge, Scranton. About 150 people were present.

The invocation was offered by Thomas Francis, former superintendent of the Lackawanna County Schools. Several times during the evening, the guests joined in group singing, led by Miss Eva Morgan, with Mrs. Florence Sittler at the piano.

After the dinner William B. Jones, president of the Lackawanna-Wayne Branch, presented the Master of Ceremonies, Laurence D. Savage, prominent Scranton attorney, who presided in his usual capable manner.

Mr. Savage presented a group of students from the College, who sang several selections. A motion picture showing scenes of the campus was presented, with a commentary by Boyd Buckingham, member of the College faculty.

Dr. E. H. Nelson, President of the General Alumni Association, spoke of Alumni activities, with particular reference to the Bakeless Fund.

Mr. Savage then called upon President Harvey A. Andruss, who spoke of past accomplishments, present activities, and future needs of the College. He stressed the problems that the College is facing, because of the increase in the number of young people going to college.

President Jones then conducted a business meeting, and officers for the next year were elected.

Those who were present from Campus were President and Mrs. H. A. Andruss, Dr. E. H. Nelson, Howard F. Fenstermaker and Boyd Buckingham.

ENROLLMENT PRESENTS PROBLEM

While the Bloomsburg State Teachers College admitted 335 Freshmen, 35 transfer students, and 25 former students, making a total of 395, which is expected to produce a total enrollment figure well between 1000 and 1100, the number of students who could not be admitted because of lack of space is being studied.

In 1955, 673 students applied and 376 were admitted, leaving 297 who either had to file applications with other colleges or forego the opportunity of a college education.

This year 553 students filed applications before newspaper announcements were made that capacities had been exceeded, so that many others did not make formal application. With the admission of only 395, there were 168 who applied but could not be accommodated.

In previous years, beginning with 1950, 10% to 20% of those applying could not be admitted. The problem of having two or three times as many applications as can be admitted not only places the College in a position of refusing admission to many worthy students, but also denies to the sons and daughters of the tax payers of Pennsylvania an opportunity for higher education from which many of them could surely benefit.

The enrollment of the College prior to World War II, between the years of 1927 and 1940, did not at any time reach 700. With an enrollment of over 1050, approximately the same facilities are being used for 50% more students. To go beyond this figure would mean that the College would merely become a collection of classrooms to which students would go and recite, and there would be no opportunity for living together in a campus atmosphere.

With an enrollment of over 1050, Seniors no longer have a place to sit in the weekly assemblies held in the College Auditorium, which accommodates only 857. Nearly 200 students have to live in the Town of Bloomsburg, since the dormitories accommodate less than 500.

Senior women who are doing student teaching will live in approved homes in the Town of Bloomsburg. To accommodate more than 500 students in the dining room would mean that all meals would have to be served on a cafeteria basis, and students would not have an opportunity to sit down at the table for a served meal.

If College facilities are to be expanded to meet a doubled demand, according to President Harvey A. Andruss, there is pressing need for a new Auditorium to seat not less than 1200, a Men's Dormitory to accommodate not less than 200, along with a new Classroom Building which has already been approved but will not be available for use until January, 1958.

While the new Dining Room to seat 800 or 900 will probably be occupied early in 1957, the completion of this building will not in itself enable the college to increase its over-all enrollment without additional dormitories, classrooms, and a auditorium space. The graduation of a Senior Class in May, 1957, of about one-half the size of the entering Freshman Class does not provide space for the admission of any larger class in 1957 than the class which entered on September 10, 1956.

Unless Teachers Colleges increase their enrollments, there will be more classrooms in Pennsylvania with undertrained teachers, and many more schools will have to operate for half day sessions. Even if the enrollment of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College were increased to 1500 this year, with the admission of all qualified applications, it would be 1960 before an entering Freshman Class would be ready to teach in the public schools of Pennsylvania.

SAFETY CONFERENCE

More than seventy teen-agers and high school instructors from 14 high schools in a four-county area attended the Third Annual Pennsylvania Teen-Age Traffic Safety Conference held Friday, November 9, at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. Warren I. Johnson, Associate Professor of Elementary Education at the College, presided as area chairman and was in charge of conference arrangements. The group discussed "What Effective Traffic Safety Programs Can Be Organized in Pennsylvania High Schools?"

During the afternoon session, delegates elected co-teen-age chairmen and committee members for the 1957 conference. Co-chairmen are "Sandy" Baird, Dallas Area High School and Marleen Ritchie, Millville Area High School; committee members include: William Kubilus, West Hazleton High School; Clio Mowery, Berwick High School; Gerald Reese, Warrior Run Area Joint High School; Wayne Long, Dallas Area Joint High School; James Scouton, Lake Noxen High School; Priscilla Salvanorich, West Hazleton High School.

Johnson stated that many adults were impressed with the serious attitude shown by the students in attempting to suggest a constructive program of traffic safety. Student delegates will return to their respective schools with a model program and suggestions which could be modified to solve many of the safety problems existing in communities today. A summary of the discussions and findings will be sent to all participating high schools in the four-county area. Additional copies will be available on request.

Instructors met in a separate session to make additional recommendations for next year's session. Mr. George E. McCutcheon, Dallas, served as chairman and Mr. Claire Latell Lias, Millville, served as secretary.

FELLOWSHIPS OFFERED

The Danforth Foundation, an educational trust fund in St. Louis, Missouri, invites applications for the sixth class (1957) of Danforth Graduate Fellows from college senior men and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching, and are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1957, for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation welcomes applicants from the areas of Natural and Biological Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities and all fields of specialization to be found in the undergraduate college.

President Andruss has named Mr. Clayton H. Hinkel as the Liaison Officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for these fellowships. These appointments are fundamentally "a relationship of encouragement" throughout the years of graduate study, carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions as there may be need. The maximum annual grant for single Fellows is $1800; for married Fellows, $2400 with an additional stipend for children. Students with or without financial need are invited to apply. A Danforth Fellow is allowed to carry other scholarship appointments, such as Rhodes, Fulbright, Woodrow Wilson, Marshall, etc., concurrently with his Danforth Fellowship, and applicants for these appointments are cordially invited to apply at the same time for a Danforth Fellowship. If a man receives the Danforth Appointment, together with a Rhodes Scholarship, Fulbright Scholarship, or Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, he becomes a Danforth Fellow without stipend, until these other other relationships are completed.

All Danforth Fellows will participate in the annual Danforth Foundation Conference on Teaching, to be held at Camp Miniwanca in Michigan next September.

The qualifications of the candidates as listed in the announcement from the Foundation are: men of outstanding academic ability, personality congenial to the classroom, and integrity and character, including serious inquiry within the Christian tradition.

All applications, including the recommendations, must be completed by January 31, 1957. Any student wishing further information should get in touch with our Liaison Officer.

YESTERDAY

(From The Morning Press, 1938)

So they have had another fall term opening at the College.

What a number of them we have seen come in our time!

How well we recall the days when much of the school rivalry centered around the Philologians and the Calliepians. These, you may be amazed to learn, were rival literary societies and flourished in the days when there was a program every Saturday evening. They have long since disappeared from the picture, but they helped any number of people to have confidence on their feet in public. The fact is one of the founders of the Philologians happened to be our father. Originally, there was but the one society but strife arose within its membership and a group bolted to organized the Callipian society. Guy Jacoby was one of those and he frequently told us of those days.

Mr. Jacoby, as the older residents of Bloomsburg will recall, was a member of the Columbia county bar, but his largest business came through his justice of the peace office. He filled that office year after year. In his day lawyers with any important case made certain the hearing was held before him. There was never any slip-up in the return of the case. He knew more law than many of the lawyers—certainly far more law as it pertained to the justice of the peace office.

For years we called at his office almost daily in search of news. When we had time we usually discussed many things together.

When he was on his deathbed he sent for us, with the information that he had some very important information to pass on and he wanted us to be its custodian.

We went to his home to find his rector with him. His religion had become a very personal matter with him in his last days.

He declared to us he was happier than he had ever been in his life, but he was tired. "I've talked too much today. Would you mind coming up to see me tomorrow? I'll feel better then."

Of course we acquiesced. He died that night and the information he wanted to pass on died with him.

But we are getting away from fall term openings on the hill.

We have seen those openings from the early days of Dr. Waller's first principalship there; after his first resignation, and during the days of Dr. Welsh; again through the second long term of Dr. Waller; that of Dr. Charles H. Fisher; Dr. George L. Reimer; Dr. Haas and Dr. Andruss.

Back in those early days they didn't have such a facility as an athletic field. The fact is, they didn't go in much for athletics until the gymnasium was erected in the early nineties and Dr. Aldinger came here as physical director.

Our first recollection of a Normal football team was when Prof. Detwhiler led a procession of youths down to Athletic Park from the hill for their first football practice. There was one football uniform in the crowd and Prof. Detwhiler, who had learned at Haverford, possessed that. There wasn't a semblance of padding in it—merely a canvas packet and canvas knee pants. Uniforms came in due course, and Normal began turning out some real football teams. Bill Worthington and Bray, the former a linesman and the latter a back, were to later be mentioned for All-American honors when they played with Lafayette. Bill Ruch was a tackle who later shone at the University of Pennsylvania. We saw him help defeat Harvard in their last game before the break. Many other brilliant pigskin toters were to come along in later years, but this picture goes back to around 1890. Prof. Detwhiler, who later left Bloomsburg, was to a tragic death. A cat had been giving the family trouble, and he crowded under a porch with a rifle in his hand to dispatch the cat. In some manner the rifle was accidentally discharged and the bullet killed him.

Back in those days the boys and girls didn't come by automobile. They practically all came by train, and both the D., L. & W. and the P. & R. added extra coaches on the day of their coming. A bus was the only means of transportation in those days, and few gave themselves such a luxury. They "hoofed" from the station, and carried plenty of baggage as well. It was a great day for the town boys who always made it a point to give the incoming contingent the "once over." Many a matrimonial venture started in such innocent fashion.

Back in those days the boys and girls didn't have many liberties. Of course, the boys never smoked. The girls? That was never even dreamed of. The dormitories were patrolled and close check was had upon all concerned. Privileges of being outside the school at night? No, indeed. They stayed there when they once entered the walls.

Of course, there was infractions of the rules. There, by way of illustration, was the time some of the boys staged a dance in Dentler's hall and had everything moving along nicely until faculty members got to hear of it, and raided the place. All this necessitated letting the girls down the outside by means of ladders from the third floor while a sufficient number held back the raiders until the girls had made their escape.

Then, too, there was the time when a student, now well known in Bloomsburg life, "borrowed" Dr. Welsh's horse to take the girl of his dreams out for a ride. Everything was going nicely until they almost ran into Dr. Welsh at the foot of the hill. That youth never did graduate.

But all that belongs to the distant past.

The Americanism Committee of the South Carolina Department of the American Legion has honored a former Montour County resident, now serving with the U. S. Army Recruiting Service, for outstanding service in operation and promotion of a boys program in that State.

Master Sergeant John P. Shellenberger, a native of Strawberry Ridge and former teacher at De-Long Memorial School, Washingtonville, was awarded a gold watch by the committee for his outstanding service in operation and promotion of Palmeto to Boy's State, sponsored annually by the South Carolina Department of the American Legion.

Sgt. Shellenberger is a graduate of Turbotville High School and Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

It stresses an awareness of the forces that seek to undermine our freedoms and points out that constant vigilance is necessary.

As Public Relations Director for the Palmeto Boys' State, Shellenberger is credited by the Americanism Committee with contributing greatly to the success of the program by enthusiastically bringing its activities to the attention of the public.

After leaving the faculty at the Washingtonville school, he joined the Army in 1942.

After a tour of duty in Korea, he resumed duties with the Army Recruiting Service in 1953 and was assigned to Columbia, S. C.

Sgt. Shellenberger is married to the former Louise Boyer, of Mt. Carmel, a graduate nurse of the Geisinger Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. They have two daughters, Roma, 11, and Roxy, eight.

"Saucered and Blowed"

E. H. Nelson, '11

Christmas is a time for remembering. It is a time when the spirit of love is genuinely aroused, and a time when man forgets self and strives to be considerate toward all mankind. The spirit of Christmas is the preserver of all that is good in the world.

As we ponder our lives we find woven into the fabric of our beings the influences that came from our student days. If they are and were worth while to us why not plan definitely to aid in extending that influence to others. As the first step, active membership in the Alumni Association is essential. The next step is to decide in what field and to what extent we want to extend our interests.

What phases of student life were particularly helpful to you? Would you like to strengthen the facet of college living that was of special worth to you, — scholarships in any field, loan fund, memorials? A very definite way to promote your interest is to become active in the Alumni Organization in your area and thereby keep in close contact with what is going on in the College today. It is surprising how much good can come to you and to the school through your continued attention with a sense of concern. Are you aware of improvements in the physical plant; do you keep posted on athletic records and achievements, and see the various teams in action whenever possible; do you note with pride the accomplishments of Bloomsburg graduates in all fields of endeavor; and do you interest worthy high school graduates in what your Alma Mater has to offer? All these things are the Spirit that is Bloomsburg and a reflection of what the holiday season has to offer in promoting better understanding among all peoples.

I would be remiss in my obligations as President of the Alumni Association if I did not bring to your attention the fact that long after we have "finished the course," "ever upward, striving, climbing, onward Bloomsburg goes." Remember Bloomsburg in your living; remember Bloomsburg in your will.

Best wishes for a bright and happy New Year.

ELNA H. NELSON
President of the Alumni Association
